Action on Profits Levy Demanded by Truman; CED for 'Defense' Tax

President Wants Tax, Retroactive To July 1, Passed At Short Session

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday called for short-session enactment of a four-billion-dollar excess profits tax program, applying retroactively to corporate profits earned since July 1.

Mr. Truman sent his request to Representative Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.), chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, on the eve of committee hearings on a profits tax bill.

Doughton told reporters he regarded language written into last session's emergency tax bill as "a mandate to try—and try hard in good faith" to report out an excess profits tax during the "lame duck" session convening November 27.

He invited Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder to spell out the Administration's tax program at this morning's formal opening of Ways and Means hearings on profits taxation.

Party-Line Split Develops

An almost party-line split meanwhile developed in the committee on the decision to press for profits tax action during the forthcoming short session.

Representative Daniel A. Reed (N. Y.), ranking committee Republican, demanded tax legislation be held over until the regular session of the Eighty-second Congress convening in January. He said it would be "impossible, in the short time remaining," for the present Congress to act intelligently on taxes. He termed the excess profits tax "a controlled economy measure."

Representative Wilbur Mills (Ark.), a key Democratic member of the committee, solidly backed Doughton. Mills said the committee had a "moral obligation," stemming from a September 23 congressional directive, to do all in its power to report a profits tax bill in the forthcoming session.

Both Doughton and Mills, however, said their committee responsibility would be discharged once the bill was reported to the House. Whether the House, the Senate Finance Committee and the Senate would have time to act in the few weeks remaining was highly doubtful.

At Most a Trial Run

Speculation was that the House committee showdown would provide at most a trial run for tax legislation to be finally enacted in the January regular session.

In his letter to Chairman Doughton, Mr. Truman did not recommend specific tax rates. He said he realized the tax might take many variations in form and that Secretary Snyder would discuss these with the committee.

One report was that the Treasits all corporate profits in excess ury favors treating as excess profof 75 percent of the base earnings for 1947, 1948 and 1949. The excess would be taxed.

Policy Group Suggests Taking A Bigger Slice of Earnings

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

An important business policy group yesterday added its voice in opposition to an excess profits tax.

It proposed instead, a flat increase in corporate profit taxation which would raise as much revenue from business as an excess profits levy, and would take the profits out of the defense program, in that it would reduce the average of business earnings after taxes to the 1947-49 levels.

The program was set forth by the research and policy committee of the Committee for Economic Development, a national organization of progressive business leaders.

In addition to a corporate tax increase of 8 percent above the present 45-percent rate, the CED proposed the addition of a tax on individuals of 5 percent on net income in excess of present exemptions and present taxes. Thus, the new defense income tax would not apply against income which already had been taxed away.

The new tax on corporations and extra individual income tax would each produce three billion dollars, the CED estimated. It urged that the taxes be applied only for one year—1951—during which time a more permanent tax program should be worked out "to meet the needs of a budget that may continue to be very large for a very long time."

Also during 1951, the CED

3-Alarm Fire Wrecks Davies Staff House

Two District firemen were injured yesterday fighting a three-alarm fire at Tregaron estate of Joseph E. Davies, at 3100 Macomb st. nw.

The fire, which burned out a large double house on the property, sent these firemen to Emergency Hospital

Sergt. Herman Fones, 47, of 8 Evarts st. ne., who suffered a back injury when he fell from a ladder as he was directing No. 16 Engine Company. He is in good condition.

Pvt. Frank J. Balik, 50, of 4519 13th st. ne., of No. 1 Engine Company, who also sustained a back injury when he fell. He is in good condition.

The fire, which attracted about a thousand persons, did not endanger the home of Davies, former Ambassador to Russia. It was confined to a large double house about 300 yards southeast of the manorial Davies home.

The building was vacant when the fire, which may have started from burning leaves, was discovered. Part of the building is occupied by seven members of the Davies' domestic staff, who were in the main house when the fire broke out.

The remainder of the house has been occupied by members of the Chinese Embassy staff, who vacated it before remodeling operations were begun about a week ago.

When the first alarm was sounded at 5:41 p. m., Davies was not at home, but Mrs. Davies was present while firemen fought the stubborn blaze. Subsequent alarms were sounded at 5.44 and 5:46 p. m.

The fire was declared under control at 6:25 p. m. Twelve engine companies, four truck companies, three battalion chiefs, the chief engineer, three rescue squads, two ambulances and a water tower and tender responded to the three alarms. There was no official estimate of damage. However, Fire Chief Joseph A. Mayhew said the building was "nearly a total loss."

Promotions Curbed by Civil Service

By Jerry Kluttz
Post Reporter

The Civil Service Commission yesterday restricted grade promotions, revised its layoff procedure, and set up a system of reemployment rights for Government workers who are transferred to critical defense jobs.

It acted under the President's order of Monday that placed most Federal personnel actions on an emergency basis. Each agency today will get a 25-page copy of the commission's regulations on the order. Among its highlights are:

Grade Promotion Brake: After December 1, an employe must have been in grade or above for at least six months before he can be given a grade promotion, and thereafter he must wait at least six months for each subsequent grade promotion. There is no time restriction on grade promotions of employes below GC-5. In addition, no employe under GS-10 can be given more than a two-grade jump, and employes GS-10 and above can be given grade promotions at only one grade at a time. Civil Service, however, will allow exceptions to be made to these general rules.

Retention Preference: In making layoffs, the agencies must follow a new preference system. The present A Group (career employes) is split into several subgroups as follows: In Subgroup PA will be career employes who continue in their present permanent jobs. In Subgroup TA will be those career employes who are given indefinite grade promotions within their agencies. In Subgroup X will be those permanent employes who have been giver indefinite transfers to other agencies, with or without reemployment rights. Subgroup T will be those war-service and temporary employes who are eligible for permanent status under the President's order of August 29. In the B Group will be those employes who are given new indefinite appointments, and finally, in C Group will be those persons who are hired for short-term temporary periods.

Layoffs will be made in reverse

100,000 More Donors Needed To Meet Chest Drive Quota

One hundred thousand more donors need to be reached to put the Community Chest campaign over the top.

That is what Hugh K. Duffield, general campaign chairman, told workers at a luncheon at the Washington Hotel yesterday, at which the campaign reached 64.74 percent of its $4,260,000 goal.

Volunteers in the Red Feather drive brought in a total of 18,500 new donations, and pushed the total reached so far in the drive to $2,758,105.

Duffield said that it was "simple arithmetic that workers must reach 100,000 additional donors who are on record as having given in 1949.

"That is our job. If the average gift is maintained, we can do it, but it will take the tireless efforts of every worker

New contributions reported at yesterday's luncheon brought division totals up to these figures: Business I, $1,003,447; Business II, $116,510; Government, $1,288,900; Special Solicitation, $173,209; Alexandria, $48,603; Arlington, $30,169; Fairfax, $27,160; Montgomery, $53,137, and Prince Georges, $16,966.

Lieut. Gen. Edward Hale Brooks, assistant chief of staff of G-1, Department of Defense, told the large crowd which attended the luncheon that "it seems a bit absurd" that "many Americans put in long hours urging other Americans to do their part" in order to put the campaign over the top.

"With so many Americans in other parts of this world giving so much of their lives to protect our homeland, pure logic would seem to dictate that we who are protected should give, until it hurts.

"Happy conditions in the homes of servicemen have a direct effect on the morale of our soldiers. When you consider that as a result of the expansion of the services, Chest officials estimate that an additional 34,000 service personnel and their families will be in need of assistance in 1951, I think you can see why we in the service again attach great importance to your work and to this campaign," he said.

Dear Bill:

I think it would be a fine thing if the King and Queen of Norway would come over this summer. So far as I know we have never had any of the Scandanavian Rulers visit us. I remember that when Theodore Roosevelt was in Europe in 1909 he was most delightfully entertained by the King and Queen at Oslo and liked both of them immensely.

If it seems desirable to have a message sent now, through the Minister, without waiting until the 4th of March, do please do so, and I will follow it up after I come in.

As ever yours,

Castle, Hoover's under-Secretary of State, had reported that the King and Queen of Norway might visit this country for the cornerstone laying for a statue of Leif Ericson. Playground Work Now Barred

Recreation Board Asks Easier Non-Essential Building Rule

The District Recreation Department yesterday asked for relaxation of the ban on "nonessential" building to permit construction of playgrounds and other public recreational facilities.

The National Production Authority last month put a stop order on construction of recreation, amusement and entertainment projects.

Recreation Superintendent Milo F. Christiansen told the board that the order has halted construction of field houses at Fort Stanton and Langdon Park playgrounds.

Unless modified, the ban also will cut into the department's planned expansion for next year, he said. The board is seeking funds for two swimming pools, additional shelter houses and land improvements to 47 playgrounds.

Board Chairman Harry S. Wender described the order as "too restrictive" and said he thought it "preposterous" that playground shelter houses had been placed in the same category with race tracks and dance halls.

The resolution approved by the board asked that some distinction be made between commercial amusement projects and those of a community or nonprofit nature "essential to maintain and improve the Nation's health, happiness and morale."

Christiansen said the War Production Board halted recreation projects early in the last war but later rescinded the order to permit their construction.

He said that recreation facilities particularly are needed in "communities providing services and facilities to service personnel and their families and where there are difficult community problems relating to delinquency and other social factors."

He said that Washington has one of the largest concentrations of service personnel and their families of any area

The board also asked the commissioners to clear land for the Cardozo Playground, 10th and R sts. nw., and Mary Force Stead, playground, P st. between 16th and 17th sts. nw.

2 B-29s Blasted Down, Reds Lose Speedy Jet In Furious Air Battle

Yanks Drive to 2 Reservoirs; Column Heads for Frontier

SEOUL (Wednesday), Nov. 15 (AP).—United Nations troops probed the hydroelectric heart of northeast Korea today in freezing weather, pressed a new thrust toward the Manchurian frontier and hacked out small gains in the frigid northwest.

United States Marines reached the huge Changjin reservoir Tuesday and took Hagaru at the southern tip of the great river lake that makes power for most of northeast Korea's industries and many in Chinese Communist Manchuria.

U. S. Seventh Division patrols operating 15 miles northeast reached the east short of Pujon reservoir, another unit in the Japanese-built North Korean hydroelectric complex. A U. S. Tenth Corps spokesman said the Army troops encountered no Reds.

Farther north other troops of the Seventh Division fought northward in the bitter cold and snow on a fresh push for the Manchurian border.

On the main battlefront in northwestern Korea American, British and Republic of Korea (ROK) forces moved forward in below-freezing temperatures.

In some sectors there was bitter see-saw fighting. In others U. N. forces were unopposed.

Intelligence and patrol reports to U. S. First Cavalry Division headquarters indicated the Red divisions still were withdrawing ahead of the U. N. advance. Some prepared positions were abandoned without a fight.

But at U. S. First Corps headquarters a spokesman said the

Superfort Crashes Into Parked Planes; Several Crewmen Wounded in Clash

TOKYO (Wednesday), Nov. 15 (AP).—U. S. Superfort gunners shot down one Russian-built fighter in a wild air battle over northwest Korea yesterday and two big B-29s were damaged so badly they made emergency landings with wounded crewmen.

The Air Force anounced today that a 600-mile-an-hour MIG-15 fighter was downed in the blazing fight just after the Superfort fleet had dumped 140 tons of bombs on Yalu River bridges. Earlier reports said all the enemy jets escaped.

The great air battle overshadowed the ground action in Korea as zero weather all but paralyzed the armies.

Late reports from a Superfort group based in Okinawa disclosed the destruction of the MIG-15, the swept-wing jet which in battle has proved speedier than the U. S. F-80 Shooting Star.

The reports said 12 to 15 of the Soviet-made jets, instead of the previously reported 8 to 10, jumped the B-29 armada and its escort of Shooting Stars.

Crashes and Burns

S/Sgt. R. W. Fisher of Marinette, Ky., tail gunner on one of the Superforts, said an enemy jet approached his bomber from the rear and he got in a burst against it.

S/Sgt. R. W. Fisher of Marinete, Wis., central fire control gunner, took up the story:

"The MIG turned and showed his belly just for a second, and we hit him again. Then he started down. Not once did the MIG appear to be under control. It hit the ground and burst into flames."

Crewmen on other B-29s said they also saw the flames. An Air Force spokesman said good weather was in prospect today, and another full scale air effort was expected.

When the fight was over two Superforts limped to emergency landings on Korean air fields. The pilot of one was wounded. As it came down, the big plane veered off the runway and crashed into four Marine fighter planes parked along the strip. The other damaged B-29 landed safely.

At least three B-29 crewmen were injured, the United States Fifth Air Force announced. It said no MIG-15s were believed downed, nor was any United States Shooting Star.

Pilots of the unmarked silvery enemy jets attacked in groups of four. Two would attack from the front to draw the fire of the bombers, then two more would wheel in from the rear.

Crewmen said they approached the railroad bridge over the Yalu between Sinuiju and Antung, the Korean and Manchurian border towns, and dropped their bombs. A few seconds later the jets came across the river, and the fight was on.

"I could see MIG-15's in every direction I looked," said S/Sgt. M. O. Prosper of Tampa, Fla., chief gunner of a Superfort.

"They came as close as 500 or 600 yards," S/Sgt. Charles W. Lambert, also of Tampa, said.

January Draft Call of 40,000 Fixed by Army

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Army yesterday asked Selective Service to induct 40,000 men in January, bringing the total draft calls since the Korean War started to an even quarter of a million men.

A spokesman said the January quota—below the average to date —would have been larger if more training facilities were available.

Inasmuch as men drafted during the fall still will be in camps taking their four months basic training when the January inductees arrive, space for them will be limited, it was said.

A faster expansion of training facilities planned earlier was cut back, it is understood, when the Inchon invasion proved such a success and an early end of the fighting in Korea seemed likely. Now the entrance of the Chinese Reds into combat makes another shift in the tempo almost certain.

This means substantially higher draft calls after January 1 informed sources said. Monthly calls to date have been: September, 50,000 men; October, 50,000; November, 70,000; and December, 40,000. December quotas traditionally are light except in all-out war, due to the usual Christmas draft vacation.

Only the Army is taking draftees. The Department of Defense announcement that it had forwarded the Army call to Selective Service Headquarters said that the Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force have not asked for inductees under the current build-up of strength and have no plans for taking any.

While the latter services expect to meet their needs through volunteers, the Army will need large numbers of draftees in the planned expansion. Neither the ultimate size of the forces nor the rapidity of the build-up has been decided yet, but President Truman has said that approximately a three-million-man force is necessary.

In an address to a group of educators, Felix Larkin, general counsel of the Department of Defense, said that nearly all "non-

President Truman yesterday named the head of one of the Nation's biggest land grant colleges to direct the Point Four program of technical help to underdeveloped areas abroad.

The appointment went to Dr. Henry Garland Bennett, 64, for the past 22 years president of the Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical College at Stillwater.

Until now the $34,500,000 program has been in charge of Capus M. Waynick, Ambassador to Nicaragua, as acting director. It was first proposed as a "bold new program" in President Truman's inaugural address of January, 1949; the last Congress authorized it only after bitter controversy and hairbreadth votes.

After visiting President Truman yesterday, Bennett said he would start work December 1 "with great faith in the purposes of this program."

Bennett's 11,000-student college has schools of engineering, agriculture and education, all of which are fields in which Point Four will operate. In addition, he has had experience since the war in helping foreign countries develop their agriculture.

Last year he went to Germany on an agricultural survey mission for the Army, and in April this year he acted as adviser to the Ethiopian government in setting up an agricultural training center patterned on American land grant colleges.

A Shriner, an Odd Fellow and a Rotarian, Bennett knows his way in politics and among politicians. Once in his career, in 1943, he got into political trouble; he was indicted for perjury in a controversy over State textbooks, but the indictment was dropped and he was cleared.

In 1913 he married Vera Connell. They have five children.

The Point Four program is now in the State Department, although it works in cooperation with many other Government agencies. In its first few weeks it has launched a rural improvement program in Iran, and has undertaken new projects of technical cooperation in several other countries.

Encouraging Use of New Drug To Treat Dope Addicts Shown

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Encouraging use of a new drug for the treatment of dope addicts was reported yesterday by Public Health Service scientists.

The drug, acetylmehtadol, appears to be better than other drugs used to aid morphine withdrawal, it has a longer effect and can be taken by mouth rather than by injections, they said.

Drs. Havelock Fraser and Harris Isbell of the National Institute of Mental Health at Bethesda reported the development to a meeting of the American Society of Pharmacology and Experimental Therapeutics in Boston.

The new product may also have great military and civilian value as a fast and long-acting painkiller, but must await further tests in this regard, they said. As a pill in first-aid, it could be administered without sterile hypodermic equipment, they pointed out.

Drs. Fraser and Isbell emphasized, however, that the drug causes addiction so its use would have to be carefully regulated.

They reported their experiments on drug addicts at the United States Public Health Service Hospital, Lexington, Ky., to help some 30 patients taper off morphine. Addicts under withdrawal treatment suffer not only from psychological craving but also from the toxic effects of sudden deprivation of morphine.

Twelve or more hours after the last dose of morphine, patients frequently become violently nauseated, chilled, feverish, cramped and extremely nervous. Methadone, another withdrawal drug developed several years ago, greatly reduces the physical sufferings during the withdrawal treatment.

The doctors said that acetylmethadol, contrary to most painkillers which give speediest action by injection, acts six times as quickly when given by mouth. Its lasting action permits use of one daily dose instead of the three or four doses of morphine, they reported.

U. S. Sells Some Of Huge Butter, Cheese Supplies

Uncle Sam is selling some of the huge supplies of butter and cheese bought under the farm price support program.

The November 3 report of the Commodity Credit Corporation shows that about 20 percent of both butter and cheese holdings have been sold in the commercial market.

Sales totaled 9,129,000 pounds of cheese, leaving about 42,700,000 on hand. Butter sales amounted to 28,652,000 pounds, leaving 148,800,000 pounds on hand.

All sales were made at cost to the Government plus storage and handling charges.

CCC officials last night said the Government sales in recent weeks have acted to hold down prices of both items.

Unification Saved Lives, Group Says

By John Ball
Post Reporter

Unification of the Armed Services, which it credits to the Hoover Reorganization Commission, has saved many lives and millions of dollars in Korea, the Citizens Committee for the Hoover Report declared yesterday.

"The Armed Services has no detailed strategic of tactical plans ready when Red troops crossed the thirty-eighth parallel on June 24," a release from Robert L. L. McCormick, committee director, stated.

"Despite such a heavy initial handicap, our Armed Services met the crisis. They met it as a unit. They met it fast."

The release declared that 'time, territory and lives were lost because of poor coordination between the Armed Services in 1941 and 1942. The disaster at Pearl Harbor was the first and worst instance, but it was not the last."

Now, as the result of unification, the situation is different, the committee says. A real Department of Defense was created, it says with the following benefits:

1. "The Joint Chiefs of Staffs were organized under a chairman. They acted as one man to meet the Korean crisis.

2. The Research and Development Board "has devised an evaluation system to survey weapons, such as antiaircraft guns and strategic bombers."

3. "The Munitions Board is active in the purchase of munitions and other supplies of approximately 10 million dollars annually. A catalogue of five million items has been cut in half."

4. "Firm financial controls are being instituted."

5. "The Management Committee is looking for waste. This committee saved the Nation 28 million dollars in the Korean war in the purchase of aviation gas.

Nationalist-Led Guerillas Can Beat Reds In China, Chennault Says; Wife, a U. S. Citizen

The Washington Post
A CITIZEN NOW—Mrs. Chennault smiles up at her husband, Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault, after she was naturalized yesterday

A Nationist-led guerilla war can drive Communists out of China, Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault declared yesterday.

The alternative, said the famed leader of the wartime Flying Tigers, is to commit American manpower to a struggle lasting perhaps centuries that may result in the defeat of this country.

Chennault, who has long been close to the Chiang Kai-shek regime, made the statements to reporters after his pretty 27-year-old Chinese wife was sworn in as a United States citizen. She is Mrs. Anna Chan Chennault a former newspaperwoman and mother of two children.

She was naturalized in District Court by Judge Alexander Holtzoff. Thirty-six other new citizens also took the oath.

"Terrific Mistake"

Chennault declared it would be a "terrific mistake" to send American troops into China. It would also be a mistake, he said, to use Nationalist troops in the Korean struggle.

The time to act in China is now, he said.

"There are only five-million Communists in China today. Give them one or two generations to inculcate the Communist philosophy and there may be a majority of Communists," he added.

He denied that the Chiang government was oppressive.

Formosa Held Peaceful Spot

"In all of Asia today the most peaceful spot is Formosa," he said. "That situation is the result of the liberal laws in being there."

As to a coming struggle in China, he said that Chiang had the manpower and the contacts for an effective guerilla campaign.

"There are 1,500,000 Nationalists—you might call them displaced persons—on Formosa. They come from all over China. They could be used to build up a guerilla force in their home areas which could oust the Communists," he declared.

But the Nationalists should not be sent to Korea, he said. They could effectively defend Formosa as well as conduct the guerilla campaign, said the general.

Chennault is staying with his wife at the Hotel Washington. He is chairman of the board of Civil Air Transport, Inc., with headquarters on Formosa.

Horne Named To Head CD Speaker Group

Brockman Horne, an attorney with the Federal Trade Commission, has been appointed by the District Commissioners as chairman of a speakers bureau for the Department of Civil Defense.

Horne's appointment was announced yesterday by Charles Stofberg, who has been placed in charge of setting up a public information organization for the department.

Horne will head a group of 15 persons who will be available to speak on civil defense measures. They will be briefed for this task by Inspector John E. Fondahl, Civil Defense Director, and will act in a voluntary and unpaid capacity.

Headquarters at Armory

The group will have a headquarters at the National Guard Armory, where the members may be contacted for speaking engagements.

At the same time it was learned that operators of taxicabs in the Washington area will meet Thursday with Civil Defense officials to map plans for volunteer relief work and evacuation in the event of a public emergency.

The meeting is to be held at the Yellow Cab offices, 1801 New York ave. ne., at 7:30 p. m., and is expected to be attended by Inspector Fondahl, Assistant Engineer Commissioner Thomas J. Hayes 3d, and other defense officials concerned with protection of the Washington area.

Allies Shift German Supply Lines

PARIS, Nov. 14 (U.P.). — The United States Army in Germany has started to shift its supply lines and bases to guard against a sudden Communist attack from the east, diplomatic sources said today.

Informants said the operation, which will involve thousands of troops and millions of dollars worth of military equipment, is being conducted on virtually an emergency basis, and will take months to complete.

The plan is to get supply bases and lines well away from the frontiers of Russian-held East Germany and Communist-ruled Czechoslovakia.

Yank Drive Reaches 2 Korean Reservoirs shattered North Korean army is being reorganized under Chinese Communist direction. The Korean Reds, he said, again are showing signs of divisional control.

The First Corps spokesman said the Chinese are using the Koreans as a screen to battle U. N. troops while the Chinese prepare defense lines beyond the present front lines in the northwest.

Yongbyon is Entered

North of the Allies' Chongchon River line, First Cavalry patrols entered the ancient walled city of Yongbyon. The British Commonwealth Twenty-seventh Brigade sent patrols inside Pakchon and advanced a half mile. No Red resistance was encountered in either operation.

East of Yongbyon ROK patrols went into bombed anad fire-razed Tokchon. Elements of the ROK Eighth Division were 3 and 4 miles from the town on two sides.

But U. N. forces ran into fierce Red opposition in bitter fighting for some hill positions on the Chongchon front and to the east.

Aerial support continued despite adverse flying conditions.

While many U. S. Eighth Army troops still shivered in their summer uniforms waiting for supplies to catch up with them, the Marines and the Seventh Division were dressed in Arctic parkas.

There was no opposition at Hagaru, Marine headquarters reported. Civilians told the Leathernecks the main Communist forces evacuated the area three days ago.

Hungry civilians greeted the Leathernecks by begging for food.

Marines brushed aside barriers placed across the road in entering the town. It was the only evidence of resistance left by the badly mauled Chinese 124th Division, which had opposed the Marine advance in a bloody three-day battle last week.

Power Fed to Mukden

Changjin and Pujon reservoirs together form the source for the second most important grid of hydroelectric power plants in Korea. It's lines feed northeast Korean industrial centers and stretch northward to such Manchurian industrial cities as Mukden and Fushun.

Two regiments of the Seventh Division — the Seventeenth and Thirty-first Polar Bears — kicked off in force early Tuesday north of Pungsan for Kapsan, which is 23 air miles south of the Manchurian border town of Hyesanjin.

Sleds and oxcarts were employed to move heavy weapons over the frozen mountain roads.

Not since Attu in the Aleutians campaign of 1942 had United troops endured such extreme cold under combat conditions.

Three hours after the Seventeenth Regiment began its drive north of the Ungi River, it reported that Communist mortar fire was coming from snow covered mountain positions.

Associated Press Correspondent Tom Stone, flying over Seventh Division positions, said the temperature inside the light reconnaissance plane dropped to 21 degrees (fahrenheit) below zero.

A Tenth Corps spokesman said "physical difficulties" over the snow covered, wind-swept mountains were the main obstacles to the regimental advance. Opposition varied from light in many spots to moderate in others.

On the extreme northeast end of the United Nations line, at least seven tank supported North Korean battalions—possibly 5600 troops—counterattacked the Capital Division line on the Orangchon River.

The Reds attempted a double end run around both flanks of the leading Capital regiment, some 90 miles south of the Siberian frontier. United States warships and Marine planes lent fire support to the Republican troops when weather conditions permitted.

Six inches of snow covered the battle lines in this area.

Chinese Are Far to South

An unverified report reaching Tenth Corps headquarters said that far to the south 400 Chinese Communists were operating 15 miles northeast of Yonghung. This is 26 miles northwest of the big allied base at Wonsan.

The newly landed United States Third Division sent the sixty-fifth Puerto Rican regimental combat team into the area.

If true, this is the farthest south the Chinese Communists have yet been reported. Previously they were known to have driven to within 15 miles northwest of Hamhung where they were met by Marines. Yonghung is 30 miles south of Hamhung.

Other Third Division patrols clashed with Reds in "Ambush Alley" near Meujong, 17 miles west of Wonsan, leaving a number of Communist dead.

On the northwest front, where 90,000 Chinese Communist troops are concentrated, Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead reported that an unexpectedly early cold wave practically paralyzed all action on both sides.

Fuel Oil Frozen in Oil Stoves

Temperatures were 6 degrees above zero. A bitterly sharp wind swept over snowy mountain peaks and wailed through pine forested valleys. Fuel oil was frozen in many tent stoves, Whitehead said.

The Eighth Army distributed arctic clothing to front line troops as rapidly as possible under difficult conditions during the lull.

United States Twenty-fourth Division patrols ranged north to the vicinity of Unsan, 6 miles northwest of the Allied base of Anju before drawing fire.

Unsan was the scene of a bloody fight where the United States First Cavalry Division and two South Korean divisions suffered heavy losses in meeting the brunt of a wild Chinese Communist attack more than a fortnight ago.

First Cavalry patrols were reported operating inside the ancient walled town of Yongbyon, 15 air miles northwest of Anju, but the town was still a no man's land.

Enemy May Have Gone

A United States First Corps spokesman said First Cavalry troopers were not due to enter Yongbyon Tuesday, although high ground was captured on three sides of its formidable walls.

There was evidence that the enemy had pulled out of Yongbyon. Other First Cavalry patrols occupied more than 100 Red entrenchments northeast of Won, which is 8 miles east of Yongbyon.

The main body of the South Korean First division, the British Commonwealth 27th Brigade and the U. S. 24th and First Cavalry divisions made no contact with Red forces.

The right flank of the Cavalry Division, however, drew harassing mortar fire as it advanced up the Chingchon River north of Kunu, and secured a hill position 2 miles east of Won, under heavy fire.

Along a 21-mile stretch of road from Kunu east to Tokchon, a United States Second Division patrol scaled a 3000-foot mountain peak, took five prisoners and withdrew.

One regiment of the U. S. Second Division was reported advancing against stubborn Red resistance on the right flank of the U. N. line, east of Tokchon. The South Korean Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Divisions slowly pressed back a two-mile dent in their lines west of Tokchon against opposition reported to be fairly stiff.

U. N. to Debate Reds in Korea; Chinese on Way From Peiping

LAKE SUCCESS, Sov. 14 (AP).—The U. N. Security Council will meet Thursday at 3 p. m., to resume debate on the presence of Chinese Communist troops in Korea. The meeting was called late today by Council President Ales Bebler of Yugoslavia.

The Council will continue its debate on a resolution sponsored by the United States and five other countries demanding the withdrawal of the Chinese Reds. The resolution also assures the Peiping government that its interests along the frontier will be respected.

Informed quarters said the Thursday session would be devoted to speeches by some of the sponsors of the resolution. The United States led off the debate on the resolution last Friday.

Amendment Prepared

India was reported to have prepared an amendment to the six-power resolution, proposing that the Council appeal for a peaceful settlement of Red China's differences with the U. N.

There appears to be no inclination among the delegates to press for immediate action on the withdrawal proposal, which is expected to be vetoed by Russia.

Meanwhile, a special delegation from the Peiping government was reported to have left Communist China by plane today en route to Lake Success.

Chou En-lai, Foreign Minister of the Communist regime, has informed the Council the delegation would not discuss the MacArthur report on the intervention of the Chinese Reds in Korea. It is coming only to press Peiping's charges that the United States had violated China's territory by sending the Seventh fleet to the Strait of Formosa last summer, Chou said.

The U.N. political committee today disregarded Soviet bloc objections and voted to keep the U.N. watchdog commission on the Greek frontier for another year.

The political committee vote was 52 to 6. Yugoslavia and the five Soviet bloc countries cast the opposing votes. The margin made General Assembly approval a certainty when that question comes up for final review.

The committee also approved a report from the U.N. Special Committee on the Balkans, which is the technical name of the watchdog group. That report condemned Albania and Bulgaria on the count of harboring Greek Communist guerillas and thus keeping open the threat of a renewal of the Greek civil war.

UNSCOB has been on the job in Greece since 1947 and the Russians have fought it at every turn. Today the committee beat down a Russian resolution to dissolve UNSCOB. The vote was 51 to 5. Only the Soviet bloc voted for it. Lebanon and Yugoslavia abstained.

In another vote, the committee approved a Greek proposal for the repatriation of those members of the Greek armed forces who were captured by the Greek guerillas and taken into countries north of Greece. It was adopted 53 to 5. The Soviet bloc voted against it and Yugoslavia abstained.

In the most important committee vote, the delegates continued UNSCOB until the sixth General Assembly next year unless UNSCOB itself recommends its dissolution to the Little Assembly.

In the special political committee, India and South Africa renewed a battle that has come before every Assembly since the U. N. was organized.

Mrs. Vijayalakshmi Pandit, Indian Ambassador to the U. S. and sister of India's Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, accused South Africa of perpetuating "racial arrogance" through a policy of total segregation. She charged this violated basic U. N. principles.

South African Delegate T. E. Donges contended the subject is an internal matter and that the U. N. Charter forgids the U. N. from interfering in domestic affairs.

Allies Foil Red Police Bosses in W. Germany

BONN, Germany, Nov. 14 (U.P.). The three-powered Allied High Commission announced today that control of 96,000 local police in the states of western Germany can be centralized to bypass local police committees, many of which are sprinkled heavily with Communists.

The reversal of long-standing Allied policy favoring local control of police was disclosed in a letter from the commission to its representatives in the 11 state capitals in the Bonn republic.

deferable men" in the 19-to-26-year age bracket can expected to be called for military service. Larkin, who heads a manpower survey group for the department, addressed the Association of Land Grant Colleges.

A three-million-man armed force will require virtually all of the physically fit young men reaching draft age each year, just to keep up to required strength, many military personnel experts estimate. During the build-up period, more men will be needed.

Congress must face this problem when it returns. Opinions differ as to changing the draft law to produce the required men. Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee has said he favors raising the top draft age limit to 35 and calling single World War II veterans.

Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey opposed raising the age limit and advocates lowering the intelligence and physical standards for induction. Army chiefs are expected to come up with a plan of their own. A complete overhauling of the draft act is anticipated.

Cyprus Reds Jailed

FAMAGUSTA, Cyprus, Nov. 14 (U.P.).—Eleven Communists, including the acting mayor of Famagusta, were sent to jail today and 24 were fined for staging antiwar demonstrations during the recent visit of a United States Navy fleet to this British Mediterranean island. The mayor received a six-month term.

Schuman Puts Big 'If' in Reply To Proposal for 4-Power Talks

PARIS, Nov. 14 (AP).—France expressed willingness today to come to a four-power conference with Russia, but put an "if" in the reply as big as Korea.

France's position was stated by Foreign Minister Robert Schuman in a speech in the National Assembly a day after Ernest Bevin, British Foreign Secretary, said somewhat the same thing.

Schuman said France would be disposed to share in a conference proposed by Moscow "if" a number of conditions were met. They were:

That Russia agree not merely to discussion of the German problem, but "other crises threatening the peace."

That Russia recognize the "grave action" she has taken in creating in east Germany a "military police having all the appearance of a German national armed force."

That Russia recognize the danger of the "policy of absolute isolation pursued by the U.S.S.R. in the German occupation zone since 1945."

Schuman said the Russian proposal, outlined at the recent Iron Curtain conference in Prague, offered "no basis for useful discussion on Germany.

5 Million Walk Out in 4-Hour Strike in Italy

ROME, Nov. 14 (U.P.).—Five million industrial workers walked off their jobs in a four-hour general strike today to emphasize their demands for wage increases after a 16-hour transportation strike crippled travel in cities throughout Italy.

Transport workers have been agitating for wage increases for several months, asking cost of living boosts. Industrial workers have been negotiating a new wage contract since early this year and called their strike in protest against alleged "stalling" by management.

The transit strikes involved 300,000 workers throughout Italy in addition to the five million industrial workers.

Early reports said workers in the industrial north strongly backed their unions and the general strike there was reported 80 percent effective. The strike in smaller industries throughout the country was reported 50 percent effective.

Transportation systems slowly were returning to normal as buses, trolleys and electric buses began rolling again. Most city workers walked to work today, although the government used army trucks and requisitioned sight-seeing buses to maintain part service.

Nepal King, 3, Weds As Army Mutinies

NEW DELHI, India, Nov. 14 (U.P.).—Nepalese state troops were reported today to have mutinied against the feudal prime minister who deposed King Tribhuvana, and the civil war in the Himalayan kingdom of Nepal appeared near a climax.

The Times of India in a dispatch from Patna in Bihar Province of India said Nepal's war of independence was nearing its end because the prime minister was fast losing the support of his army of famed Gurkha fighting men.

Reports from Allahabad said the prime minister, Maharaja Mohun Shumshere Jung Bahadur Rana, had protested to the Indian government against the use of Indian territory by antipremier Congress forces staging an armed revolt against his regime. India replied that every safeguard was being maintained.

Press dispatches reaching Benares, India, said the prime minister had married his granddaughter to the new 3-year-old King Gyanendra so the infant monarch may be crowned. The child was installed on the throne when King Tribhuvana, his grandfather was deposed.

The Benares report did not give the age of the bride but said the marriage took place because Nepalese royal custom decrees a bachelor king cannot ascend the throne. The marriage ceremony was carried out according to the Hindu style of swyamvara in which the bride chooses her husband by placing a garland of flowers around his neck.

King Tribhuvana and his two queens went on a shopping spree in New Delhi today to replenish the scanty wardrobes with which they fled from the Nepalese capital of Khatmandu Saturday. Cries of "Long Live the King!" were raised among Indian onlookers as the royal party moved from store to store accompanied by an armed police squad.

Dispatches from Rangoon, Burma, said the All-Burma Gurkha League called an extraordinary meeting which condemned the prime minister for deposing Tribhuvana. The league pledged support to the exiled king and called on the Burma government to withhold recognition of the "inhuman Ranas" the hereditary premiers of Nepal.

From Hongkong and Malaya, reports said Gurkha forces serving with the British had registered their resentment of the prime minister's action in deposing Tribhuvana.

"Battle" reports from Raxaul, railhead on the Indian border with Nepal, said Nepal Congress forces seeking to oust the premier had captured Biratnagar, the third biggest city in the kingdom. Congress forces earlier captured Birganj, second most important city in Nepal, and advanced along the road half way to Khatmandu.

Reason a Mystery

Antiaircraft Guns Appear In Canton

HONGKONG, Nov. 14 (AP)—Independent press reports from Red China said today the Communists are setting up antiaircraft batteries at strategic points in Canton, less than 50 miles from the Hongkong border.

The reason for these preparations was not apparent here. Best evidence to date indicates no sizable Red troop concentrations in the area north of Hongkong, and there are no signs of massing operations.

A Canton dispatch to the Hongkong newspaper Wah Kiu Yat Po said the "air defense command" is mounting antiaircraft batteries on roofs of government buildings, around residences of high Red officials and elsewhere in Canton.

Another dispatch described the Cantonese as feeling that "war is at their doorsteps." This scare, Wah Kiu Yat Po said, "was heightened (Monday) by troop movements which failed to escape the eyes of the nervous public. Crack infantry and artillery units of the Kwangtung - Kwangsi column passed through the outskirts of Canton in the past few days, enroute to Indo China for 'further assignments'."

Guard Slays Assassination Plot Leader

CARACAS, Venezuela, Nov. 14 (U.P.).—Gen. Rafael Simon Urbina, 47, alleged leader of the gang that assassinated the head of the Venezuelan government yesterday, was shot to death last night while attempting to escape, it was announced today.

Urbina, said by the government to have been at the head of the group that killed Lieut. Col. Carlos Delgado Chalbaud from ambush, was being transferred to the model prison from Cerro del Obispo jail when he made a break for freedom. Guards shot and killed him, the report said.

Doctors had decided to amputate one of Urbina's legs because gangrene had set in as the result of a bullet wound he suffered during the assassination attack yesterday.

[President Truman, himself the target of an assassination attempt two weeks ago, sent a message to the people of Venezuela yesterday by expressing sympathy over the slaying of President Carlos Delgado Chalbaud.]

58 Bodies Found in Alpine Plane Wreckage

French mountain guides stand around shattered wreckage of Canadian airliner

GRENOBLE, France, Nov. 14 (AP).—Alpine guides found the blasted wreckage of the DC-4 airliner "Canadian Pilgrim" high on Mount Obiou today and reported there was nothing left of the 58 persons aboard "but pieces of bodies."

Most of the 51 passengers were Canadian Holy Year pilgrims, including nine priests, homeward bound from Roman Catholic rites in Rome with the blessing of Pope Pius XII. The passenger list showed one American, Giuseppe Butera, 65, of Brooklyn, N. Y. The crewmen were Canadians. The plane plunged into Mount Obiou in a thick fog late yesterday.

A search party headed by French Gen. Valette Dosia found the bodies and fragments of the plane scattered over a 500-yard area in the snow and mud at the base of a cliff at an altitude of about 6000 feet.

Rome's Ciampino Airport officials said the pilot apparently had changed his flight route to shorten the distance after the start was delayed 4 hours and 15 minutes to give the pilgrims time for their final audience with the Pope.

A Rome Airport communique said the original flight route was from Rome to Bastia, Corsica, to Marseille, Lyon and Paris, but "the place at which the accident occurred makes it clear that, after having passed Bastia, instead of continuing toward Marseille, the pilot pointed directly toward Lyon" and so skirted the Alps more closely.

Capt. Alfred Ohmstead, 28, of Montreal, was the first pilot.

British Draft $1.778-Billion Coal Hike Plan

LONDON, Nov. 14 (NYHT).—Britain's national coal board today announced a 15-year, $1,778,000,000 plan to step up production in that ailing and antiquated industry.

British mines produced 215,125,000 tons of coal last year, and will do little better in 1950. Under the plan announced today, the industry would produce 250 million tons in 1965.

Approval of the plan by the Ministry of Fuel and Power, and the National Consultative Council of the industry is expected.

Coal output has increased since nationalization in 1947, but has fallen behind the demand of home industry operating under a system of full employment and the demand for exports.

As of Nov. 4, the mine labor force had dropped by 22,100 in a year.

The modernization plan aims at getting more coal from fewer pits with fewer men and, it is estimated, should cut the price of coal by 1959. Of Britain's 950 collieries, more than 250 will be reconstructed under the plan. Twenty new collieries and about 50 new drift mines will be opened, and between 350 and 400 pits shut down.

Inquiry in Restrictive Trade Practices Urged

LONDON, Nov. 14 (AP).— A group of British management experts who recently visited America today recommended an investigation of restrictive trade practices in Britain.

The group was sent to the United States under the technical assistance provisions of the Marshall Plan.

Their report, published today, plugged American businessmen for trying to "anticipate and influence events by their decisions."

Williams Wins Governorship; Recount Asked

DETROIT, Nov. 14 (AP).—With the official canvass showing Democratic Gov. G. Mennen Williams reelected as Michigan's chief executive, Republicans tonight called for a recount.

The official canvass of the State's 83 counties showed that Williams won the hotly-contested battle with former Gov. Harry F. Kelly by a margin of 1,152 votes—narrowest margin in the State's history.

Williams (D), 935,152; Kelly (R), 934,000.

Republican headquarters said the Republican party would foot the bill for the state-wide recount, estimated to cost $20,000.

At the same time, Williams issued a "victory" statement in Lansing, pointing out the people of Michigan have "for the first time in 36 years reelected a Democratic governor."

Williams, if he retains the governor's chair, will be a lonesome Democrat in the Michigan State capitol after January 1. For not another Democrat was elected to a major state office in the November 7 election.

From the time the first unofficial complete returns were tabulated, the lead changed hands three times while frantic canvassing boards in the counties straightened out careless mistakes in reported vote totals.

There's no assurance that all the mistakes have been found and corrected either. An official recount will determine that.

Democrats Opposing Benton Race Recount

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 14 (AP). Democrats challenged the right of the State Supreme Court today to act on a Republican demand for a recount of the votes in last week's short term United States Senate seat election.

Attorneys for incumbent Democrat Senator William Benton argued at a hearing that Republican petitions for a recount were presented under an unconstitutional State law. A contest involving a Senate seat, they contended, was one for the United States Senate itself to decide rather than the State Supreme Court.

Benton holds a lead of about 1200 votes over Republican Prescott Bush in preliminary tabulation of the returns.

F. D. R. Letters Dramatize '1st 100 Days'

been meaning, day by day, to telephone you or write you but I have realized that through the papers you know as much or more of what is going on than I myself do. And, too, I have felt sure that you would let me know at once if you had any suggestions or specially important information.

The course of the first week was almost automatically laid out for me because of the banking emergency but in spare moments, with the help of Lewis Douglas, who, by the way, is in many ways the greatest "find" of the administration, I got the Economy bill launched and have followed it up with simple messages on one topic at a time. In the fine temper of the country this plan is proving effective, though, of course, in a period of lack of interest, I would be accused of boring the Congress and the people with too much conversation and too many new ideas.

While things look superficially rosy, I realize well that thus far we have actually given more of deflation than of inflation—the closed banks locked up four billions or more and the economy legislation will take nearly another billion out of Veteran's pay, departmental salaries, etc. It is simply inevitable that we must inflate and though my banker friends may be horrified, I still am seeking an inflation which will not wholly be based on additional government debt.

The Cabinet is a grand success—all of them working harmoniously—and I may add that I am hurling so many problems and so many tasks at their devoted heads that I hope they will not have any physical breakdowns.

I saw our Japanese friend but thought it inadvisable to converse more than formally—he has made the error of talking for quotation to newspaper men indiscriminately and his suggestion to us in regard to where we should keep our own fleet has brought me thousands of protests. I am wondering if he said this in order to ingratiate himself against assassination by the Junker crowd when he gets home.

That letter of Wickham Steed, which I am returning herewith, is interesting but I do not think the world is ready to make the President of the United States the arbiter on matters of war and peace!

I do hope you and Mrs. House will surely come down here before you go to the north shore.

As ever yours,

Lewis W. Douglas, the "find" of the Administration, was then Director of the Budget.

F.D.R.'s suggestion of an inflation which would not increase the Government debt probably referred to measures such as were incorporated in the Thomas "inflation" amendment to the A.A.A. which authorized the issuance of three billion dollars in greenbacks and 50 percent devaluation of the dollar.

The "Japanese friend" was Yosuka Matsuoka, who called on F.D.R. on his way back to Japan from Geneva, where he had led the Japanese delegation which walked out of the League because of its condemnation of the Japanese seizure of Manchuria.

F.D.R. to Breckinridge Long in Rome.

THE WHITE HOUSE,
June 16, 1933

Dear Breck:

I am delighted to have your letter of June 1st and I love your description of the visit to the Palace. You are, however, mistaken in saying that there was one empty carriage. That was the vehicle occupied by Great Caesar's Ghost.

The account of your trip to Signor Mussolini is interesting and I do wish I could have been there with you. There seems no question but that he is really interested in what we are doing and I am much interested and deeply impressed by what he has accomplished and by his evidenced honest purpose of restoring Italy and seeking to prevent general European trouble.

We are in the throes of the veterans legislation row and as I dictate this we are not yet certain whether the Senate will give in to me or will force me to veto the bill. Outside of this little kick-up, literally every single measure which I have proposed has gone through with the single exception of a small bill to allow me to appoint a man from the mainland as Governor of Hawaii. That is not a bad record, is it?

Do write again soon, it is fine to hear from you.

Ever sincerely,

A procession of four coaches with footmen attended Ambassador Long on his visit to the Palace. One carriage was empty and Long compared it to a "spare tire." Not only was Mussolini interested in what F.D.R. was doing, but he praised F.D.R. highly and told Long that F.D.R. was, in his opinion, proceeding correctly and would defeat the Depression by the methods he was following. The somewhat benevolent attitude toward Mussolini expressed by F.D.R. in this letter reflected the hope of many Western statesmen at that time that Mussolini would remain part of the peace front and not line up with Hitler.

The special session of Congress adjourned on June 16th. During the One Hundred Days F.D.R. had secured the following legislation:

Emergency Banking Act.
Economy Act
Agricultural Adjustment Act
National Industrial Recovery Act
Tennessee Valley Authority Act
Civilian Conservation Corps Act
Home Owners Loan Act
Glass-Steagall Banking Act
3.2 Beer Act
Five - hundred - million - dollar Emergency Relief Act
Securities Act
Wagner Employment Exchange Act
Gold Clause Resolution
Emergency Railroad Transportation Act

F.D.R. to James A. Farley in Washington.

THE WHITE HOUSE,
Aug. 17, 1933

Dear Jim:

Thank you for the N.R.A. postage stamp and cover. The honest farmer, who looks like me; the honest business man who looks like Grover T. Whalen; and the honest blacksmith, who looks like Lionel Barrymore, are magnificent. But Oh Heavens what a girl! She is wearing a No. 11 shoe, also a bustle, and if recovery is dependent on women like that I am agin recovery.

In spite of the above, it is a grand stamp, gotten out in record time, and will do worlds of good. Congratulations!

Sincerely,

The N.R.A. was one of the Administration's major moves to stimulate industrial recovery and reemployment. General Hugh S. Johnson had been appointed administrator, and proceeded to make the country N.R.A.-conscious by use of many of the devices that had been developed in the draft and Liberty Loan drives of World War I.

F.D.R. to James A. Farley.

THE WHITE HOUSE
Oct. 10, 1933

Memorandum for Jim Farley:

Frankly, I did not realize that I was responsible for making Jack Sharkey the World's Heavyweight Champion. I did know that I was responsible for Gene Tunney, because when I was in France, right after the war I got him relieved from his Marine Corps company so that he could train for the A.E.F. championship. That was the beginning!

Jack Sharkey's manager, Johnny Buckley, said that it was F.D.R.'s intervention as Assistant Secretary of the Navy that procured Sharkey's release from the service and saved him for the fight game.

THE SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY AND TO THE CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD OF THE R. F. C.

Shiver me Timbers
Over the Stones,
I, too, having a tale
'Bout Jesse Jones.

One morning drear
I had a cold,
And all I needed
Was just more gold.

"O, Jones, O, Jones
Give me some gold,"
And all I got
Was just more cold.

Just then Bill Woodin
Came along,
And joined to mine
His beauteous song.

'O, Jones, O, Jones
Give us some gold,
Or else we'll give you
Back your cold."

As one we sneezed
At Jesse Jones—
He handed out his gold
With groans.

So now we hold
This lovely gold,
We got with groans,
From Jesse Jones.

These lines were probably penned by Louis Howe.

On October 22nd F.D.R. authorized the R.F.C. to buy gold newly mined in the United States at prices to be determined from time to time. It was assumed such purchases of gold would increase its price or, in terms of the dollar, cheapen its value. As the dollar depreciated commodity prices would rise.

By January 31, 1934, the Government was buying gold at $35 an ounce, which meant the dollar had been devalued to 59.06 cents, the figure at which it was finally pegged.

STEVE EARLY

Under the terms of this measure,—which was being brought to the House floor by petition—the Federal Government would have bought up all farm mortgages, issuing in exchange non-interest-bearing Treasury notes. There was much controversy over how much of a currency expansion the measure would have entailed. Its sponsors insisted it would mean the issuance of three billion in greenbacks—its opponents, up to sixteen billions.

F.D.R. to Stephen Early in Washington Radiogram).

ABOARD THE NOURMAHAL,

To McIntyre, Miami. Telephone Early to tell Vice-President and Speaker I not only have never endorsed Frazier or Lemke bills but I am getting very tired of such preposterous stories. When I endorse a bill I always do so by letter or message.

Tell them also that if this type of wild legislation passes the responsibility for wrecking recovery will be squarely on the Congress, and I will not hesitate to say so to the nation in plain language.

ROOSEVELT

As a result of the Administration's pressure, several Congressmen withdrew their signatures from the petition and the measure died in committee. Another measure, the Frazier-Lemke Farm Bankruptcy Act, did pass and was approved by the President. This act made it possible for farmers to reacquire on reasonable terms farms lost through bankruptcy proceedings, or to suspend bankruptcy proceedings.

Excess Profits Tax Opposed urged, some form of excise taxes should be imposed on a temporary basis to raise another billion dollars.

The added revenue provided by the three new taxes would total seven billion dollars. Existing tax rates on an anticipated gross national product in 1951 of 300 billion dollars should yield 55 billions, the CED calculated.

Thus, the total tax revenue of 62 billions under the CED recommendations would provide a pay-as-you-go balance to the anticipated Federal budget in 1951 of 27 billion dollars for nonmilitary expenditures and 35 billions for defense.

As the CED outlined its new corporation levy, terming it a "defense profits tax," it called for a reduction of the basic corporate tax to last year's level of 38 percent. To this would be added a "defense profits tax" amounting to 15 percent of earnings.

The CED's study inveighed against the device of an excess profits tax as being inflationary, discriminatory against new and growing businesses, uncertain in the revenue it would produce and "in direct conflict with the Nation's need for maximum efficiency in production."

At a press conference, J. Cameron Thomson, president of the Northwest Bancorporation and chairmman of a subcommittee which prepared the report, said that the excess profits tax, in setting such a high tax rate on all profits above the prescribed previous base, is bound to create the need for a multitude of exemptions and remissions.

His report pointed out that during the last war, the excess profits tax "was an incentive to extravagant expenditure for travel and advertising and was a national joke and a national scandal. . .

Truman Asks $4 Billion Excess Profits Tax

committee for supporting thus far the pay-as-you-go principle in financing defense costs, Mr. Truman wrote:

"This will not be easy. It will require both wisdom and determination. It is never pleasant to increase taxes, but in such times as these it is absolutely necessary."

President Truman noted that Section 701 of the 4.6 billion dollar emergency tax bill enacted last session proposed taxing profits retroactively to either October 1 or July 1. Mr. Truman recommended the committee use the July 1 retroactive date.

"Business volume and profits rose rapidly after that date as a result of the decision to enlarge our defense program greatly, and profits have increased as a consequence," he said. "These profits should obviously be taxed as part of a sound program of defense taxation."

He hinted at additional taxes to come. Terming the total amount needed ultimately for defense "necessarily uncertain," he said it is nonetheless sure to exceed returns from present taxes plus the profits levy.

"When the 1950 tax program has been completed with the enactment of this (profits) tax, we shall be in a position, early next year, to assess our needs for further tax legislation," he wrote Doughton. "To preserve the integrity of the Government's finances, our revenue system must keep pace with our defense expenditures."

The President called taxation "our strongest weapon in preventing inflation" and said the need for prompt action is urgent.

"Contracts for most military items must be placed long before deliveries can be made, and before payments are made by the Government," he said.

"These contracts, however, result almost immediately in competition for scarce materials and labor, producing expanding incomes and an inflationary threat. We must have increased taxes to maintain the soundness of the dollar."

Sending a copy of the letter to Senate Finance Chairman Walter F. George (D., Ga.), still in Atlanta, he said he was sure he could count on botn chairmen and their committees "for the same kind of fine cooperation and leadership" they showed in handling last session's emergency tax bill.

George's finance Committee had originally considered holding joint hearings with the House group on the profits tax bill to speed action but the joint project recently was abandoned by mutual agreement.

Picketing Phone Strikers Battle Police

The five-day-old telephone strike erupted in picket line violence in Philadelphia yesterday and brought a court injunction against pickets throughout Virginia.

These were the principal developments:

1. In Philadelphia, pickets battled police for 45 minutes in a vain effort to keep phone operators from entering a Bell exchange office. Eleven were arrested and charged with inciting to riot but the worst casualties were several policemen who had coat buttons ripped off.

2. In Richmond, Circuit Court Judge Harold F. Snead issued a statewide injunction against the CIO pickets until the order sought by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. of Virginia, was signed after several phone installations were picketed yesterday. Among the pickets were 18 from Washington. (A similar order was signed by a Federal judge in Minnesota, limited to Minneapolis.

3. Representatives of Western Electric Co., the Bell equipment subsidiary against which the strike is aimed, and of the CIO's striking Communications Workers of America, division 18, met in a two-hour session in New York. But a Federal mediator reported they were still "deadlocked." Union officials, however, reported yesterday that they expected a new company proposal shortly. The dispute is chiefly over wages and length of contract.

4. A vice president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. Long Lines wrote the system's 23,500 employes in 43 states that "if it becomes necessary in maintaining this service to take steps to secure relief for the loyal employes who have remained faithful to their duties, the company will, of course, have to take suitable measures." This apparent hint that the company may hire replacements for operators who von't cross picket lines brought a ıick "anti-labor" charge from the ıion.

5. In Washington, only Western ectric's local headquarters at 11 North Capitol st. and one anch exchange, the Dupont cen- at 14th and R sts. nw., were keted yesterday. The union imed the latter picketing was percent effective" but the npany said that "better than 50 rcent" of its employes crossed exchange picket line to work. e union also said truck drivers the AFL's Teamsters Union obrved the line.

The Philadelphia violence came about when 150 pickets in the strike of 33,000 workers tried to keep phone girls from entering a West Philadelphia exchange. Police intervened and on a third attempt opened a passage for the girls.

The pickets gathered before daybreak around the Trinity exchange. Twenty-five policemen on guard heaved their weight against the pickets at 9 a.m. when the phone girls showed up for work. But the police couldn't budge the picket line.

Reinforcements were called and when 40 were on hand a second effort was made to breach the line. Again it failed. But a third attempt opened a narrow lane and the girls ran through. The 11 arrested pickets were charged with inciting to riot.

The Virginia injunction was issued under the State law against picketing. The C. & P. Telephone Co. in Washington issued a statement on behalf of its sister Virginia concern. (Phones in nearby Virginia areas such as Arlington, Alexandria and Fairfax are operated by the District firm but are legally part of the Virginia subsidiary of the Bell system.

This statement said that "to protect the public's interest and our ability to render adequate, continuous and uninterrupted service, the company asked for an injunction against the picketing of its offices" after the picketing began yesterday. The statement added:

"No labor dispute exists or is pending between the C. & P. Company and the local CWA-CIO union and there is no strike of our employes. . . The picketing of our offices in Richmond in an obvious attempt to disrupt service, is a disgraceful example of a striking union interfering with the right of C. & P. employes to work and making them lose their pay because of a dispute that in no way concerns them."

There are Some Things a Son or Daughter won't tell you!

AW GEE, pop, why can't we get a television set?" You've heard that. But there's more you won't hear. Do you expect a seven-year-old to find words for the deep loneliness he's feeling?

He may complain—"The kids were mean and wouldn't play with me!" Do you expect him to blurt out the truth—that he's really ashamed to be with the gang—that he feels left out because he doesn't see the television shows they see, know the things they know?

You can tell someone about a bruised finger. How can a little girl describe a bruise deep inside? No, your daughter won't ever tell you the humiliation she's felt in begging those precious hours of television from a neighbor.

You give your child's body all the sunshine and fresh air and vitamins you can. How about sunshine for his morale? How about vitamins for his mind? Educators agree—television is all that and more for a growing child.

When television means so much more to a child than entertainment alone, can you deny it to your family any longer?

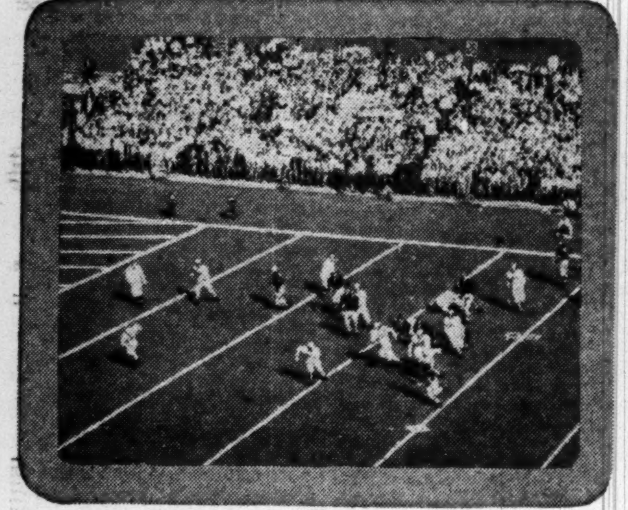
WITHOUT TV YOUR FAMILY misses things like this every day

TELEVISION is moving faster than you think. New programs, new stars make their debut every week. The longer you wait, the more you miss! Here's just a partial list.

A NEW KIND OF NEWS—You can actually see history made right before your eyes. Children in TV homes are more alert, better informed, often get high marks at school.

DRAMA for young and old—The brightest stars of the theatre now perform to millions—bring the great plays of all time to audiences who never before could see them.

CHILD PERFORMERS—Talented singers, dancers, musicians inspire your own children to learn faster, practice longer, willingly cultivate their own talents.



WORLD'S GREATEST athletic events—Fathers and sons follow their favorite teams together from a front row seat. Television helps teach your children sportsmanship

THE WONDERFUL world of make believe—Experts say every child needs it as part of his normal development. And it makes mother's life a lot easier—especially on rainy days.

MUSIC DELUXE! Now you can see as well as hear your favorite orchestras, singers, instrumentalists! Yes, Television gets you right "on stage" seats, no money could buy!

LAUGHTER under your roof—the shared pleasure that binds your family closer. The greatest comedians of the entertainment world are in your living room every night on TV.

Angelo Patri

Noted Behaviorist and Authority on Child Guidance says:

"Youngsters today need television for their morale as much as they need fresh air and sunshine for their health. Social competence is a big force in any child's life. With it he can battle triumphantly for his place among his fellows.

"It is practically impossible for boys and girls to 'hold their own' with friends and schoolmates unless television is available to them. Of course there would be no conflict if parents brought television into the home. It would eliminate a situation that could cause great embarrassment to children. To have television is to be 'cock o' the walk'. Not to have it, well, that is unthinkable."

Frozen Representation

Even though the purpose of the constitutional amendment freezing representation in the Maryland Assembly approved by voters last week was to facilitate a later constitutional convention, the amendment is a dangerous one. For technicalities in the vote on the convention itself make the call far from a surety, despite the popular majority for it. In the past the Legislature has refused to honor such a call unless it was approved by a majority, not of those voting on the constitutional issue but of those participating in any part of the election. Meanwhile the amendment forestalls operation of the constitutional provision for redistricting. Such redistricting would not have affected the inequitable situation of Baltimore and the three largest counties, since their maximum representation in the House of Delegates is fixed by the constitution. But it would have permitted a reshuffling of present seats among medium-sized counties on the basis of population shifts.

The real gimmick is the existing constitutional clause limiting the number of seats allotted any county of more than 55,000 "souls" to six (and gives Baltimore City six legislative districts of six delegates each). The result of this absolute limitation is to confirm rural predominance; Baltimore City and Baltimore, Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties combined have 67.3 percent of the population but only 43.9 percent of the delegates. Since representation in the Senate is already fixed at one per county, the objective in the constitutional convention ought to be to establish automatic division of House of Delegates seats on the basis of population without limit on the number than may go to any particular subdivision. The temporary expedient elected by the voters in freezing present districts must not be allowed to become permanent; and the remedy is for civic groups and individual voters to convince members of the Assembly that the call for a convention is not a matter of politics.

Federal Hide And Seek

A long story of the trials some firms encounter in trying to do business with the Government came to an end the other day in the United States Court of Claims. Back in 1946 the War Assets Administration sold 8100 tire-changing wrench sets to Louis Schneiderman at the Lordstown Ordnance Depot in Warren, Ohio, at the wholesale price of $2 apiece. The purchaser was authorized to remove the wrench sets, but had hauled away only 2500 when the WAA's sales representative stopped delivery. Meanwhile another would-be purchaser had put in an order for tire-changing wrench sets, and the sales representative had belatedly decided that his sale of the entire inventory of this item to the firm had violated the spirit of the Surplus Property Act, which called for the widest possible distribution of surplus property.

After lengthy negotiations Mr. Schneiderman finally accepted a compromise suggested by the general counsel of the WAA in Washington. He was to receive 3552 additional wrench sets and to release the WAA from any further liability. When his agents went to the Lordstown Depot to claim the 3552 wrench sets, however, the WAA again refused to deliver them. The Washington office had sent out a "freeze" order on such deliveries. As Chief Judge Marvin Jones said in delivering the court's opinion:

> This came as a surprise to plaintiffs. They were apparently convinced that someone in the Government was playing hide and seek with them. While protesting earnestly, they exercised admirable restraint in spite of the delay, expense, and aggravating circumstances.
> Perhaps they recalled that the maker of proverbs had said in a time remote that "he that ruleth his own spirit (is better) than he that taketh a city." They, however, did ask why; why had the Government refused to honor the compromise agreement? That question apparently couldn't be answered without another huddle. No one at Lordstown seemed to know.

In any event, the Court of Claims awarded Mr. Schneiderman and his associates $9412—the difference between the $2 contract price for the wrench sets and the $4.65 for which he had sold some of the sets. Incidentally, most of the sets were sold at $4.65 to the tool manufacturer who had made them for the Government for $6.49 each and the court found the wholesale market value of the wrench sets in 1946 to be over $8. Certainly the court's findings are not a happy commentary on governmental business methods.

No More Isolationists

The post-election hunt for isolationists is getting nowhere. It appears that none of the candidates who were denounced as isolationists during the campaign will accept that designation as applying to themselves. Senator Taft had previously said and has now repeated that "only an idiot would be an isolationist today." Senator Millikin, whose candidacy was often said to be hopeless because of his isolationist tendencies, replied to a question by the United States News & World Report, "No, we don't have any isolationism here," meaning in Colorado. Senator-elect Dirksen of Illinois says that his opponents tried to pin an isolationist tag on him but he does not know what it means; that he voted for the Marshall Plan but wants the policy of cooperative defense carefully explored before more money is voted. Senator-elect Nixon of California points out that in his campaign he supported the United States policy in Europe while criticizing the trend of events in Asia. Certainly there is not much here out of which to fashion a bugaboo for Europe, though some continental writers—are they neutralists?—continue to let their imaginations run riot.

The fact is that "isolationist" is meaningful only as a political weapon. In the recent campaigns it was bandied about by the Democrats with a recklessness equal to that of the Republicans in using the "Communist" epithet. It serves only to becloud issues instead of clarifying them. To be sure, there was much demand among the successful Republicans for re-examination of Administration programs, and some indications that expenditures for aid to other countries may be trimmed by the next Congress. This is normal opposition strategy. No one in any responsible public position seems to think that the United States can draw into its shell and let the rest of the world go hang. Senator Taft hit the nail on the head when he said: "How can we be isolationists when we are involved in wars and treaties and every kind of international relationships? It cannot be more than a question of degree, and certainly not of principle." You could not possibly bottle up American power nowadays.

There is another overshadowing fact that has put isolationism in eclipse. Many conservatives who might be indifferent to the abstract idea of fighting aggression in remote places quickly lose their indifference when it becomes a question of resisting aggressive thrusts inspired by the Stalinist hierarchy. If there was any one national issue that stood out in the election, it was resentment against candidates rightly or wrongly supposed to have been too soft in dealing with communism, abroad as well as at home. This strong anti-Communist sentiment is the antithesis of isolationism. In the sphere of foreign affairs it can be given expression only through cooperation with the free world to offset the aggressive schemes launched in Moscow. We suspect that the people will quickly turn against any legislator who may suppose that he has a mandate to abandon the free world to chaos and communism, as they turned against Representative Marcantonio, probably the only real isolationist in the recent election. And no one seems to be more aware of this probability than the successful candidates themselves.

French Dilemma

Mr. Bevin's rejection of the Soviet proposal of a four-power conference on Germany under terms of the Potsdam Agreement—following as it does Secretary Acheson's rejection of the same proposal—places the French in an extremely awkward position. M. Pleven's government is by no means hostile to the idea of such a conference, provided some kind of advance agreement could be reached concerning the agenda. But there precisely is the rub. As Mr. Acheson pointed out at his press conference last week, the only basis on which agreement with the Russians is possible in their present mood, is that of complete capitulation to their demands. Since this, of course, is out of the question, there is no reason to suppose that the proposed conference would be anything better than another forum for the exchange of abuse.

All this, to be sure, is very well known to M. Pleven and Schuman. However, they are also under necessity to consider the painful alternative to an agreement with the Russians concerning the future of Germany. In principle French opinion has accepted with understandable reluctance the necessity of rearming western Germany. But if a way could be found of preserving the freedom and security of western Europe without German rearmament, the French would prefer it. Now the problem is further complicated by an increasingly obvious fact: that the western Germans themselves are by no means enthusiastic about being rearmed. If they are rearmed, they will be expected in the event of Russian aggression to fight for their country. Their country will thus become the battleground, and they have before their eyes the daily object lessons of what it costs to defend a homeland. Moreover, considering the power of the Soviet war machine, the probability that they would be defeated in the opening stages of the war are fairly high. The best the Germans could hope for is to be ultimately "liberated," and many of them, of course, might not be around to enjoy the liberation.

Much the same considerations apply to the French. Doubtless the French statesmen in their desperate dilemma sometimes remind themselves of the famous line from the Iliad, put by Homer into the mouth of Hector. "One omen is always best: to fight for one's country." But this omen is somehow less persuasive than formerly. France, too, could expect to become a battleground. It, too, might hope eventually to be liberated, but the liberation might have to be preceded by the same sort of devastation or worse that has preceded the liberation of Korea.

All this, of course, is well understood by the Russians; and in the diplomatic field they have exploited the west European fears with magnificent skill. Thus the one real check upon Soviet aggression is the probability that further aggressions will provoke a general war in which Russia would be defeated and the Stalinist system destroyed. Yet, despite this danger, of which they cannot be unaware, Russians give every sign of a determination to push matters to an ultimate showdown. The explanation seems to be that the Russian leaders, like so many other imperial despots before them, have set forces in motion that they are no longer able to control. An economy cannot be organized for the sole purpose of warmaking and remain at peace. The Red army cannot be disbanded without depriving Soviet diplomacy of its powers of intimidation. But so enormous a war machine cannot remain forever quiescent: for unless its energies are directed outward, it might one day turn like Frankenstein's monster upon its creators.

Air Support

Tactical air support of ground troops is coming into its own with the Air Force decision to create a separate Tactical Air Command. The deficiencies in close support of the infantry were glaringly apparent at first in Korea—though a better liaison was developed in later fighting—and the Air Force bore a good deal of criticism. Whether or not the new emphasis on tactical air is a direct outgrowth of the Korean experience, the result is to give welcome recognition to the necessity for more air-ground teamwork. The fact that the new Tactical Air Command, under Lieut. Gen. John K. Cannon, will be located at Langley Field, Va., close to the headquarters of the Army Field Forces at Fort Monroe, is a hopeful augury for cooperation.

Actually, the Air Force explains, the neglect of tactical air—neglect, that is, of fighters and fighter-bombers as opposed, say, to long-range strategic bombers—was a question of money and priority. In evaluating its missions the Air Force decided that first priority had to go to the air defense of the United States, and next to the strategic air offensive against an enemy. Tactical air was downgraded after World War II and placed under the Continental Air Command because there were so few fighter groups available and the air defense of the United States had to have call on all of them. Now, with the general military expansion and the immediate enlargement of the Air Force from 48 to 58 groups, there are to be enough planes to elevate tactical air to a major command and furnish additional air support to an increasing ground army.

The question may well be asked whether this explanation is not something of a euphemism, and whether the overstress on strategic bombing which became almost a cult in the Air Force did not have a part in inviting precisely the sort of aggression this country faced in Korea. To be sure, many men in the Air Force were concerned about the imbalance before Korea, and the protest by Gen. Jacob L. Devers on his retirement from the Army Ground Forces in September, 1949, brought some improvement. More and more the balanced forces called for repeatedly by General Bradley—forces which complement each other in carrying out a mission—are being seen as military wisdom. What is to be hoped is that the Air Force and Army will be able to work out a system of joint training and knowledge of each other's problems that will bring as close a working relationship as now prevails between Marine air and Marine ground forces.

Munitions Chief

President Truman is to be commended on his selection of John D. Small as the new chairman of the Munitions Board. Mr. Small had experience with a similar task as deputy director of the old Army-Navy Munitions Board in 1942-1943 and as civilian production administrator following the war, as well as executive experience in business. He has a tough-mindedness that will serve him in good stead. At one time, to be sure, he incurred labor displeasure because of his outspoken attitude on strikes, and he will have to bear in mind that labor cooperation is essential in industrial production. But his vigor will be very useful in furthering the two most important Munitions Board tasks: programming military requirements on industry in advance so as to give realistic guidance to the National Production Authority, and promoting the lagging stockpile without starving industry of raw materials and boosting inflation. It is good to know that the Munitions Board now will have firm direction in its tremendously important functions.

LEAF RAKER

Now in the early fall the old leaf raker
Gathers the last of summer for the burning.
Stooped by age and his occupation
He leans above the ground he loves more
Than any human. He piles the dry leaves
And the small imperfect apples.
The maples' scarlet, the ragged asters,
Oak galls, and nettles and the red pointed
Leaves of the pear tree.
He flings them on the flame and for a moment
He is lost in the blowing thick white billows.
Odors of orchard and garden rise about him,
Pungent with autumn. Twigs snap!
Suddenly the wind shifts past him.
Standing there, blue-clad, silver-polled,
Ruddy in the flame's heat, his arms empty,
He stares into the fire
Remembering other autumns.

Health Risk Insurance

The elections proved the Truman-Ewing share-the-wealth-through-compulsory-health is a dead duck. Smug reactionaries are content to let dead ducks be. They are willing to forget both party platforms promised practical self-help to meet bankrupting health costs.

At long last we have the mathematics necessary to calculate solvent, low cost, noncancelable insurance protection against measurable health risks. These measurable health risks would be childbearing, catastrophic illness and malignant disease.

Theodore Wiprud and Isidore Altman, representing organized medicine and the United States Public Health Service, have provided the key. Their joint research analysis of the complete costs of acute hospitalized illness and childbearing appears in our AMA Journal. These medical economics experts found: The total charges for the average hospitalized illness are $285. This is broken down into $131 for hospital charges, or about $17.70 per day for 7.4 days of average stay; $109 in physician charges, $15 for anesthesia, $6 for radiology, $10 for special nursing and $14 for other costs. The hospital number of the Journal of the AMA reports that in 1949 there were 15,450,311 admissions to general hospitals, including 2,744,268 births. This places the top cost of indemnifying hospitalized childbearing, catastrophic illness and malignant disease at $4,403,338,635.

If Congress would underwrite a national health security insurance reserve to this amount, most of its cost could be recaptured: Let there be bipartisan agreement as to the economic groups who shall pay fair-cost health insurance premiums in whole or in part. Properly certified underprivileged would have premiums paid by tax subsidy. They would have the same rights of free choice and unrestricted personal veto as those who are self sufficient.

Costs could be further reduced by Congress agreeing to a nonprofit-incentive principle. Tax experts would calculate the average recapture in income tax per fee for personal service. That deduction would be made at the time the doctor presented his bill to the insurance reserve fund. That reduced amount would represent take-home pay for the doctor that would not be subject to further taxation.

This arrangement is necessary to provide competitive incentive for maximal production by the best qualified. Under present principles of taxation there is no incentive for top rank physicians and surgeons to produce maximal high quality services. The harder they labor the less their take home pay. This is an unfair discouragement of superior skill and efficient production. To guarantee a fair take home pay per unit of personal service will stimulate healthy competition and reward deserving merit.

Third Force

By the advent of the Chinese Communists on the North Korean battlefront, international crisis has become commonplace. This living in a crisis situation is the natural product of the deadlock between the West and the Soviet Union. It would be hard to conceive of a possibility of breaking the deadlock through the initiative of either Washington or Moscow. Such a genuine move would be considered "appeasement" if taken and thus so-called "prestige" would be lost.

In order to break the deadlock, a group of noncommitted countries now existing in Asia—India, Indonesia, Burma and the Arab countries—and the new Germany should act as the variables in the present bloc alignment and maintain a derivative relationship vis-a-vis the Western powers and the Soviet Union. Those countries will be neutral. Neutrality must not mean indifference. Stands will be taken on the merits of the issues, and through the influence of such bloc of nations, tension, I believe, will be reduced to a minimum and thus our capacity to think will be greatly enhanced.

All peoples working sincerely for a constructive peace must try to understand and give every moral assistance to those who are promoting a third force which will act as a balancer and a channel of international intercourse between the two existing camps.

Temporary White House

Apropos of the recent shooting affray at Blair House, I have been wondering if the residence on the Stimson estate on Woodley rd. might not be easily made habitable as a temporary "White House" until the real "White House" renovation is completed.

If the Stimson residence is in sufficiently good condition to be so utilized, it would seem to be an ideal temporary home for the President. It is a lovely place, quiet and peaceful, and with sufficient grounds to allow of considerable exercise within the iron fence that could be erected around the property. In fact, I should think it would give a greater sense of freedom to the entire presidential entourage as compared with the "cooped up" Blair House.

Then, too, the guard's "pill boxes" could be erected inside the iron fence and not so easily accessible to any and every one.

The Stimson estate would seem to make any attack less probable. I have noticed no reference to it as a temporary "White House," and have wondered if it could not be so utilized.

Mis-Guided Tour

Recently I spent a few days in our National Capital. It was my first visit to Washington, and, like most Americans, I anticipated a visit to this great city with much eagerness. I was in the city as a delegate to a conference and having very little time for sightseeing, took a Grey Line tour in order to get an over-all view of the city.

I was subjected to two hours of the most vitriolic criticism of our Government by the lecturer, together with a great deal of very cheap wit. Here we were, surrounded by the magnificent buildings of Washington, by this atmosphere of dignity and power, and we were forced to listen to this little man tell how stupid our Government is, how wasteful, and how worthless. Nothing that was said in this lecture could do anything but tear down one's respect for the United States.

I have been in the capitals of many foreign countries and have been on sightseeing tours with native guides, and I have never heard anything that remotely resembled this type of harangue.

Arlington Sewers

On behalf of Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin and as its chairman, I want to thank you for the interest and cooperation which you have shown in supporting the commission's program for pollution abatement, particularly the bond issue for sewage treatment facilities for Arlington County.

The news items and editorial comment which you included in your recent issues brought the subject clearly before the people in Arlington County, as witnessed by their affirmative vote by a majority of approximately 3 to 1.

The members of this commission are greatly appreciative of your action in this matter and wish to extend to you their heartfelt thanks and congratulations for a job well done. It is my hope that as similar needs for the dissemination of pollution abatement information become necessary, you will provide the people of this area with the same good service.

End To The Marshall Plan

I read Andre Visson's article of November 12 with rising anger. Mr. Visson, who is undoubtedly a close student of European sentiment, can perhaps enlighten me on many things I would like to know. And lest there be any suspicion that I am talking through my hat, I just want to state for the record that I studied in both French and Italian universities, lived there many years and speak both languages, I believe, almost as well as I do English. I have business in Europe which takes me there at least twice a year and I just returned from there three months ago.

Can Mr. Visson tell me why we should go on with the Marshall Plan when the patient is so well on the road to recovery? Here at home, if a man recovers, we don't keep on pumping blood into his carcass. The record shows that for the last few months we are importing more than we are exporting which means that we are buying more from Europe than they are buying from us, that we are giving them more money for supplies than they can possibly spend in this country for goods which we need in this country, especially for defense.

The need for dollars arises because dollars are needed to pay for goods which can be procured in this country. If the shoe is now on the other foot, why should we continue to supply the Marshall Plan countries with dollars which they cannot spend here?

Why is there such general anti-American feeling in Italy and why is the wish so often expressed in Italy that we should leave them alone and take our Marshall Plan somewhere else? Why do Italian workers strike and refuse to work on orders of materials destined for this country?

Why have the French members of the coal commission in Geneva and Essen used pressure to force up the price of coke so that German steel prices are far above the world market?

Why is it that while we are sucking the American taxpayer dry, threatening industry with allocation and price control and eventually rationing, why is it then that Europeans let their own materials which we need for defense go blithely skyward so that the burden on us is increased? And to make things worse, they blandly countenance a system whereby prices for good customers are low, for fair customers a little higher, and for Americans all that the market will bear.

There are many things I could ask but I have a sneaking suspicion that one factor of the conservative vote in these last elections can be set down to the fact that we are just a bit tired of being taken for suckers.

New Strategy Against War

By Malvina Lindsay

'Researching' Man

SOME TOYNBEE of several centuries hence may write: "In the year 1950 science began its epochal shift from robot to man." He will be referring to the start of the Ford Foundation's great research project directed to human conduct—including the waging of war.

Even today this project, financed by the world's largest public trust, seems a miracle to those who have so long been crying in the wilderness that science should cease its obsession with the machine and do more to make man master of himself. It also seems a miracle to those who fought so futilely during the last five years to have social sciences included definitely in the National Science Foundation established by law last March.

Moreover, it seems a miracle to the writer of this column. On January 23, 1947, the column bore this title, "Science in Wonderland." It related the research going on to help man see and hear farther into space, to travel to the moon, to conquer his physical diseases, to build more deadly weapons to annihilate enemies on a mass scale. Yet, it pointed out, legislators were appalled at the idea of financing research to help man become more civilized, to conquer the beast within himself. That was a "ticklish," even "dangerous" field.

THE COLUMN concluded:

"It must be a dream—or a nightmare. Surely I shall wake presently to find thousands of men of science and millions of dollars being mobilized to study and control man's emotional infantilism, to probe and cure his sickness of soul . . .

"There will surely be foundations working on a Manhattan project scale to immunize society from the social misfits, psychopathic personalities, race and class baiters, political fanatics that are perilous human sparks in a world full of mental dynamite . . .

"I shall—I must find great social experiments under way to find out how people in an increasingly crowded world can live harmoniously and productively together . . ."

Now, believe it or not, that seems to be beginning to happen! And on a truly big scale. For this, one big score for private enterprise should be marked up. What Congress was abashed at doing, it had the imagination, the vision, the mental daring to attempt.

It is estimated the Ford Foundation under its newly appointed president, Paul G. Hoffmann, will be spending at least 50 million dollars a year for research to get at the roots of war and to enhance the dignity and power of the individual. Just what problems of peace and human conduct will be tackled first has not yet been decided. According to Mr. Hoffman, the first step will be the appointment of a group of specialists in various fields to "identify the problems for which we can find answers."

NATURALLY there is wide speculation among social scientists, also the public, as to which of man's manifold worries, frustrations, fears, aspirations, this new project will try to put under the microscope. Will these include the tensions between workers and their employers; the passions—and words, that ignite wars; the backgrounds that breed jingoes, demagogues, men on horseback, tyrants; the virus that produces the authoritarian man of right or left? And how will the foundation explore ways by which human freedoms throughout the world can be strengthened and democratic institutions made flexible and dynamic enough to survive?

No doubt plenty of suggestions will flow in. Mail already is heavy, showing that the American fixation on material things is not so universal as is generally believed.

At last then we are beginning to have balance. And the Ford Foundation may initiate a more general trend toward exploration of the intangible. Coming on its heels was the announcement of an anonymous gift of one million dollars to Yale University to advance research in the humanities through aid to younger scholars and teachers.

All of this prompts this column to have another dream. Here it is: "Surely, I shall wake presently to find scholarships and fellowships by the thousands being offered throughout the world to young people who show special talent for human understanding, who give promise of providing the great reservoirs of sane, mature, community leadership, as teachers, preachers, politicians, social workers, artists, writers.

"Surely I shall wake to find the promising boy or girl in the social sciences and the humanities being given as much attention as the prodigy in the laboratory or the machine shop. Surely I shall wake to find sweeping over the world a great wave of recognition and appreciation of the psychic mystery that is man himself!"

Election Tactics

What lessons can we learn from the 1950 elections? Among others, we have learned that McCarthyism pays off. That in the existing state of public apprehension and credulity, it is politically profitable to impugn the integrity of loyal public officers, to assassinate the character of honorable men, and that it is political suicide to come to their defense.

We have learned that the way to get ahead politically in these times is to conduct your campaign for office on the lowest possible level, to appeal to public doubts and fears, to raise the false cry of "socialism" and "subversion," to undermine popular confidence in the Government of the United States, to play politics with the national security. A few unscrupulous men may gain high office by these contemptible tactics, but the moral quality of our public life has suffered a damaging blow.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

Taft, Byrd And Truman

THERE IS a great deal of wishful thinking about the effect of the recent elections on American foreign policy. For the plain fact is that the Eighty-second Congress will be ruled by a conservative coalition which is entirely capable of gutting from stem to stern the policy erected so painfully during the last five years.

To prove this, it is only necessary to examine the records of the men who will dominate the new Congress, and then to consider the way in which the elections have sharply increased their power. The conservative majority will obviously be very largely dominated by Senator Robert A. Taft for the Republicans, and by Senator Harry F. Byrd and two or three others for the conservative Southern Democrats.

Senator Taft voted for ECA, but he also voted against the Atlantic Pact, against Military Aid Program appropriations, against Point Four, and in favor of the great majority of attempts to gut foreign aid. Senator Taft remarked at his recent press conference that "only an idiot would be an isolationist today." and he emanated an air of sweet reason. But in view of the above record, one can only ask just how the Senator would describe his foreign policy position in the past and just how sweetly reasonable he can be expected to be in the future. As for Senator Byrd, he has topped Taft's record by voting also against Greek-Turkish aid, and in 1948, against the ECA authorization.

MOREOVER, the Taft-Byrd school of foreign policy has been much more decisively strengthened than most people realize. Among the Republicans, there has been one loss to the school—Donnell in Missouri—but there have been five new recruits, Dirksen of Illinois, Bennett of Utah, Welker of Idaho and almost certainly Butler of Maryland and Case of South Dakota, who beat internationalist Chan Gurney in the primaries.

The conservative Democrats in the Byrd category picked up two recruits in the primaries, Smith of North Carolina and Smathers of Florida. If Smith and Smathers follow Byrd on foreign policy issues, as they certainly will on domestic policy, this will mean a net gain of six votes in the Senate for the Taft-Byrd foreign policy. In the last Congress, to take a few examples, such a switch in the balance of power would have meant passage of the Taft-sponsored reduction in foreign aid, the defeat of Point Four and the passage of the crippling Wherry foreign aid amendment.

But it is not enough merely to count noses. However, it may be interpreted elsewhere, the election is dead certain to be interpreted by professional politicians as a sweeping triumph for resurgent isolationism. Thus Taft is pretty certain to find recruits among those Republicans who have heretofore followed the lead of Senator Arthur Vandenberg.

The pressure will be very heavy on Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, for example, who has usually voted with Vandenberg, to switch to the cause which triumphed almost everywhere else in the Middle West. And for precisely the same reason, middle-of-the road Southerners like Stennis or Long or Ellender are now much more likely to side with Byrd than with world-minded men like Alabama's Lister Hill and John Sparkman.

THIS situation has come at a time, moreover, when the whole tempo of the American foreign military and economic effort must be rapidly increased, if there is to be any hope at all of containing Soviet imperialism without war. Consider one example—the Gray report, released this week, calling for continued ECA aid to western Europe for at least three years, and an ambitious and wholly new economic program for Asia. It is hardly necessary to ask what a Congress ruled by a Taft-Byrd coalition would do to such a proposal.

At the very best, the situation can only be dealt with at all by endless wrangling between the Administration and Congress, accompanied by hair-breadth escapes from disaster and the kind of bitter mutual recrimination which frightens our friends and delights our enemies. And the situation cannot really be dealt with at all, unless President Truman can bring himself to rise once and for all above party.

Truman must make a determined effort to reestablish the bipartisan front which has been sundered. He must appoint officials who can at least talk sensibly to his enemies in Congress. He must appoint a commission, or find some other device to scotch the vicious McCarthy nonsense, which has destroyed public confidence in American policy. He must undertake a program of appeasing the Southern Democrats, whatever the political cost in the North, in order to insure their allegiance on foreign policy issues.

In short, he must be prepared to do all sorts of things which will certainly be exceedingly distasteful to him. And even if he does these things, the American constitutional system will be subjected to an almost intolerable strain over the next two years.

Military, Not Economic Aid, To Be Stressed, Bissell Says

Urgent economic recovery needs in western Europe have now been met, and for the future, "in general, we must confine our aid to help nations meet their obligations under the North Atlantic Treaty," the deputy administrator of the Marshall Plan declared yesterday.

The official, Richard M. Bissell, told the annual meeting of the Association of Land Grant Colleges and Universities that, with some exceptions, future American economic aid would be limited to that needed to prevent regression from recovery levels now achieved, as the European nations begin new rearmament programs.

In addition, Bissell said, he anticipated the necessity of giving further economic aid to Western Germany, Italy, Austria and Greece for the remaining 1½ years of the life of the Marshall Plan. In those countries, he said, there is still "unfinished recovery business."

The amount of straight economic aid needed—not including the furnishing of finished military equipment—would be much less than that required in the Marshall Plan, he said.

New Program of Aid Ordered by Truman

By The Associated Press

President Truman has ordered Government agencies to begin at once blueprinting a new multi-billion dollar foreign aid program for presentation to Congress in January.

Word of the White House move came out as lawmakers indicated that a searching review of foreign aid programs, military as well as economic, will have high priority in the new Congress. A collision of the plans seemed likely.

Administration officials said, however, that they expect Republican leaders in Congress will be consulted in shaping the final recommendations because the President desires a bipartisan approach to the whole undertaking.

Senators Ferguson (R., Mich.) and Green (D., R. I.) said yesterday that they want full information on the scope and adequacy of future programs. Senator Taft (R., Ohio) had called earlier for a thorough review of the military aid program for western Europe.

W. Averell Harriman, Mr. Truman's special advisor on foreign affairs, has been given the task of coordinating the foreign aid planning work. The proposals for new legislation and new money will be aimed at carrying out the objectives of the Gray report on U. S. foreign economic policy which Mr. Truman released Sunday. The report from former Army Secretary Gordon Gray, recommended a long-range sequel to the Marshall Plan.

Eisenhower's Future

By Marquis Childs

Commander And Candidate

FROM both the military and the political perspective a great deal may depend in the next year and a half on one man's future. That man is Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Childs

Representatives of the 12 North Atlantic Pact nations meeting in London now will have something to say about the future. The 12 deputies have as their No. 1 problem the effort to reconcile the position of France on German military units in a North Atlantic defense force with the position of the United States and the other powers.

The French have shown no intention of yielding and the effort at reconciliation may fail. Failure would mean that no supreme commander could be appointed for a unified force. Instead the Atlantic powers would accept an alternative already worked out.

A chief of staff would be appointed whose powers would be considerably less than those of supreme commander. Obviously, Eisenhower would not be asked to take the lesser position.

The final result is not likely to be known before December 10. Around December 1 the chairman of America's Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, is going to London for a top-level North Atlantic Conference. That conference will be charged with coordinating military, and diplomatic decisions and coming up with a specific program.

The western European chief of staff would probably also—on the urging of the other North Atlantic nations—be an American. Most frequently mentioned is Lieut. Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, Deputy Chief of Staff of the United States Army.

BUT if it becomes possible to name a supreme commander for a Western force, including German units, the assignment will go to Eisenhower. He has told his former associates in the Pentagon that he will accept the post if and when he is asked to. As he has several times said publicly, he will respond to any call of duty in a time of national emergency whether it means serving in uniform or out.

There has already been discussion as to whether assignment in Europe as supreme commander would altogether remove Eisenhower from the political picture at home. Gov. Thomas E. Dewey has designated Eisenhower as his candidate for the Republican nomination for 1952.

The question of General Ike's potential future in politics has not been overlooked by the Pentagon planner. It is a reality that cannot be ignored.

Most military men are decidedly doubtful about a general—any general—in the White House. Their feeling is that this might make the task of rearmament and defense more difficult. It would be necessary for the general, as President, to lean over backward in order to convince Congress and the public that he was not unduly favoring the military.

There would always be the suspicion that a general in the White House would be inclined to militarize civilian functions of government. In a minor and comparatively unimportant way it has been possible to see this reaction in the civilian office of Secretary of Defense which is now occupied by Gen. George C. Marshall.

BUT their own feelings to one side, top military men recognize the position Eisenhower occupies in the country. It is conceivable that in 1952 millions of his fellow citizens would regard him as the only American who could unify the country and get essential action to maintain America's role of responsibility in the world. Eisenhower would stand above the political battle that seems certain to be waged between Senator Robert A. Taft on the one hand and President Truman on the other.

As viewed from the Pentagon, Eisenhower's assignment in Europe would not necessarily preclude the possibility of his becoming a presidential candidate. It is now contemplated that he would be asked to take the position of supreme commander for one year only—the vital first year of organization.

The post of supreme commander in this first year would be at least as much diplomatic as military. One of Eisenhower's great contributions in World War II was to iron out clashing viewpoints and get teamwork out of an international staff and army.

Appointed for one year, Eisenhower would return to the United States in February or March of 1952. As his friends see it, he would return with greater stature, having carried out a difficult task put on him by his Commander-in-Chief.

All this, of course, is on the hopeful assumption that a general world conflict will have been avoided. In the event of World War III, there will be no question of Eisenhower's future. He becomes again a fighting man and one of the strategists on whom this Nation's very survival will depend.

Promotions Restricted; Job Rights Set by Civil Service

order of the above. Persons in C Group will be the first to go, then in B, and up through the various A sub-group, Veterans in each group will be given preference over non-veterans.

Reemployment Rights: They will be restricted to discourage Federal workers from hopping from one agency to another. As a general rule, reemployment rights will be guaranteed only to those career employes who are transferred to critical defense jobs.

First, the Budget Bureau must publish a list of defense agencies and activities to which reemployment rights could be guaranteed to empolyes who transfer to them. In addition, the Civil Service Commission is compiling a "national list of critical positions" in those agencies and activities to guide agencies in administering reemployment rights.

This is the way the system will work: Say the Army wants an Agriculture scientist for a critical assignment. If Agriculture agrees to rehire him in his present job when the emergency is over that will settle the matter. If it refuses, the Army can appeal to Civil Service and it can order him transferred with reemployment rights. Incidentally, this reemployment provision isn't retroactive to cover those career people who have already transferred to defense jobs. However, Civil Service hopes to take care of them in a later order.

Indefinite Promotions: A career employe who is given an indefinite grade promotion won't lose his permanent status in his agency. He will continue to be protected against demotion, suspension, and firing as he is now, and he will continue under the Civil Service retirement system. In other words; he will have nothing to lose by taking an indefinite promotion, and he may gain by it if his promotion is made permanent at a later date.

Indefinite: That's the word Civil Service will use instead of temporary. The commission will use the word "Indefinite" to cover appointments, transfers, grade promotions, and so forth.

Loss: The Government yesterday lost an outstanding official, Bernard L. Gladieux, administrative assistant to the Commerce Secretary. Gladieux will join the Ford Foundation as general assistant to its director, Paul Hoffman, former ECA administrator.

Gladieux helped to set up several of the World War II emergency agencies and his experience was invaluable to Uncle Sam at this time. However, the Ford Foundation plans extensive studies on Federal problems which presents a great opportunity to the Commerce official. Gladieux's headquarters probably will be in New York.

Police Thwart New Arson Effort In Puerto Rico

SAN JUAN, P. R., Nov. 14 (U.P.). Puerto Rican Nationalists today attempted to burn the United States postoffice, telephone building and a private hospital in the town of Utuado, according to police reports.

It was the second Nationalist arson attempt since the abortive revolt two weeks ago.

Juan Esteban Nunez, an admitted Nationalist, was arrested after pouring kerosene and gasoline and setting it afire in the telephone building, adjoining the post office. The flames already had begun to catch when police arived. They were quickly extinguished.

Last Friday, Nationalists attempted to burn down the United States postoffice in the town of Canovanas.

The latest outbreak came as a five-man education and labor subcommittee from the United States House of Representatives, here to investigate conditions in the island, was welcomed at a joint session of the insular Legislature.

Md. Assembly to Study 1000 Bills

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 13 (AP)—The newly elected Legislature will have a big job on its hands at the session starting January 3.

During the 90-day meeting it will decide such matters as:

What to do about the calling of a constitutional convention the voters showed they wanted by a referendum at Tuesday's election.

Whether a seventh congressional district should be carved out of one or more of the existing six districts, or whether to make the seventh congressman to which Maryland is entieled a Representative-at-large.

The question of a State bonus for every Maryland veteran of World War II.

And it is a sure bet that bills to revise the method of assessing properties for tax purposes will come before the 1951 General Assembly. Some legislators will press for further easing of the sales tax.

Measures designed to revise the maximum truck weight laws may also be introduced.

It is expected that 1000 or more pieces of legislation will be submitted before adjournment. Many will affect every man, woman and child in Maryland.

The census results made Maryland entitled to a new Congressman. It is up to the Legislature to decide how he is to be elected. The consensus is that it will turn down any proposal to change the existing six congressional districts. Instead, observers believe, it will provide for the election of a Congressman-at-large.

The last time a revision in congressional boundaries was made was in 1901, when Cecil County was taken from the Second District, and placed in the first.

Veterans' bonus proposals have cropped up at each of the last two sessions of the General Assembly. They failed each time.

Both the Democratic and Republican election campaign platforms pledged support for legislation to place the question before the electorate at a referendum at the next general election. Such enabling legislation is almost sure of passage in the 1951 General Assembly.

Friday's "lame duck" session of the General Assembly shaved seven million dollars a year from sales tax proceeds by lifting the exemption ceiling from 14 cents to 50 cents, effective December 1, and removing sales of all foods, soaps, baby powders, etc., from the terms of the tax.

Friday's "lame duck" session of the General Assembly shaved seven million dollars a year from sales tax preceeds by lifting the exemption ceiling from 14 cents to 50 cents, effective December 1, and removing sales of all foods, soaps, baby powders, etc., from the terms of the tax.

However, Republican Governor-elect McKeldin has promised he will seek to exempt fuels for home heating and cooking, and children's clothing from the sales tax. Bills embodying his program are likely to be introduced during the session. Some of the legislators have pet sales tax exemption proposals of their own, and are planning to try to get the Legislature to pass them.

Of paramount interest to the legislators, themselves, is who will be the men who will take over the top jobs in the new Legislature.

Senator Byrnes (D., Baltimore), Senate president for the last four years, did not run for another term. Majority Leader Sothoron (D., Prince Georges) was defeated in the general election.

Speaker Sybert (D., Howard) of the House and House Minority Leader Ramsburg (R., Frederick) will be in the new Senate.

Three men have been mentioned prominently as possibilities for president of the Senate—Sybert and Senators Turnbull (D., Baltimore) and Della (D., Baltimore). One of the three also may get the floor leadership. Senate Minority Leader Kimble (R., Allegany) will be back for another term and is almost certain to continue as Republican whip.

House Majority Leader Pumphrey (D., Prince Georges) would like to be the new Speaker of the House. Among the others considered in the running for the job are delegates Boone (D., Baltimore), Luber (D., Baltimore), Wilkinson (D., Prince Georges), Robinson (D., Baltimore) and Lankford (D., Anne Arundel). Any one of that group, as well as some others, is a possibility for floor leader.

Delegate Lofstrand (R., Montgomery) may be the one to succeed Ramsburg as House minority leader.

Also ripe for the plucking are the chairmanships of the top committees—sweet political plums to the legislators.

Only 12 of the 29 incumbent Senators and 54 of the Delegates of the old Legislature will be back for new terms. The others were defeated or were not candidates.

Just about the same Democratic-Republican division as has held for the last four years will prevail in the new General Assembly.

There will be 88 Democrats and 35 Republicans in the House—compared with the present 87 and 36 split.

The Democrats will have a sure 18 Senators and the Republicans elected at least 10. The twenty-ninth seat, now held by Senator Fraley (R., Garrett) is still in doubt.

Polio Is Increasing, Dr. Van Riper Says

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (U.P.).—Infantile paralysis is increasing and is becoming more unpredictable, the medical director of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis said yesterday.

Dr. Hart E. Van Riper, in a speech before a conference of the foundation's women's State advisers, said the incidence of polio had increased two and one-half times in the past 10 years and in the past four years had lost its epidemic pattern.

McKeldin's Majority Proves Astounding—to McKeldin

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

The story is often told of an acrobat who would go through a series of increasingly difficult stunts, then solemnly assure his audience:

"My next trick will be absolutely impossible."

Theodore Roosevelt McKeldin took a lot of spills on his way to the Governship of Maryland.

But last week when he saw his majority mount to the highest ever given any candidate for Governor, McKeldin exclaimed with great glee: "Tremendous! Why, it's impossible!"

'Lord Ha' Mercy'

For Republican McKeldin had scored the record in a State with a 3-to-1 registered majority of Democrats.

When told his majority had gone past 92,000 (it went even higher), McKeldin exclaimed, "92,000 majority, Lord ha' mercy, isn't that wonderful! Ninety-two thousand!"

He kept repeating the figures, with uninhibited delight. He recalls that President Hoover carried the State by 77,000 in the GOP landslide of 1928. He recalls, too, the previous record vote given a Governor of Maryland, the 66,000 peak majority to Democrat Albert C. Ritchie.

Displays School Ring

With the same pleasure he showed off the high school class ring, the school letter and the brand new diploma just given him, by Baltimore's Southern High School. McKeldin had quit school at the end of the eighth grade to go to work, and although he went on through night school to a law degree, he boasted "now I'm a graduate at last." The school had given him a complete set of grades—lowest, 93.

As a lawyer, McKeldin for some time has had his office on the eighteenth floor of Baltimore's skyscraping Matheson Building. His desk is at the northeast corner of the building and gives McKeldin a view of the south and east reaches of the city.

He says the view is an inspiration: "From here you see the very basis for the greatness of Baltimore, its magnificent harbor. There are the shipyards where we floated three ships a day during the war. Over there on Sparrows Point are the steel plants, the largest on the Eastern Seaboard. Over that way (pointing farther north) is Johns Hopkins.

"Here is where the great masses of our people in East Baltimore and South Baltimore live and it's a challenge to you to see that their conditions in life are improved."

THEODORE R. McKELDIN
. . . He did the impossible

Lane's Office Nearby

Just down the hall, same floor, southeast corner of the building, is the Baltimore office of the Governor. Early this year, McKeldin and one of his young assistants, Sam Culotta, strolled into the executive office. With great solemnity they looked the place over and discussed such changes as how the furniture would be moved, how pictures would be shifted. They kept the gag going a couple of minutes, then had a laugh all around.

But with the campaign over, it was to Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., that McKeldin turned first to get squared away on his first major official chore. This is preparation of the State budget. It must be placed in the hands of the General Assembly 30 days after McKeldin takes over from Lane, jr., that McKeldin turned ary 10.

The two men held their first conference in Lane's office in Annapolis last week while the General Assembly was writing their nearly identical campaign pledges of sales tax relief into a law that takes effect December 1.

Storm Clouds Sighted

While the Lane-McKeldin meeting was friendly, and the sales tax session harmonious, predictions were sprouting in Democratic ranks that McKeldin would find his life difficult with a solidly-controlled Democratic Legisature and with revenues cut in the face of increased budget demands.

Easing of the sales tax will cut State revenue by about seven million dollars a year; the levy is now producing at the rate of 32 million dollars a year. And a number of items of State expense are subject to automatic increases.

McKeldin takes little stock in the idea that a Republican Governor and Democratic Legislature can't work together. As Mayor of Baltimore (1943 to 1947) he said "I worked perfectly with a Democratic city council."

"If we do a good job, our people have shown that they are not partisans before they are Marylanders and Americans. When they think a change is needed, they make it. They turn freely from one party to another. We have to give them an administration that will justify that attitude."

McKeldin's political strong points include oratory and a vast zeal for meeting and mixing with people. In the campaign he rarely went to his own political headquarters. He kept on the go, averaging only three to four hours sleep a night. He has an apparent phobia against insulating himself from the public.

McKeldin is 6 feet 2½ inches tall, weighs about 200 pounds, has blue eyes, big features and brown hair. He had no time for athletics.

His major forms of exercise include racing after voters, shaking their hands, public speaking, stretching out in his office chair—and telephoning. This exercise comes when he picks up the telephone with his left hand, holds it in position, then reaches his right arm around behind his head, grabs the telephone receiver with his right hand and plants it firmly against his left ear. Try it. It's exercise!

McKeldin was born in South Baltimore November 20, 1900. His father was James Alfred McKeldin, son of a Scotch-Irish immigrant from Belfast. His mother, Dora, had been brought to this country as a baby by her parents, fleeing Germany in protest against militarism.

Father Was Policeman

McKeldin's father was a stonecutter and a city policeman and an admirer of the first President Roosevelt. He died in 1922. McKeldin's mother taught him his one hobby, work, and encouraged him to go to night schools after he started work, as office boy in a bank at 14. She died in 1925.

Her death came three months before he graduated with the gold honor key from the University of Maryland Law School. Upon graduation he received a basket of flowers. His sister explained their mother had left a $5 gold piece for the graduation flowers.

Soon after going into law practice, he became secretary to Mayor William Broening of Baltimore, for whom McKeldin had campaigned. He was the mayor's secretary four years. McKeldin made his own first try to win the mayor's [illegible] in 1939 and lost. But he won a four-year term in 1943.

Between campaigns his stock in trade has been private law practice and public speaking. He is married and has two children, Theodore, jr., 13, a student in Gilman Country School, and Clara Whitney McKeldin, 11, a student in Roland Park Country School. Mrs. McKeldin is the former Miss Honolulu Clair Menzer.

He tried in 1942 and 1946 to win the Governorship, losing both times.

In 1942, he recalls, "nobody would run, and I considered it a joke that I should aspire to that high office. But the campaign was goin by default, and I considered that a disgrace. So I waited until 11:55 p. m. (with a midnight deadline) and then when no one else filed, I did."

And Governor-elect McKeldin thought again and murmured, "Lord ha' mercy; ninety-two thousand."

State Dept. Invites Probe Into Red Law

By The Associated Press

The State Department said yesterday it would welcome a congressional investigation of the way it is administering the new internal security law.

That was the department's answer to demands by Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.), Representative Keating (R., N. Y.) and other lawmakers for an inquiry to determine whether a deliberate attempt is being made to sabotage the Communist control measure.

A statement read to reporters by Press Officer Michael McDermott declared the department "has been conscientously administering the law." It added:

"If the Congress feels that an investigation of the administration of the new act is in order, the department welcomes such a development."

The law, enacted over President Truman's veto just before Congress recessed, bars from the United States Communists and present or former member of any "totalitarian" group.

The State Department has applied the ban, with some exceptions, to former Nazis and Fascists, and also to member of the Spanish Falangist parties.

Congressional critics have contended that the department is apparently trying to undermine the law by too strict an interpretation of the act.

McDermott said the criticism is aimed at the idea that American consuls in Germany have been directed to discontinue processing of applications for passport visas, which are in effect entry permits. He declared, however, that the processing of the applications "has not for one moment been stopped in Germany, nor have any instructions to American consuls in Germany or any other country been sent by the department to cease processing applications."

What has been done, McDermott said, was to issue an order October 11 suspending the validity of outstanding visas to make sure that the holders were qualified to come to this country under terms of the new legislation.

The purpose he said, was to permit re-examination abroad, rather that at ports of entry into the United States.

On Capitol Hill, meanwhile, Senator Ferguson also came up with a proposal that the Senate Judiciary Committee take over investigation of un-American activities as a regular part of its job.

He noted that a judiciary subcommittee on immigration, headed by Senator McCarran (D., Nev.), already has done some work in this field and said it is equipped to go into it on a full-scale basis.

In effect, Ferguson proposed that the subcommittee become a senate counterpart of the House un-American Activities Committee. Some other Republicans have talked about setting up such a group in the next Congress.

Other Kidnap Plans Laid to Dr. Campbell

ALBUQUERQUE, Nov. 14 (AP).—Discovery of more unused extortion notes led investigators to believe today Dr. Nancy Campbell may have planned other kidnapings besides the abduction of 9-year-old Linda Stamm.

The discovery of two more notes was reported by State Police Chief Joe Roach and Assistant District Attorney Robert J. Fox. They were in addition to one left for the Stamm family and two others, addressed to Santa Fe residents and found when Dr. Campbell was arrested.

The woman doctor was arrested Saturday night as she was picking up a $20,000 ransom. The child, step-daughter of a well-to-do contractor, was found unharmed shortly afterwards. The little girl had been gone from her home in Santa Fe since Friday.

The officers said one note came from luggage in a Las Vegas, N. Mex., hotel room which she occupied last week. It bore, they said, the notation: "Vegas 1, El Paso 2, Albuquerque 2."

Fox and Roach said that note and another discovered in Dr. Campbell's Santa Fe office had blanks for insertion of names, ransom amounts and contact details. They expressed the belief she was considering possible kidnap victims in those cities.

The woman's lawyer, former State Supreme Court Justice A. L. Zinn, said temporary insanity would be the defense plea against the Stamm kidnaping charge.

State and Federal agents turned to a trail of unpaid bills and threatened eviction in probing recent activities of the Yale-trained, 43-year-old physician.

No Gas Leak Found at Con necticut Ave. Blast Site

The District Fire Marshal said yesterday his office and the gas company have "gone about as far as we can," but without success, in investigating an explosion Friday at the Kenmore Apartments, 5415 Connecticut ave.

Marshal Raymond C. Roberts said he and gas company officials yesterday tested the building's gas pipeline raceway, but found no leaks.

"All we can do now is look for other possibilities," Roberts said.

Deputy Fire Marshal Roy Warfield, said no progress had been made toward a solution of another mysterious explosion at 5340 Ames st. ne. the same day. Investigators are still searching for George Green, 36, the only person injured in the explosion. He was released after being treated for burns at Gallinger Hospital.

No one was hurt in the Kenmore explosion, which damaged six floors of the apartment house.

Labor Vote For Sen. Taft Puzzles Green

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, conceded at the White House yesterday that "a lot of labor men" voted for Senator Taft (R., Ohio), on November 7.

He said he was baffled by just what happened, but was going to have a study made to clear up the mystery.

Green headed an AFL delegation which called on President Truman to protest against the curtailment of postal services. On his way out, reporters asked him to comment on the recent election—specifically, on the talk that organized labor had been "overzealous" in the campaign.

Green noted that labor had not been overzealous in 1948 in Minnesota, Illinois and West Virginia. He was referring to the defeat that year of Senators Ball, Brooks and Revercomb Asked about election last week of Senator Taft, who had been marked as Enemy No. 1 by labor, the veteran AFL leader said:

"We just can't understand what it was that caused Taft to win in Ohio. It's just beyond our understanding.

"There was some under-the-surface cause that we can't analyze or understand."

Green said that the vote in Ohio was a big one, and added that it was clear that "a lot of labor men voted for Taft."

The Taft camp, after an analysis of the Senator's tremendous majority, estimated that he got the votes of 40 percent of the working people.

The AFL delegation which called at the White House yesterday included, besides Green, W. C. Doherty, president, National Association of Letter Carriers; Leo E. George, president, National Federation of Post Office Carriers, and William M. Thomas, president, National Transportation Association.

They presented to Mr. Truman a resolution adopted by the 69th convention of the AFL asking for the early rescinding of two orders by Postmaster General Donaldson, one expanding the duties of unskilled employes to include duties previously performed only by skilled employes paid at a higher rate, and the other eliminating or curtailing postal services.

CHEVROLET TRUCKS
with Chevrolet's Hypoid Rear Axle

Single-Unit Housing
Here's maximum strength . . . longer trouble-free service! Chevrolet rear axle housings are formed into tubular steel beams; no bolts or rivets to work loose.

Full-Size inspection plates
Easy-to-remove, one-piece inspection plate saves time and labor . . . provides full view of rear axle gears when removed.

Splined Axle-to-Hub connection
Splines—not bolts—deliver the driving power evenly—without strain—on all heavy-duty models. Loose axle shaft bolts and costly grease leaks are eliminated.

Straddle-Mounted Pinion
Gears last longer . . . pinion gear is supported at each end by ball bearings to keep it in mesh. Adjustable thrust pad prevents distortion of ring gear when starting heavy-duty trucks with heavy loads.

4-Pinion Differential
Load and shock of heavy loads are distributed over four pinions instead of two in all Chevrolet medium- and heavy-duty trucks—for longer axle life and greater strength.

Chevrolet trucks are engineered to "take it" on the roughest, the toughest jobs. The single-unit design housing and splined axle-to-hub connection of Chevrolet's hypoid heavy-duty rear axle mean strength and stamina found in no other truck rear axle in Chevrolet's class. Combine that with other outstanding Chevrolet features . . . powerful Valve-in-Head engines, Synchro-Mesh transmissions, channel-type frames with alligator-jaw cross members! Wilson Wins Medal for 1950 Business Contribution

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14 (U.P.). Charles E. Wilson, president of General Motors, said tonight that workers should share in the profits of advancing technology and that wage boosts given them on that basis should not bring price increases.

Wilson called "full acceptance" by GM and the CIO United Auto Workers that higher living standards depend on technological advancements, mechanical power and better machines, "a very significant step ahead" in labor-management relations.

"It is full recognition," Wilson said, "that productivity is the key to progress."

The GM chief spoke over a Nation-wide hook-up as he accepted the gold medal for the greatest contribution to American business in 1950, presented by the Alumni Society of the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce of the University of Pennseylvania.

Wilson said GM's five year agreements were based upon "experience and logic and principle rather than on pressure, propaganda and force." He said the agreements recognized that:

"1. It is logical, fair and reasonable to maintain the purchasing power of an hour's work in terms of goods an dservices the employe must purchase in his daily living.

"2. All Americans look forward to improving their condition, and that workmen along with all other citizens are entitled to share in the advancing prosperity of the Nation. We call this the annual improvement factor.

"3. Machines are the friend of man, and that to produce more with the same amount of human effort is a sound economic and social objective that discards the false philosophy of made work, featherbedding and the erroneous idea that machines take the bread out of workmen's mouths.

"4. Insecurity worries people and that it was reasonable for General Motors to assist employes in acquiring life insurance, sickness and accident benefits, hospitalization and surgical coverage and pensions to protect them to the degree possible against the individual hazards of life.

"5. Cooperation and peace rather than industrial strife and strikes will best promote the prosperity of employes, the company and all of the people and even strengthen the Nation."

The Community Chest Drive is 40% short of its 1951 goal. It's up to you to give more. Give where you work.

Pittsburgh Newspaper Mailers' Strike Ends

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 14 (AP).—Pittsburgh's three daily newspapers tonight signed new contracts with mailing-room workers and truck drivers, ending a six-week strike.

The employes were given a 10-cent hourly increase effective upon return to work and will receive another 3½ cents an hour nine months later.

The mailers now earn $78.13 for a 37½ hour week. The drivers get $81 for a 40-hour week.

The strike began October 1 when the 200 members of the mailer's union walked out after refusing a 10-cent hourly raise. The papers attempted to continue publication but were stymied when drivers refused to handle papers not bundled by union workers. Contract of the drivers expired three days after the strike started.

Publishers of the struck Post-Gazette, Sun-Telegraph and Press called a conference after the settlement with officials of eight unions representing some 2,500

The parley is to discuss resumption of publication which is expected to take several days. Nonstriking unions told publishers when employes were furloughed that they would expect pay for their members during the walkout.

A joint statement issued by publishers and mailers and drivers said the contracts will run to April 1, 1952, an 18-month period.

GI in Korea 4 Months Wounded

CORPL. ARTHUR ALLYN
. . . His name on casualty list

Army Corp. Arthur P. Allyn, 19, area infantryman in the Korean fighting front since July, was wounded in the leg on October 6, the Department of Defense announced.

Corporal Allyn enlisted at 17 with permission of his parents, M/Sergt. and Mrs. Paul E. Allyn, of 319 B South Post, Fort Myer. He was sent to Japan from Fort Dix, N. J., in 1948. He was with the Twenty-fourth Division.

A short letter arrived last week, Sergeant Allyn said, in which Corporal Allyn wrote "he was getting along fine, and hoped to be out of the hospital in Tokyo soon."

Sergeant Allyn is a radio operator with headquarters in the Pentagon.

State Rent Rule Favored By Maybank

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 14 (U.P.).—Chairman Burnet R. Maybank of the Senate Banking Committee said today he will oppose any further Federal rent controls because such controls should be left to the States.

Maybank said he intended to insist upon State supremacy at the next Congress as far as rent control is concerned. He added no rent control bill would be before his committee at the "lame duck" session starting November 27. The present Federal Rent Control Law expires December 31.

He said the need for a "service cutback" in home construction has been "proven beyond dispute."

He said the cutback is necessary to the defense effort and from a housing viewpoint, "since the economic demand for new housing cannot long survive inflation in the cost of construction materials."

The South Carolina Democrat, whose committe handles all housing legislation, made the statement in a speech at the convention of the National Asociation of Real Estate Boards.

Maybank told the realtors, who have opposed many Government housing programs, that "no one can deny that the real estate industry has benefited greatly from Government activity in housing and home financing, even from the very programs it opposed."

Truck Blast Wrecks Heart Of Coal Town

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 14 (AP).—An explosive-laden truck blew up and wrecked the heart of a small mining settlement near here today after colliding with an auto.

The explosion flattened a small store and seven homes, ripped roofs, walls and porches from a dozen other houses and knocked still other buildings from their foundations.

No trace could be found of James W. Smiley, 28, of Wheeler, Pa., the driver of the truck.

The truck, owned by William A. Baughman, Connellsville, Pa., was carrying dynamite from the Liberty Powder Co., Mount Braddock, Pa., to the Jimmy mine of Jimmy's Coal Co., Newtown, Pa.

The car collided with an auto driven by Leroy Minor, Waynesburg, Pa., in a nameless mine settlement of about 150 residents on the outskirts of Poland mines, about 4 miles southwest of here.

The explosion let go 15 to 20 minutes after the wreck. It ripped up about 100 feet of track on the Monongahela Railroad alongside State route 88, bit a hole 50 feet in diameter and 20 feet deep in the road. Flattened every tree in a radius of 200 yards, and broke windows in Greensboro, four miles away.

It also tossed a two-ton mine scale from the Bobtown tipple about 35 feet into the Monongahela River.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

THAT WAS quite a whirl Lou Boudreau gave it for 10 years as a major league ball player before those basketball ankles finally caught up with him and called for a change of managers by the new Cleveland owners.

POVICH

When Shortstop Boudreau could no longer make those super-plays or come close to leading the league in hitting again, the Indians' bosses became disenchanted with Manager Boudreau. Firing him was simple. They simply put his name on the waiver list and sat back to permit him to become a free agent by due process.

But whatever his failures as a manager might have been—one pennant for Cleveland in nine seasons—Boudreau left a mark as a ball player for others to shoot at. When finally, in November of 1948, he was voted the American League's most valuable player, it was merely the official disclosure of the worst-kept secret in baseball since 1839 when it was first established that you can't steal first base.

Basketball, and the pounding his feet on the hardwood floors for the University of Illinois in the mid-thirties, shortened Boudreau's playing career by at least five years, he reckons.

IT WAS THE jealousy of other schools in the Big Ten that hastened Boudreau's plunge into baseball, incidentally. There were charges that the Cleveland club which had liked his infielding for the Illini varsity, was paying Boudreau's mother $100 a month until he graduated in return for her signature on a baseball contract. Boudreau promptly admitted them, was declared ineligible, and joined Cleveland's Buffalo farm team.

American League clubs got their first good look at Boudreau in 1940 when the Indians installed him as their regular shortstop. Bucky Harris noted the lad's exaggerated batting crouch, put him down as a sucker for a fast ball and told his pitchers "I'll fine any guy fifty bucks who throws that Boudreau a curve."

Harris' pitchers obeyed orders and never did get Boudreau out. On the next trip to Cleveland, Harris did a turn-about, telling his pitchers, "If you throw Boudreau anything except curves, it's a $50 fine." He was recognizing the problem of how to pitch to the fellow, who looked as if he couldn't hit a curve ball, yet could.

It was in the infield, though, that Boudreau was the most spectacular. He was the American League's answer to Marty Marion, the National League's Mr. Shortstop, and in an era when there was a raging debate about the respective merits of Marion and the great Honus Wagner, Boudreau moved up to make it a three-way argument.

PREPARING BOUDREAU for a ball game was a task for the late Lefty Weisman, trainer of the Indians. He had to tape his ankles daily against a break-down. Boudreau wasn't fast, didn't get a good jump on the ball and had small hands—items, any one of which should have disqualified him. All he could do was make the darndest plays and win ball games.

Even when Manager Boudreau himself lost patience with Shortstop Boudreau in 1949 and moved him to third base to permit the younger Ike Boone to take over he did all right until his legs failed him. On Boudreau's first day on the job as a third baseman, Phil Rizzuto laid down a bunt and was astonished to hear the ball arrive at first base ahead of his last stride.

"Geez," said Rizzuto to Mickey Vernon, who was then playing first base for the Indians. "Nobody ever threw me out before on a bunt that was as good as that one."

The first sign that Boudreau was slowing up was early in 1949 when he was hit three times by pitched balls in the first three weeks of the season. His reflexes were dulled, and he lacked the old agility to get out of the way of inside pitches.

CLEVELAND BASEBALL writers maintained at first that there was a campaign on to dust Boudreau off, and expressed their outrage in print. The ultimate was witnessed one day when Larry Doby was at bat and Boudreau was squatting in the next-hitter's circle, 20 feet away. Ray Scarborough let loose a wild pitch far behind Doby's back and it narrowly missed Boudreau.

"Omigod," yelled a Boudreau worshipper in the press box, "they're throwing at Lou even before he gets to bat."

Boudreau's greatest triumph was in 1948, of course, when he took the Indians to the pennant and then beat the Braves in the World Series. But winning that pennant in a play-off game with the Red Sox was undoubtedly his finest production.

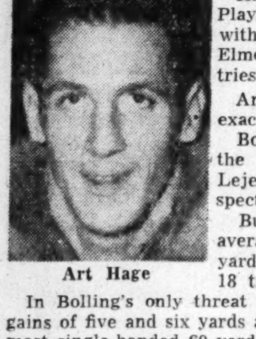
That was the day Boudreau went up to the plate four times against Boston pitching, hit two home runs and two singles to win the ball game all by himself. It was a wonderful demonstration of master minding from a batting crouch.

Marines Couldn't Stop Him

Bolling Has Own Berwanger—Rugged 142-Pounder Art Hage

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Remember Chicago University's great Jay Berwanger? Even though the weak Maroon never was above .500 when he played, they couldn't keep Berwanger off the All-American team in both 1934 and 1935.



Art Hage

Bolling Air Force Base here thinks its football team has a Berwanger of its own—Back Art Hage.

Hage's remarkable in several respects. Playing with a team that has only one man with college experience, the 24-year-old from Elmont, L. I., has amassed 742 yards in 121 tries. That's better than a six-yard average.

And the bone-crushing linebucker weighs exactly 142 pounds!

Bolling was outclassed hopelessly against the more experienced Quantico and Camp Lejeune Marines and lost, 55-0 and 55-7, respectively.

But did Hage lose? Against Quantico he averaged four yards a try in going for 79 yards in 20 attempts. He made 75 yards in 18 tries against Lejeune.

In Bolling's only threat of the day, Hage chewed off consistent gains of five and six yards against the burly Quantico line on an almost single-handed 60 yard march.

When Quantico's 200-pounders hit him, they were the ones who seemed to bounce off.

Head Coach Maurice (Mush) Dubofsky, the old Georgetowner, is realy enthusiastic about Hage. Says Mush, "He has that extra drive and spark that mark a great athlete. I'll say Hage could make any college team in the country."

Referee Johnny Bozek says, "Without question, I consider Hage the best back in these parts. What that kid would do if he had some teammates with some of his own ability!"

The Marines are the only ones wrecking Bolling. Cherry Point also beat the fly boys, 14-0. Otherwise, Bolling has beaten Selfridge Air ase, 40-6; Anacostia. 19-6; Aberdeen, 31-21, and Eglin Air Base, 6-0.

Against Aberdeen, Hage had a big day even for him. He tallied four touchdowns and gained 157 yards in 14 tries.

Bolling closes its season this Saturday at Norfolk Naval Base. Dubofsky doesn't know whether or not he will have his big little man next year.

But Mush says, "He will be playing on some team wherever he is. The boy's a great competitor.

REPEAT PERFORMANCE—About a year ago, Dr. Willard H. Garman, 5136 10th rd., North Arlington, Va., won The Washington Post's football contest. Yesterday Garman won again, having a perfect score for last week's contest games. He is shown with his two children, Shirley, 11, and Warren, 9. Garman will see Wisconsin play at Penn Saturday

Perfect Entry

Garman Wins Contest, 2d Year in Row

DR. WILLARD H. GARMAN, Department of Agriculture administrator, defied the law of averages a couple of ways by winning The Washington Post's football contest for the second straight year.

For last Saturday's games, Dr. Garman submitted a perfect entry. He called the turn correctly on 20 games and picked a Maryland-North Carolina tie.

His score was a bit off, 21-21 while the game wound up 7-7, but three runnersup who also picked 20 winners all chose Maryland.

They were Lucille T. De-Forge, 2409 Southern ave., se.; John T. Taylor, 2001 Maryland ave., ne., and William E. Straw, sr., 503 E. Westmoreland rd., Falls Church, Va.

A grand toal of 375 had only one wrong.

Last year, for the first time in his life, Dr. Garman entered a contest—the first of the season—and won. The Arlingtonian, (he lives at 5136 10th rd., N. picked 18 of 20 that time.

Toughest game to pick Saturday was the upset of Southern Methodist by Texas A. & M. Dr. Garman had the inside track on that one—he taught for two years at A. & M.

"I know the Southwest Conference and was aware of the upset possibility," he explained. The 38-year-old soil expert knows quite a bit about the Southern and Southeastern Conferences, too. He also taught at Clemson and Georgia.

Dr. and Mrs. Garman have two children, Shirley Brooks, 11, and Warren Webb, 9. Oddity is that the double winner's children have the same birthday, July 31.

Virginia Mentioned For Gator Bowl

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 14 (AP)—The Gator Bowl selection committee today released a list of nine college football teams it is considering for the New Year's Day game.

Continuing their standing as probables for the contest are Clemson, Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, Washington and Lee, Southern Methodist, Nebraska, Wyoming and Miami.

Psychologist Dr. Tracy Shifts Talent to Hockey

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP). The fifth place New York Rangers, stumbling along in the National Hockey League, got some help today—but not in the form of players.

Manager Frank Boucher of the Rangers announced that Dr. David F. Tracy, psychologist and hypnotist, will talk with the players before and during tomorrow night's game with the Boston Bruins.

Dr. Tracy, who went South with the St. Louis Browns last spring, has watched the Rangers perform this year and believes he can help the club snap out of its slump.

Dr. Tracy will talk with the players tomorow afternoon as a group and also to some individually.

Big Game Thursday

Chatlin, Star of Anacostia, May Miss Western Clash

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Anacostia may have lost its best player, Bob Chatlin, in the midst of its uphill fight to qualify for the interhigh football championship game a week from Friday night November 24, at Griffith Stadium.

Chatlin, rated by many coaches as the best back in the league, bruised his right hand in the Chamberlin game a week ago, and aggravated it Saturday against Wilson. The hand is mending slowly, and he will probably have to sit out Thursday's crucial game against Western at Western.

On the Western game hinges Anacostia's hopes. If Anacostia loses, Eastern wins the Group I title. If Anacostia wins, it moves into a tie with idle Eastern for the Group I championship.

The tie would be played off early next week at a site which has not yet been determined. Eastern or Anacostia, whichever wins, in case of a playoff, would have only a few days rest before taking on well rested McKinley Tech, Group II champ, in the big November 24 title game, sponsored by The Washington Post, Touchdown Club and Board of Education.

Meanwhile, Norman Nelson, assistant superintendent of schools may be brought in today to decide on the site and time of an Eastern-Anacostia playoff game, if it is necessary.

Eastern Principal John P. Collins wants the playoff to take place at Eastern. That's where the two teams played to a 12-12 tie earlier in the season.

Thursday's game is only a replay of that earlier game and should be played under the same conditions, Collins contends.

Mrs. Opal Corkery, Anacostia principal, says the Eastern-Anacostia game hasn't been played at Anacostia in years, and now would be a good time to take it there. For the last couple of years, it was held at Central and Eastern.

Hard One to Pick

Can Illinois Stop Ohio State Attack?

OHIO STATE VS. ILLINOIS—Can the Illini stop the Buckeyes' overpowering attack?

These teams meet Saturday in one of the most important games of the season in the Big Ten Conference. Each has lost only once this season. Illinois was nosed out by Wisconsin, 7-6, early in the season. Ohio State dropped its opener to Southern Methodist, 32-27.

The Ohio State-Illinois game will be among the harder ones to figure in The Washington Post's Pick-The-Winners Contest this week.

The contest winner will receive two tickets to the Duke-North Carolina game at Chapel Hill, N. C., November 25, as well as first-class, round-trip transportation for two persons.

THE CONTEST each week will include 20 major college games. The contestant will select the winner (or tie) in each of these games. There will also be a twenty-first game for which the contestant must give the "Probable Score," to be considered by the contest judges only in case two or more persons tie on the first 20 games.

All entries must be in the hands of the Football Contest Editor not later than 9 p. m. Friday of each week. Entries should be left at the Service Counter in the lobby of The Washington Post Bldg., 1337 E St. N. W.

The person submitting the most accurate entry each week shall be declared the winner. In case of ties, all persons sharing in the tie will receive duplicate awards.

The decisions of the judges will be final.

Entries submitted must be legible, with the selections listed in the order they are announced in The Washington Post.

Entries may be handwritten or typewritten. However, carbon copies and mimeographed copies or copies made by any other duplicating machine will NOT be accepted. You may submit as many entries as you wish.

Old 'Sleeper' Play Scores Decisive Goal

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

The Washington Caps lost a close, seesaw basketball game to the lowly New York Knickerbockers, 92-87, before 1350 spectators last night at Uline Arena.

The lead changed hands 11 times, but except for a brief period in the third quarter, the Caps never held a substantial lead.

The loss was the fifth NBA setback for the Caps against two wins. It moved them into the cellar of the Eastern Division, a spot tenanted by the Knicks before last night's game. The Knicks have won two and lost four.

Scolarri Sinks Long One

Washington was behind only 89-86 with three minutes to play after Freddie Scolari, Caps high point man with 16 points, netted a thrilling 50-footer, one-handed, on the run.

The Knicks promptly broke the back of Washington's bid for a last-minute victory by pulling the hoary sleeper play. A length of the floor pass to Dick McGuire for an easy basket undid Scolari's heroics and took the steam out of the Washington offensive.

The New Yorkers led, 23-16, at the end of the first quarter. Midway in the second quarter the Caps grabbed the lead for the first time, 28-27, on Earl Lloyd's long set shot. The lead changed hands seven more times during the quarter, but New York managed a 48-47 halftime margin.

Caps Ahead by 58-51

Washington seemed determined to win in the third quarter. Scolari, Kudelka, and Maughan put the locals ahead, 58-51, their biggest margin, shortly after the period started.

The Caps soon got their lumps, however, by a gent appropriately named Ray Lumpp who led a basket barrage which gave New York a 71-68 third quarter lead.

In the fourth quarter, New York remained in control of the game all the way except for Scolari's threat in the last minutes.

Today Coach Bones McKinney will don a uniform for the first time this year as Washington travels to Providence, R. I., to play the Boston Celtics. Last night was Earl Lloyd's last game and Bones will attempt to fill the yawning gap caused by Lloyd's induction into the Army tomorrow morning.

Philly Beats Bullets, Arizin Scores 24

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14 (AP). The Philadelphia Warriors scored their third successive home victory in the National Basketball Association by beating the Baltimore Bullets tonight, 84-72.

After the Bullets had taken an 18-10 lead by making six of their first seven shots, the Warriors caught them just before the end of the first quarter and led the remainder of the way.

Paul Arizin led the Wariors with 24 points, making eight of 14 shots from the floor.

Indianapolis Drubs Syracuse, 108-78

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 14 (AP). The Indianapolis Olympians sank 45 field goals tonight as they drubbed the Syracuse Nationals in a National Basketball Association game, 108-78. Alex Groza's relief man, Bob Lavoy, scored 21 points, two more than Groza. The Nats made 32 of 38 free throws but could not hit from the field.

Chisox Are Willing To Pay Boudreau $45,000 as Sub

CHICAGO, Nov. 14 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox are willing to pay $45,000 to Lou Boudreau as a reserve infielder or pinch hitter in 1951.

That's the word from Frank Lane, general manager of the White Sox, who is anxious to claim Boudreau, deposed player-manager of the Cleveland Indians, on waivers.

Under the waiver rule, Lane may have a chance to dicker with Boudreau at three-fourths of his Cleveland salary, which was a reported $60,000.

"If Boudreau consents, we think he will be worth $45,000 to us next year," said Lane. "If he is waived out of the majors he will get his unconditional release. But at least, we want to huddle with him in regards to playing for us at three-fourths his Cleveland salary."

Coach Gives Pep Talk To Wrong Team—They Win

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 14 (AP).—Coach Bud Robinson of the West Phoenix High School Thunderbirds told this story to the weekly meeting of the Phoenix Press Box Association:

After his team worked out the kinks by jogging around the field at Yuma last Friday night, Bud took them into the gym for a brief rest before the game.

The lads lay down on the floor in the darkened building. Robinson went to the other end to talk with Yuma Coach Jim Moore.

Suddenly he heard his team getting a lively pep talk.

Bud wondered who his unsolicited helper was, so he and Moore walked back to the club. They discovered the chap who had the Phoenix team primed for the tough game was Ed Albrick, Yuma's assistant coach, who thought he had been talking to his own gridders.

P. S.—West Phoenix won, 13-12.

Bell Tells Baltimore To Let Watner Alone

BALTIMORE, Nov. 14 (AP).—Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League advised Baltimore today to let Abe Watner alone and not try to get somebody else to run its pro football team.

The commissioner stepped into a controversy between Watner and directors of the Colts. Watner, now president, has asked the directors to grant him sole ownership for next year.

The directors have stalled in replying and Bell said he'd heard they had approached two others "to buy the Colts."

"If the stockholders, or whoever they are, have Baltimore's best football interests at heart they will try to stop cutting themselves into the picture and leave Watner alone," declared Bell.

"As far as the league and I are concerned, we don't recognize anybody but Watner, and if the board of directors takes on any new stockholders or a new financial figure, he will have to have Watner's approval."

The commissioner added that the Baltimore franchise is not in jeopardy.

"Baltimore is a fine football city," he said. "We are highly pleased with the progress the team has made and, in view of its record (won one out of eight), the attendance is remarkable."

Watner became president of the Colts this year by personally guaranteeing any and all losses. However, there was a string attached. If the directors decide to oust him they will have to assume the losses which are expected to run about $200,000.

The stockholders, headed by 15 directors, had taken over operation of the Colts in 1948 and 1949 after Bob Rodenberg of Washington, the original owner, withdrew. The directors reported they had put in all the money they were going to and Watner came forth.

Commissioner Bell expressed confidence that Watner has the financial resources—earned through income from a cemetery and railroad—to carry on.

William F. Hilgenberg, chairman of the directors, said he expected the situation to be settled by next Monday, adding:

"It looks as though Mr. Watner will take over the club."

Ohio State First, Army Drops to 3d

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP)—In a surprising shakeup, Ohio State today moved in as the Nation's No. 1 football team as Army, last week's leader, tumbled to third place behind Oklahoma.

The fall of Army is the big news in the weekly Associated Press poll. The unbeaten Cadets, 51 to 0 winners over little New Mexico Saturday, actually received the most first-place votes, 72. But Ohio State and Oklahoma scored heavily on second- and third-place votes to move up. The system gives 10 points for a first-place ballot, nine for second and so on.

Of the 308 football writers and broadcasters who voted, 66 placed Ohio State first. The once-beaten Buckeyes accumulated 2412 points. Oklahoma polled 63 first-place votes and 2381 points.

Army, which barely edged California for third position, got 2272 points. California's total was 2126.

Kentucky, the only other team over the 2,000-point mark, with 2,001, was fifth. Then, in order, are Texas, Princeton, Illinois, Tennessee and Michigan State.

Ohio State, the Big Ten ruler, gained the top position after a tingling 19 to 14 victory over a determined Wisconsin eleven.

How They Rank:

Others receiving at least 10 points were: Virginia 38, Loyola of Los Angeles 35, Lehigh 26, Washington and Lee 22, Notre Dame 15 and Alabama 14.

Gardner Stops Bruce Woodcock

LONDON, Nov. 14 (AP).—Jack Gardner, 24-year-old prospect who has been fighting pro less than two years, tonight wrested the British and Empire heavyweight championships from Bruce Woodcock by stopping the defending titlist in 11 rounds.

The 29-year-old Woodcock, making his first start since he was battered to defeat in four rounds by Lee Savold last June 6, had his handlers throw in the towel at the end of the 11th round of the scheduled 15-rounder.

GW's Butler Jumps to 10th in Pass Receiving

Seven 'Lost' Aerials Give Him Boost

A case of mistaken identity has been corrected and the name of George Washington's Charlie Butler appears high among the Nation's collegiate pass receivers for the first time. He's in tenth place.

G. W. officials became curious the other day because Butler was catching more than four passes a game, and yet he wasn't listed among the top receivers.

They made a check of their records and those of the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau, and discovered that, by mistake, Wake Forest had credited G. W. wingback Lou Ciarrocca with seven catches for 80 yards in their October 21 game at Wake Forest. Those catches rightfully belonged to End Butler. It was slightly mysterious, Butler's No. 30; Ciarrocca No. 22.

The N. C. A. B. was properly informed, and Butler, 195-pound senior from Waltham, Mass., was moved into tenth place. He has made 30 pass grabs for 332 yards and four touchdowns.

Meanwhile, G. W., mainly on the passing of Andy Davis and the receiving of Butler, is still fifth in the country in team passing with a 179.6 yards average. Davis is seventh in total offense with 1295 yards and eighteenth in passing with 71 completions in 151 attempts for 1056 yards.

Here's how the other schools in the Southern Conference area rate in this week's statistics:

DUKE—Billy Cox, second total offense, 1,702 yards, and third passing with 97 completions in 179 attempts for 1289 yards; Ceep Youmans, fifth pass receptions, 36 for 399 yards; team seventh in passing, 175-yard average, eighth in pass defense, 76-yard average.

GEORGE WASHINGTON—Andy Davis, seventh total offense, 1295 yards, and eighteenth passing, 71 completions in 151 attempts for 1056 yards; Charlie Butler, tenth in pass receptions with 30 for 332 yards; team is fifth passing, with 179.6-yard average.

CLEMSON—Jackie Calvert, twentieth total offense, 1099 yards, and twentieth rushing, 634 yards; team eighth total offense with 410.6-yard average and eleventh rushing with 280.3-yard average.

NORTH CAROLINA—Dick Bunting, fifteenth punting, with 29 for 39.7-yard average; team eighth punting with 40.0-yard average.

VIRGINIA MILITARY INSTITUTE—Jim Coiey, fifteenth total offense, 1150 yards; Joe Stump, seventeenth rushing, 674 yards.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE—Jack Mooney eleventh total offense, 1207 yards.

SOUTH CAROLINA — Steve Wadiak, seventh, rushing, 814 yards.

VIRGINIA—Johnny Papit, tenth, rushing, 764 yards.

FURMAN — Ed Jasonek, fourteenth, rushing, 691 yards.

WASHINGTON AND LEE—Team eighth, rushing, 285.1 yards average; seventh total defense, with 190.8-yard average; fifth, pass defense, 71.3-yard average.

WEST VIRGINIA—Team fourteenth, passing, 156-yard average.

WAKE FOREST—Team second, total defense, 169.7-yard average, and second, rushing defense, 69.3-yard average.

Lehigh Club Will Hear Lafayette Game Saturday

Pepped up over its undefeated football team, the Lehigh Club of Washington has arranged a leased wire for the play-by-play broadcast of Saturday's eighty-seventh renewal of the Lehigh-Lafayette series.

The club is sponsoring a luncheon at noon in the Mural Room of the Washington Hotel. The broadcast will start at game time, 1:30 p. m.

In number of games played, the Lehigh-Lafayette rivalry is the longest in the country. The series started in 1884. Lehigh, with eight straight victories this season, will be a heavy favorite Saturday. Over the years, Lafayette holds the edge with 55 victories, 27 losses and three ties.

How Could It?

Wondering just how tough things can get, Georgetown yesterday started serious preparations for its engagement Saturday at Worcester, Mass., with high-scoring Holy Cross.

Plagued by injuries and hard luck all season, the Hoyas reached some kind of a high point in their 14-13 loss to Fordham. In the last five minutes Georgetown staved off a Ram touchdown bid and smartly marched 90 yards for a score.

It didn't do a bit of good in the victory column when Soph Mike Carra missed what would have been the tying extra point.

There's an interesting story behind the absence of Dick Haesler, regular place-kicking specialist, who was unavailable the only time this season the team really needed his boot.

With his backfield crippled, Coach Bob Margarita didn't want to scrimmage any of them. Before the Fordham game, he wanted the line play sharpened so he got together a dummy backfield.

At quarterback was Joe Sullivan, back coach who starred for Dartmouth two seasons ago. Sophs John Sergio, a converted guard, and Billy O'Day were the halfbacks and Haesler was at fullback.

A minute after the scrimmage started, Sergio went out with a broken arm. Then Haesler bruised his knee.

It wasn't until Friday afternoon in the Polo Grounds workout that Margarita discovered Haesler couldn't kick. His leg was so sore he made only two of seven practice tries.

Carra, who hadn't been working at it, was pressed into service. Carra himself had a banged-up knee early in the season Chunky little Mike booted points for the frosh last year and made 10 of 13.

In high school and in the Air Corps, where he was stationed in Germany, Mike missed only four of 30 attempts.

NOTES—Loss of Jim Slowey, ace linebacker, hurt plenty at Fordham . . . Slowey went out early after playing spectacularly . . . His knee was banged and it won't be known until tomorrow whether he will be ready for Holy Cross . . . That bad ankle of Dick Doyle's is improving and the flashy soph may be ready to rip off those long sweeps again .

Ed Fullerton, Scarbath Back With Terps

Maryland University's football team received a double dose of good news yesterday.

The Terps learned that two players feared lost for the season, varsity Quarterback Jack Scarbath and Fullback Ed Fullerton, have recovered from serious injuries and will be able to play against the West Virginia Mountaineers Saturday.

Fullerton had a badly torn cartilege in his knee which has responded well to treatment. With a little favoring of the game leg, he will be in playing condition by the weekend.

Scarbath suffered a shoulder separation in a scrimmage shortly before the G. W. game, and the painful injury has kept him out of action ever since. Coach Jim Tatum said that Scarbath will be able to play Saturday, but his passing arm is weak and he will not be likely to pitch many against West Virginia.

Havana Hires Luque, Fires 5-Time Winner

HAVANA, Nov. 14 (AP).—Adolfo Luque, one-time champion pitcher of the National League, will manage the Class B Havana Cubans baseball club next year, a Washington farm club.

The aging Luque replaces Oscar Rodriguez, who led the team to five straight pennants in the eight-club Florida International League. Joe Cambria, general manager of the Cubans, said he is sorry to release his pennant-winning pilot but that he had signed Luque in the "best interest of baseball."

Menke's New Book

Know What Roque Is? Read On

By Whitney Martin

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP).—Want to know who won the King's Cup race for sloops and schooner in 1906? Or maybe you just can't remember who holds the world record for the left hand cleak and jerk, or the name of the birling champion in 1898.

The answers, and thousands upon thousands of answers to other questions, are in Frank Menke's remarkable new all-sports record book, just off the press and published by A. S. Barnes & Co.

If there is any sport or any record not included in its 326 pages it is just an oversight which will be corrected promptly if attention is called to it.

All the so-called major sports are covered comprehensively, but not a little of the fascination of the tome is due to the oddities sprinkled through its pages.

For instance:

Ever hear of a sport called roque, which sounds like the name of a cheese? It resembled croquet. In fact, the word is croquet with the "c" and "t" removed. Like ootbal.

George Allen, an Englishman, walked 910 miles in less than 17 days for an average of 63 miles a day.

A 10-YEAR-OLD Chicago girl walked 408 feet on her hands; in Wales there is a sport called purring, in which two contestants don heavy boots, stand face to face, and kick each other in the shins until one says the heck with it.

It costs a duck hunter $9.72 for each duck he bags, figuring all expenses of an expedition, not including canned heat for personal warmth.

All in all, it is a monumental compilation of facts and figures by a highly esteemed gentleman with a mania for accuracy and detail, and it makes you slightly dizzy just to contemplate the work that went into it. In fact, the work involved must be some kind of a record in itself, and should be included in the pages.

Culmone Has 2 Winners, Totals 321

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

PIMLICON, Nov. 14.—Elope, a filly from the mare Late Date, ran as if she were late for her wedding, leading every jump of the way to win The Toddle On, feature of a cold day at the race.

Operating in a field of 3-year-olds, Elope jogged into the finish line four lengths ahead of Shamrock Stable's Lucky Harp and an additional length in advance of Winlochan Stable's Adopt.

With Lucy Harp—dubbed Unlucky Harp after six straight defeats—drawing most of the play, Elope supplied a $9.80 win mutuel. She carried the colors of Phillip Connors over the six furlongs course in a snappy 1:11 1/5. A crowd of 8,952 saw apprentice Augustine Catalano ride the winner.

Carrying light weight of the field of seven, Elope jumped into the lead at once. Countess Molly and Cornwall used a lot of energy, attempted to get to the leader in the opening stages, but both weakened.

Lucky Harp then moved to contention, followed by Adopt. However, Elope drew out through the stretch. Catalano looked back, saw nothing resembling a serious threat and coasted the filly into the wire.

Catalano came back in the seventh race to ride his second winner of the afternoon, coming from behind with Mrs. T. J. Carroll's Liberty Road, a $12.40 shot. Joe Culmone's mount, L. J. Stephan's Eva's was second.

Culmone, however, had two winners on the card, resuming his successes after being shut out yesterday in six tries.

He climbed aboard J. M. Cudone's Kit Bag in the first race and brought the filly winging home at a $5.20 mutuel.

Culmone's second winner, which made it 19 for the meeting and 321 for the year, came in the third event. He was aboard Brookmeade Stable's Steadfast and booted the colt into the wire to the tune of a $4.20 mutuel.

Hold Meeting Today

Maryland Horsemen Fight Bowie Ban on 'Cheap' Horses

Maryland horsemen will meet at Pimlico at noon today to protest the adoption of a Bowie rule banning "cheap" horses.

The Bowie meeting opens Saturday and officials of the track will discuss the situation with members of the Maryland division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association.

The ruling is that a horse that has run since July 1 for a purse of less that $1500 and has not won, cannot be raced at Bowie.

Laurel started the ruling and it is now in effect at Pimlico. Bowie didn't have it at its spring meeting but put the rule in its condition book for the fall session.

That's when the horsemen complained. They contend that if they were allowed to race in the first Bowie meeting they should again be eligible.

John A. Manfuso, HBPA committeeman, said last night the question of eliminating the receiving barn in Maryland wouldn't be taken up at today's meeting.

However, it is believed that an effort will be made by horsemen in the near future to abolish the receiving barn. There's been growing discontent over it because the trainer is held responsible for the condition of his horse whether or not there is a barn.

Critics claim the system has deteriorated because of lack of guards and supervision and that the barn now is only a place of detention before a race.

Another important meeting will be held by the Maryland Racing Commission Thursday to discuss the Maryland Jockey Club's building improvement fund. The club had planned to use its take from the mutuel handle to improve Pimlico. The defense ban on racetrack building has complicated the matter.

AT PIMLICO.

DEAR FOLKS:

Friday's Pimlico Futurity is building up to a race of merit. C. V. Whitney's Nameluke came in from Kentucky and Marvin Waldman's Royal Duke arrived from New England. They will take a crack at Larry MacPhail's General Staff in the rich test. Norman Haymaker has taken over the training of the entire Audley Farm stable and should make it click. G. R. Bryson has sold Make Swing set some kind of a record for stopping in the stretch in two starts here. As a 2-year-old Make Swing won the Hialeah Juvenile Stakes. Al Schwartz is the only man sure to clean up every day at the track. He is boss of the Lincoln Maintenance Co., which handles the cleaning duties at all major tracks. Saturday's Thomas K. Lynch Memorial Handicap at Bowie has drawn 33 nominations. See you at the rail.

Bill.

Southern Conference Stars Play Richmond Pros

Time On His Hands

McCarthy Retired, Like an Executive

By Red Smith

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 14 (NYHT)—This was the Buffalo Athletic Club's annual sports dinner and they were giving a watch to Joe McCarthy, the gentleman farmer of South Ellicott Greek Road. The gift may not have been an ideal selection, because it is obvious that Joe already has more time than he needs, now that he is out of baseball and his nerves and innards have recovered from the punishment they took in Boston. (He looks wonderful). However, the gift was well meant, and well received.

Red Smith

Jimmy Dykes had talked—briefly, for him—telling stories and trying to describe what it was like to succeed Connie Mack as manager of the Athletics. The ultimate of all managers, Jimmy said cheerfully, was the sack. He only hoped he could last on this job one twenty-fifth as long as Connie Mack did, which would be two years.

"Managing a ball club is a tough job," McCarthy said as if Dykes hadn't learned that long ago with the Chicago White Sox. "It's tough when you're on top." (Joe should know.) "And it's tough when you're in the cellar." (Jimmy should know).

"I couldn't take it any longer. You say all managers get fired, Jimmy, but I want you to know I wasn't fired and I didn't resign, I retired." Joe grinned. "Like an executive."

SO MUCH FOR the manner of Joe's departure. As for the manner of his beginning.

"I was playing in Louisville and I was pretty near through. Dick Knebelknap wanted to get rid of me, but I was—well, I won't say I was popular but the fans seemed to like me pretty well. So Knebelknap was worried and he said to a guy, 'What can I do about McCarthy? How can I get rid of him?'

" 'Make him manager' the guy said."

When Tommy Henrick was talking, it was characteristic that he told no tales about hitting home runs, about making great plays in the outfield or at first base, about winning games and championships. He told about being hit by an easy fly ball.

He was drifting back for a soft fly by Bill Knickerbocker, and just before the ball got to him, Tommy lost it in the sun. The ball hit his chest, he went over backwards, his cap flying one way, his sun glasses another, and the White Sox scored the tying run. "That," he said, "was when the White Sox named me stumblebum. Properly."

"With the Yankees," Tommy said, "I have played for three great managers. Bucky Harris was the easiest of men to work for. He took the view that when a player reaches the majors he knows enough to take care of himself and stay in condition, or else he can be replaced. In my case, fortunately, there was a a shortage of replacements.

"CASEY STENGEL has been manager for two years and we've had a good, scrapping ball club that won two pennants and two World Series. That's a little better than par for the course.

"But my first six years with the Yankees, the years I played for Joe McCarthy, that's when I learned to play baseball. Baseball is my business and I'd had three years in the minors and I thought I knew a little about it when I came to New York as a free agent. That wasn't bad, either that bonus money.

"After a while, Joe told me he was sending me to Newark. I said, 'Sure, I can go to Newark, but I can play here, too.' I said, 'You haven't given me a chance here, Joe. I don't want to go to Newark.' He said, 'I can make you go, you know,' and that's when I quit arguing.

"It seems the Yankees were in Chicago after losing two straight in Detroit. Joe was steaming about those two games, and he overheard one of his outfielders say, 'Cripes, that guy wants to win every game!' The next day there was an opening on the Yankees for a young outfielder. That guy didn't know how right he was."

Fishing Good Over Weekend; Roby Brothers Land 125 Rock

By Ralph Murdock

FISHING over the weekend was pretty good. We fished off Breezy Point on Saturday and in the Bloody Point area on Sunday and had nice luck at both spots. Incidentally, we picked these two locations in our Friday's column for the best places to troll. Best of all, we saw some excellent catches made by other boats in the same areas which deserve honorable mention.

Murdock

On Saturday morning, Bert Lamb had the three "Fishing Robys," all brothers, aboard the Tern. They were Win Roby, authority on standardization for the General Services Administration; Buck Roby, vice president of the Bank of Commerce & Savings, and Pat Roby, master mechanic at the Naval Gun Factory.

The brothers landed 45 rock and one black sea bass in snow, sleet and rain which the weather man dished out early in the morning in the Breezy Point area. The Robys cleaned and scaled the entire catch of stripers on the dock at the Rod'n' Reel Club before departing for Washington.

The trio had received advance instructions from the home front—the fish were ready for the pan.

FOUR SILVER Spring anglers fished with Lamb on Sunday at the same location and boated 125 rockfish which weighed from 1½ pounds to 6 pounds. This party comprised Bob Comfort, Curt Adams, Bill Covert and Lincoln Widmyer. The fisherman used yellow-head No. 6/0 Lusby lures with full strips of pork rind.

HERE'S ANOTHER trip which involved Sam Wyvell, Henry O'Cooper, Lieut. Elan Tuner of the Prince Georges County police and Clint Brown. They fished with Capt. W. J. McCarter of Edgewater, Md., and hauled in 130 stripers off Bloody Point Light. They also boated 39 perch. The boat was the Katherine C.

TODAY MARKS the opening of the Maryland hunting season (excluding waterfowl) which pops at noon on November 27. If you live outside Maryland, your hunting license will cost $20 to hunt rabbits, quail, pheasant, wild turkey and grouse.

An additional $2 Federal duck stamp is required to hunt ducks. These stamps can be bought from any postoffice.

PGA Rejects Plan To Change Pattern Of Its Tourney

CHICAGO, Nov. 14 (AP)—The National Professional Golfers' Association today turned down a proposal to change the pattern of play in the National PGA Tournament.

Members voted 65 to 10 against a proposal to run a 72-hole medal play qualifying heat, then let the top seven scorers and the defending champion battle for the title in a match play.

The PGA touranment procedure upheld by today's convention action calls for 36 holes of match play. The top 64 golfers then compete in the title rounds, also match play.

Only Seniors Eligible for Dec. 10 Game

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 14 (AP).—The Southern Conference all-stars will be assembled for a postseason football game in Richmond Sunday, December 10, against the professional Richmond Rebels in City Stadium.

Coaching the all-Stars will be Arthur L. Guepe, University of Virginia mentor, and D. C. (Peahead) Walker, veteran coach of the Wake Forest Deacons.

The all-star squads will be assembled on Sunday, December 3, and will be drilled for a week.

Walker said selection of personnel will begin shortly.

Among the standout stars are Johnny Papit of Virginia, Billy Cox of Duke, Irv Holdash, North Carolina's All-America candidate at center; Walt Michaels, Washington and Lee's bruising fullback, and Joe McCutcheon, the crack center; Jim Stanton, tackle, and Bob Auffarth, guard, both stars in the Wake Forest line that has repulsed North Carolina and Duke; Elmer Costa, North Carolina State tackle; Stive Wadiak of South Carolina, Jackie Calvert of Clemson nd a number of others.

In order not to interfere with their eligibility the college players will not be invited until the end of their team's schedule. Only seniors will be eligible.

The all-stars will be selected from Maryland, the District of Columbia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia. A 25-man squad will be selected.

Scares Officials

Angry Mob Gets Players Into Game

BOONE, Iowa, Nov. 14 (U.P.).—An angry crowd of fans forced two school officials to permit the playing in a high school football game of five boys previously declared ineligible, Lyle Quinn, secretary of the Iowa High School Athletic Association, said today.

Later, the crowd besieged one of the officials in his home until dispersed by police.

Quinn said an investigation had disclosed this story:

Five seniors on the Manson, Iowa, team played hookey Friday and were forbidden by Manson School Superintendent Earl L. Miller and High School Principal Melvin Heiler from playing in a game that night with Rockwell City.

But the boys got their football gear and, on their own, went to Rockwell City. They appeared at the game and sat on the Manson bench.

Manson, previously undefeated, was behind 18 to 10 at the half. At that point, Quinn said, Miller and Heiler were "accosted by a large group of angry and disgruntled Manson fans, who demanded they permit the boys to play the remainder of the game."

"Under threats of violence and duress," Quinn said, Miller and Heiler permitted the boys to play.

Manson Lost, 18-12

Miller and Heiler, "sensing further violence," left before the final gun, Quinn said, and returned to Manson, where they asked the mayor for police protection.

Quinn said that police were provided, but not enough to "prevent an angry mob from surrounding the principal's home, and in his opinion attempting to gain entrance to his home in order to inflict bodily harm."

However, he said that Manson teachers did not meet their classes yesterday because they feared they might bring on similar disorders "every time they reprimanded a pupil."

For Power with Economy...it's High Compression!

FOR HIGH COMPRESSION... IT'S THE "ROCKET"!

Oldsmobile Hydra-Matic Drive optional at extra cost on all models.

Maybe you're ready—like we are—for a little brass-tacks talk about high-compression. Since Oldsmobile introduced the "Rocket" Engine two years ago, seems like everybody claims "high-compression"—but nobody explains it. The phrase simply means squeezing the gasoline into a smaller space before exploding it. This gets more power out of the same amount of fuel. But the engine must be designed for high-compression all the way through to assure smooth, quiet, gas-saving performance. The "Rocket" is 100% high-compression—from the crankshaft out. And the lowest-priced "Rocket" Engine car is Oldsmobile's "88." Makes good sense to try it soon—doesn't it?

Ford Assails 2 Hearings In Slaying Of Woman

Wilgus' Lawyer To Urge Bar Study Of 'Duplication' In Testimony

Why must a murder suspect undergo two preliminary hearings on a single charge in the District?

This question, involving "duplication of testimony" before the United States Commissioner and a coroner's jury, yesterday brought a protest from Defense Counsel Charles E. Ford after George B. Wilgus, 28, was bound over by the coroner's jury on a second degree murder charge.

Ford told District Court Judge Edward A. Tamm that the commissioner should be "denied the privilege of hearing homicide cases," or that "some ruling" should be made to overcome the "dual jurisdiction" of the two offices.

In view of what happened yesterday in Wilgus' case, Ford said he would appoint a special bar association subcommittee to recommend a solution to the problem, caused by the combined Federal and territorial jurisdiction of District courts. Ford is chairman of the District Bar Association's criminal law section.

Wilgus, a gas station attendant who lives at 913 Massachusetts ave. nw., was arrested and charged with killing his common-law wife, Charlotte Bruce, 24, by striking her once on the head with his fist early Friday morning.

Arraigned before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence, Wilgus testified he had been drinking with the woman and struck her when she tried to scratch him.

Lawrence set the charge at second-degree murder and ordered Wilgus held in $3000 bond. He continued a hearing until November 16 to permit the defendant time to obtain counsel.

Complications Set In

Complications set in yesterday when a coroner's jury ordered Wilgus held for action of the grand jury.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald started to commit Wilgus to jail, the usual procedure in such cases. But Ford informed him that Wilgus had been released on $3000 bond by the commissioner.

"I don't see how I can very well commit him to jail," Dr. MacDonald declared, advising Ford and Assistant United States Attorney Stafford R. Grady, the prosecutor, to consult with Judge Tamm.

They explained the circumstances of the case, and Judge Tamm permitted Wilgus to be released on $3000 bnod.

It was during a later interview that Ford said that the "dual jurisdiction" between the coroner and commissioner should be settled.

Driver Asks Police Aid Home, Then Dies at Wheel

A Maryland Park (Md.) man identified as Louis John Moog, 66, of 6412 Buchanan st., died at the wheel of his car yesterday immediately after asking two policemen to help him drive home because he felt ill.

Metropolitan Police Pvts. Herman Williamson and J. S. Stoffan reported that Moog, driving east on Benning rd., stopped at the curb in front of 3919. He summoned them, said he felt sick and asked them to assist him home.

As they started to get in the car, the police reported, Moog slumped over the wheel. A Health Department physician arrived in an ambulance and pronounced him dead at 2:30 p. m. Cause of death was not immediately determined.

Marine Freed In Fight With Policeman

Acquitted of Assault Charge, He Faces Damages Suit

Richard M. Strong, 22-year-old Marine officer candidate, was acquitted yesterday of charges of kneeing a traffic policeman in the groin last July 4.

Strong was accused of simple assault on Pvt. E. E. Proudfoot at the corner of 13th and E sts. nw.

He denied the charges and countercharged that Proudfoot had "beat him" repeatedly during a scuffle that ended with both men on their backs in the middle of E st.

In and Out of Court

The case has been in and out of Municipal Court ever since the incident.

When it first came to trial October 18, Government prosecutors reported Strong pleaded guilty, was allowed to substitute $50 collateral for his $300 bond and then forfeit the collateral.

In response to a scribbled note marked "fireworks" from an assistant U. S. attorney, Judge Ellen K. Raedy hastily adjourned court and told reporters that she had continued the case, not disposed of it.

Before the trial today, Proudfoot sued Strong for $10,000 damages.

Proudfoot testified yesterday that he had stopped Strong for violating pedestrian control lights at the intersection, and that the young Marine ROTC student suddenly grabbed him by the shoulders, yanked him violently forward and kneed him. He was hospitalized for two days, and on sick leave for 13, he said.

Denies Charges

Strong denied the charges and a fellow ROTC student, Jerome Stallings of Chattanooga, Tenn., supported him on the witness stand.

Prosecutor Alfred Hantman then produced two policemen who testified that Stallings had signed a typewritten statement saying that Strong had been the aggressor in the scuffle.

"Where's the statement?" Defense Attorney James Hughes demanded.

The statement was lost, the policemen admitted.

In his closing statement Hughes charged that Proudfoot "has a $10,000 interest in this case."

2 Children Miss Death By Drowning

A 3-year-old boy and his 2-year-old sister almost drowned in their bathtub last night at 725 7th st. se. when their father stepped out of the bathroom to get their pajamas.

Both children, Jack Lee and Joyce Lynn O'Steen, were rushed to Gallinger Hospital, where their condition was undetermined late last night.

A neighbor said their father, Jack, a truck driver for the District, found Joyce under water when he returned.

He pulled her out and carried her to the bedroom to give her artificial respiration, whereupon he heard his wife screaming that the boy had slipped under the water and was unconscious.

Burt Upham, a neighbor visiting the O'Steens, called the Fire Department Rescue Squad, which carried both children to Gallinger. The boy regained consciousness before reaching the hospital.

Assessment Bureau Asked For Arlington

Creation of a department of real estate assessments for Arlington County was asked last night by the Arlington Civic Federation in a resolution to the county board.

The group, meeting at the Lyon Park Community House, also voted to support the establishment of a merit system for appointment of county employes.

Ordinances covering both subjects have been under consideration by the county board for several weeks and will be either adopted or rejected at a meeting of the county board Saturday

If established, the new assessment department would be headed by a director of real property assessments—appointed by the county board—who would function under the county manager.

The ordinance was originally proposed to the board by its fiscal advisory committee, composed of local citizens.

Opposition to the proposal has been expressed by Commissioner of Revenue Harry K. Green, who said the new officer would duplicate the commissioner of revenue's functions.

Green is an elected officer and, it was pointed out last night by Malcolm D. Miller, chairman of the federation's revenues and expenditures committee, is not controlled by the county board.

Dr. L. K. Alpert of the George Washington University hospital and Brig. Gen. F. W. Browne, USA ret., chairman of the lay society of the Washington Diabetes Society, spoke on the current diabetes detection drive which will end Saturday.

Sesqui Board Considering Pictorial Book

Slick-Paper Brochure Would 'Memorialize' Year of Celebration

The swan song project of the Sesquicentennial Commission will be a slick-paper, pictorial brochure on the 1950 celebration year, if present plans materialize.

Slated to do the job is a locally well-known public relations expert who has been connected intimately with Sesqui affairs the past two years.

Officials yesterday withheld the public disclosure of the author's name and his proposed fee on grounds the entire Sesqui executive committee had not yet been polled on the project.

Estimated cost of the brochure was withheld.

The brochure, in effect, would be a permanent justification of the year-long Sesqui program and expenditures.

As visualized by Paul Massmann, Sesqui general manager, the booklet would give the history of the Capital's 150th anniversary pictorially and conclude with a "summarization" of Sesqui financing.

Massmann hopes the booklet can be put in manuscript form during the next three months, so that it may be printed early next year "while the memory of the Sesqui is still vivid."

Still undecided is whether it should be distributed only to Congressmen and other Government officials or given more general circulation.

Should the executive committee decide to produce "Faith of Our Fathers" next summer, Massmann proposed publishing the booklet in early 1952.

Under the law, the Sesqui Commission dissolves on December 31, 1952, on or before which a report must be filed with Congress.

Sesqui officials interpret the clause requiring a final report as sufficient authority for preparing the proposed pictorial.

Such a booklet, they point out, may give Congressmen "something they actually will feel like reading, instead of a dry report of the usual type."

Meanwhile, the Sesqui observance on November 22 of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the first meeting of Congress here probably will be limited to spot radio "plugs" and perhaps a reference to the day by President Truman in his Thanksgiving proclamation.

This is the present plan, Massmann said last night. "Faith of Our Fathers," he explained, was the high point and therefore the most effective note on which to conclude the Sesqui year.

Presbyterians Beat Marriage Law Changes

Local Group Outlaws Proposals Concerning Divorced Individuals

Two amendments to Presbyterian Church marriage regulations were voted down by the Presbytery of Washington City yesterday.

The proposals, both concerning divorced persons, were submitted by the General Assembly of the church and were rejected unanimously.

Both dictated conditions under which divorced persons could be remarried. One directed the minister to determine which is the "innocent party" in a divorce and remarry that individual only if the divorce was granted on grounds of adultery or willful desertion.

The other amendment — pertaining to divorce caused by other reasons—called upon the formation of a Committee of Christian Marriage to decide whether facts concerning the divorce are sufficient to permit remarriage.

The Rev. Paul R. Schearrer, chairman of the committee on bills and overtures, said his group felt the amendments "embarrassing, hard to enforce and generally just one of those difficult things to handle."

In other business, the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, USA, was invited to hold its 1952 national convention in Washington.

The invitation will be extended along with that of National Presbyterian Church, as host church.

In other action, the Presbytery voted approval for a $150,000 campaign for purchase of church sties and for church construction within the Presbytery.

Roland Broadus Rosson, jr., of Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, was approved for the gospel ministry.

Prisoner Is Found Dead in Cell In Police Station

Michael Creese, 67, of 416 6th st. nw., was found dead in his cell yesterday at the First Precinct, where he was taken after being arrested at 4 a. m. on a charge of drunkenness.

After an autopsy was performed by Dr. Richard Rosenberg, deputy coroner, police said death was due to cirrhosis of the liver and a heart ailment.

Creese, who was found unconscious in his cell at 7:15 a. m. by Pvt. R. D. Edwards, was picked up in the doorway at the Gospel Mission, 5th and H sts. nw. He told police he had been drinking "smoke,"

Ohio Police Study Death Of Secretary

Police authorities yesterday were awaiting a toxicologist's report in the apparent suicide death of Miss Isabel Smith, 40-year-old staff secretary of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

She was found dead in bed at her sister's home in Columbus, Ohio, Monday. Miss Smith had flown to Columbus last Saturday for a "short rest," according to her sister, Mrs. Agnes Clancy.

Miss Smith had lived here for several years at McLean Gardens.

She left a note saying she was taking her life because of strain and pressure of her work, police said.

Dr. Robert A. Evans, Franklin County coroner, said a small, empty bottle was found at her bedside. He said he thought the bottle had contained some headache pills.

An autopsy showed negative results, but the coroner said a verdict will be withheld pending a toxicologist's report.

Miss Smith had been "reticent and melancholy" during her visit in Ohio, the sister told police.

Miss Smith had worked with the Senate Committee 3½ years. She was secretary to Francis Wilcox, chief clerk of the committee. She previously worked at the State Department, during which time she attended the U. N. Preparatory Committee's sessions in London in 1945 and 1946.

Shortly after Congress recessed this past September, Miss Smith went to New York to work for the United States delegation at U.N.

$316 Stolen From Desk Of G-Girl

A 19-year-old District Government secretary told police that $316.70 in group hospitalization premiums was taken off her desk yesterday noon, 15 minutes before she planned to turn it in.

Miss Patricia M. Moran, who works in the office of the Director of Inspections at the District Building, said it was her job to make monthly collections in the inspection department from Group Hospitalization, Inc., subscribers.

She had collected the money and planned to turn it over to GHI during her lunch hour, she said. Just before going to lunch she went out of the room for a minute, she said, leaving the money on top of her desk. When she came back it was gone.

Miss Moran told police that as she reentered the office a man brushed hurriedly past her out the door. When she saw the money was gone, she chased after him but he had disappeared, she said.

Police broadcast a lookout for the suspect, described as a 25 to 30-year-old Negro, 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighing 150 pounds, wearing a black leather jacket and dark brown hat.

Dolores C. Cantrell, a clerk in the bridge division, yesterday reported the disappearance of $35.50 in Community Chest donations from her desk in Room 421 in the old District Building.

Miss Cantrell, who lives at 164 Temple Trailer, Alexandria, said the money was attached to pledge cards.

M'Keldin Faces $250,000 Fund Problem

College's Request For Budget Increase Dumped in Lap

BALTIMORE, Nov. 14 (AP).—The State Board of Public Works decided today it won't act on any more money questions until the new State administration takes over in January.

This had the immediate effect of dumping a $520,000 problem in the lap of Governor-elect Theodore R. McKeldin. Morgan State College asked that much increase in its appropriations so it can set up quickly graduate courses in education, English, history and psychology.

It was the first meeting since the election for the three Democrats who now constitute the Board of Public Works—Governor Lane, Comptroller J. Millard Tawes and State Treasurer Hooper S. Miles.

Tawes Holds Over

They agreed it would not be fair to obligate an incoming Governor to expenditures which might have a serious impact on State finances.

Governor Lane will be succeeded in January by McKeldin, the Repubican who beat him in the election a week ago. Comptroller Tawes, who had no opponent, will remain a member of the board. Treasurer Miles may or may not. The treasurer is elected by the General Assembly.

Since the Democrats held firm control of the General Assembly in the election, despite Lane's loss to McKeldin, it is assumed that Miles or some other Democrat will get the treasurer's job and the accompanying seat on the Board of Public Works. This would give Republican McKeldin the minority vote on the board, in addition to minority representation in the Assembly.

The Board of Public Works is a key agency in the State government, particularly between sessions of the Assembly, and has much authority over spending.

Asks More for Current Year

Dr. Martin D. Jenkins, president of Morgan State, asked that the Negro school's current operating budget for the fiscal year, which ends next June 30, be increased by $10,000, that the current budget for capital improvements be increased by $380,000, and that the operating budget it has submitted for fiscal 1952 be increased by $130,000.

Dr. Jenkins pointed out that the Commission on Higher Education for Negroes has recommended that Morgan State start offering as many graduate courses as it can as fast as it can.

Several court decisions in the past several months have made it plain that Maryland will not be able to keep Negroes out of its university schools unless equivalent courses are provided at the State's Negro schools.

McKeldin Seeks Ceiling Over Expense Items

BALTIMORE, Nov. 14 (AP).—Governor-elect McKeldin said today he has asked a group of Baltimore financiers to help him in devising a State budget that will have "ceilings" over all major items of expense.

Dairy Farm Inspection Staff to Be Increased

Move by District Heads May Clarify Some of Factors in Current Milk Row

The District Commissioners yesterday authorized the Health Department nearly to double its force of dairy farm inspectors by adding six to the present force of seven veterinarians.

Both sides in the fight over the sources of District milk have said at one time or another that additional inspectors would settle much of trouble.

Last summer when the Commissioners considered banning milk not inspected by the Health Department the independent dairies asked for more time on the ground that there weren't enough veterinarians to inspect their farms seeking District permits.

More recently, however, both Daniel L. Seckinger, director of public health, and the independents have admitted it wasn't the lack of inspectors, but the District regulations, that has kept many independent suppliers from obtaining permits.

Robert E. Lynch, attorney for the independent Embassy Dairy, last night called enlargement of the inspection force a "fake" action.

He said the independent dairies can't compete on an equal basis with distributors buying from the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association until the regulations are changed.

Meanwhile, John F. Hillyard, attorney for Wakefield - Model Farms Dairy, said last night he had not decided whether he would file an appeal today to District Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff's recent ruling upholding District milk regulations.

The judge gave Hillyard until today to file an appeal. Should he fail to do so, Wakefield will be required to limit its sales of milk in the District to milk purchased from farms inspected by the Health Department.

V. Wendell Doll, Health Department accountant and budget analyst, said the department will be able to inspect licensed farms six times a year, instead of three, when, when the additional inspectors are hired. Four annual inspections are considered essential he said.

The Health Department had asked for the additional inspectors in its 1952 budget requests. The creates the new positions only for the rest of the fiscal year ending next June 30.

At the same time the Commissioners authorized Seckinger to hire four additional non-veterinarian inspectors to police the processing of imported milk under an order issued just before the November 1 ban on imported milk. The commissioners allowed dairies to import and pasteurize outside milk so long as they sold it outside the city.

The Commissioners yesterday also answered the request of Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., of Maryland for information on that order. He saw it as making Maryland a "dumping ground for low grade milk which the District rejects. . ."

Their letter, released by Commissioner John Russell Young's special assistant Charles Stofberg, politely gave him the back of their hand. It said in part:

"In adopting the order the Commissioners assumed that the State of Maryland and its political subdivisions have ample statutes . . . to prevent the importation into the State of Maryland of milk not regarded by Maryland authorities as fit for consumption in your State. The Commissioners . . . have no authority to permit the importation into the State of Maryland of milk which does not meet the standards of the State . . ."

Mitten-String Almost Becomes Death Noose for 4-Yr.-Old Boy

A mitten string almost became a death noose for a four-year-old Falls Church, Va. boy yesterday when he accidentally caught it in a tree limb and hung for seconds before a neighbor saved him.

Victim of the brush with death, Raymond Rhea of 124 Lawrence dr., escaped with neck bruises and an undampened enthusiasm for tree-climbing.

His mother, Mrs. Harry L. Rhea, jr., and the neighbor, Mrs. Ernest Van Loon of 116 Lawrence dr., told this story:

With several other youngsters, Raymond was playing in the backyard of a neighbor at 116 Lawrence dr. One child "had tied Ray's mittens around his neck with a string so he wouldn't lose them," Mrs. Rhea said.

Mrs. Van Loon was "washing the walls in my dining room, watching about six youngsters climbing the tree out back," when suddenly "the children started screaming," she said.

"I ran to the tree," she said. "I thought Raymond had caught his hand in the tree," about 5 feet above the ground. "I lifted him down and he walked off by himself," she said.

Not until later, when Raymond ran home to his mother to show her "what the tree did to my neck" did they find the thin line of purple bruises there."

Mrs. Rhea said the string around his neck apparently caught in a branch, leaving Raymond dangling in space before Mrs. Van Loon freed him.

Taken to Arlington Hospital, the boy was treated for the bruises, X-rayed, given some oxygen, and released. "Boy," he told reporters, "that ambulance was fancy."

Virginia Car Testers Jammed; Today Is Deadline for Sticker

Virginia motorists who try to beat today's midnight deadline for State auto inspection can expect long lines and jammed inspection stations, a spot check showed yesterday.

This year's inspection period began October 1 at designated garages.

At the McLean Service Center in Fairfax County, Manager Leo T. Goode yesterday said he already had approved about 1200 cars—"more than we handled all last year."

Goode said that unless he received more "approved" inspection stickers from the State, "we won't be able to handle any more tomorrow,"

At Bendall Motor Sales, Inc., 1625 Prince st., Alexandria, the waiting line was said to be 30 cars long, with "more than 50" autos inspected yesterday.

Kenyon-Peck, Inc., at 2825 Wilson blvd., Arlington, said it handled 115 autos yesterday, with a waiting line two blocks long.

D. C. Municipal Dockage To Be Increased 50 Percent

To meet increased service costs the District Commissioners yesterday approved a 50 percent increase in dockage fees at the municipal fish wharf, effective December 1.

They acted on the recommendation of J. Thomas Kennedy, Director of Weights, Measures and Markets, who pointed out that municipal market rents had been increased 40 percent last March. He said the additional 10 percent for dock space was to pay for water the District now provides to wash boats.

The action means that boats bringing fresh fish and produce here will have to pay $1.50 a day for the first three days and $3 a day thereafter for the privilege of tying up at the wharf and unloading. Boats bringing salt fish and canned goods will have to pay $4.50 and $6 for the same periods as of December 1.

County Let Bond Issue For Schools

Sale of $500,000 worth of school construction bonds to the Northern Trust Co., of Chicago, was announced yesterday by the Prince Georges County Board of Education.

The Chicago concern purchased the bonds at a premium of $1040, Superintendent of Schools G. Gardner Shugart said. The bonds bear an interest rate of 1.75 percent.

Proceeds of the issue are to be used to complete and equip buildings and additions now under construction and to purchase school sites, Shugart said.

At yesterday's meeting, the board also authorized purchase $50,000 worth of equipment for both the Nicholas Orem, Hyattsville, and Suitland High Schools. The schools are expected to be completed around the first of the year.

School enrollment on October 31 was 31,618, Shugart reported, an increase of 186 over September 30. Approximately 2200 pupils are still on double shifts, he said.

A total of 257 new teachers were employed this year, Shugart said, bringing the total teaching staff to 1063.

Prince Georges County's "lame-duck" Commissioners yesterday promised to grant pay raises to police and make additions to the force next Tuesday.

Prevailing sentiment yesterday was that, although the present Democratic commissioners will be replaced December 5 by Republicans, they are committeed to grant the pay raises.

"We made a promise to the policemen," Commissioner T. Hammond Welsh said, "and we owe it to them to follow through."

Commissioner John H. Beall, however, felt that "we should not tie the hands of the incoming commissioners." But Harry W. McNamee, commission president, said "they can always rescind any of our actions."

Proposals for the pay raises and additions to the force were made August 16 by a committee appointed to recommend improvements in the police setup. On August 30, police asked for further study of the pay scales recommended by the committee.

The committee recommended addition of 16 policemen and four desk clerks and salary increases totaling $11,330.

An examination for new policemen is being held tonight at the Marlboro Elementary School.

The commissioners also, on the motion of Welsh, authorized an audit of all county records as of December 1 before turning over the reins to the Republican administration.

In addition, they acted favorably on a request of Ernest N. Cory, jr., Laurel attorney, for construction of a new bridge over Walker Branch on Brooklyn rd. at the Laurel town limits.

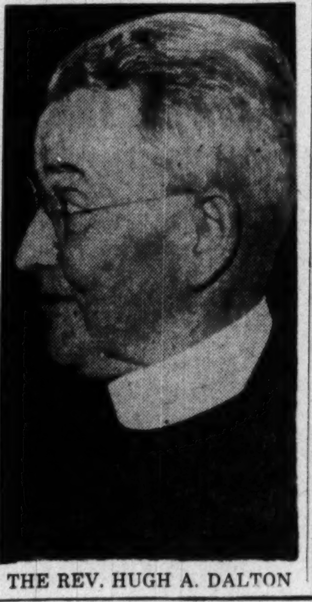
Father Dalton Dies at 71; Served Area Jesuit Churches

The Rev. Hugh A. Dalton, S. J., 71, who served a number of churches in the Washington area, died yesterday at the Jesuit Novitiate at Wernersville, Pa., his relatives have learned. He had been ill for about six months.

Father Dalton last year celebrated his fiftieth anniversary as a Jesuit.

A native of Philadelphia, Father Dalton was ordained in 1915 by James Cardinal Gibbons and served his first assignment at St. Francis Xavier Church in New York City, leaving to become a chaplain in the Army Transport Service in World War I.



THE REV. HUGH A. DALTON

Father Dalton returned to his New York parish after his war service before beginning a series of assignments in and around Washington.

His first area assignment was as pastor of St. Aloysius Church in Leonardtown, Md., and from 1924 to 1930 he was pastor of Holy Trinity Church in Georgetown.

He left Washington in 1930 to serve at St. Ignatius Church at Chapel Point, Md.; and returned in 1936 as assistant pastor of St. Aloysius here and then to St. Ignatius Church, Baltimore.

For seven and a half years Father Dalton was pastor of St. Joseph's Church at Pomfret, Md., with residence at La Plata.

He is survived by his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Gallen, Drexel Hill, Pa.; and a sister-in-law, Mrs. John J. Riseling, wife of the night city editor of The Washington Post; and 15 nieces and nephews, including the Rev. Francis Gallen, Philadelphia, and Sister George Francis, of the Sisters of the Holy Names.

A requiem mass will be said at 9 a. m. Friday at Wernersville, with burial there.

Marcus Cohen, ICC Official, Dies at 58

Marcus Cohen, 58, chief of the railroad statistics section of the Interstate Commerce Commission, died yesterday at Garfield Hospital after a long illness.

Mr. Cohen was a native of Baltimore but had lived in Washington since 1900. He made his home at 4102 14th st. nw.

A graduate of Benjamin Franklin University, Mr. Cohen served as an Army sergeant-major in World War I. He joined the ICC 30 years ago.

He was a member of the Sergeant Jasper Post, No. 13, American Legion; the Oriental Council of the Royal Arcanum, the Incomco Club and Modern Woodmen of America, Camp 16015.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mina Greenfeld Cohen; a daughter, Mrs. David Wienner of Annapolis, Md.; a granddaughter; his mother Mrs. Jenny R. Cohen, 729 Shepherd st. nw.; two brothers, [illegible] Cohen, 2919 Ordway st. nw., and Mayce B. Cohen of 1768 Hobart st. nw. and a sister, Mrs. Nelly E. Kazze of Los Angeles.

Funeral services will be held at the Bernard Danzansky & Son funeral home, 3501 14th st. nw., Thursday at noon. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

P. W. Briscoe, Star Circulation Employe, Dies

Philip W. Briscoe, 59, one of the first of the delivery truck drivers for The Evening Star, died Sunday in Mt. Alto Hospital, of a heart ailment.

Born in Washington, Mr. Briscoe went to work for the Star in 1920 after serving during World War I as an Army corporal. For the past 10 years he was a circulation department floorman.

Mr. Briscoe lived at 1119 2d st. se. About 10 years ago his wife died. He attended Friendship Baptist Church and was a Mason.

He leaves a niece, Mrs. Elaine G. Griffith, 1503 Simms dr. se. Funeral services will be held Friday, 1 p. m., at Barnes and Matthews Funeral Home, 614 4th st. sw. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

E. S. Hislop, Railway Mail Clerk, Dies

Funeral services for Edward S. Hislop, 64, of Hyattsville, Md., a railway clerk for the past 38 years, will be held at 2 p. m. today at the Hyattsville Presbyterian Church. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Capt. Flower, Surveyor 42 Years, Dies

Capt. George L. Flower, 82, retired chief of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey's nautical chart section and a pioneer hydrographic surveyor of Alaska, died Monday at Emergency Hospital after a brief illness.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. today at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Interment in Cedar Hill Cemetery will be private.

Captain Flower, who retired in 1938 after 42 years' service with the survey, lived at 3812 Woodley rd. nw.

He joined the service in 1896 as a hydrographic and geodetic engineer and was assigned to the Alaskan coasts. As the territory had been recently acquired from Russia, Captain Flower's survey work in the Pribilof Islands and the Yukon Delta was of a pioneer nature.

Captain Flower was transferred from the field service in 1904 to take the position which he held until his retirement. He returned to the Survey in October, 1942, for a one-year special wartime research job.

He was a member of the Washington Society of Engineers.

Captain Folwer's wife died in 1922. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Kenneth D. Jacob, with whom he resided; two sisters and a grandson, Thomas Flower Jacob.

It's easier to go places when you're dressed RIGHT!

...and you're dressed right when your clothes are UNION-MADE!

19-to-1 your favorite suit is UNION MADE!

Let's face it, men. Even the best of us needs a morale-booster now and then. And what a new hat does for a woman, a favorite suit does for a man. You have more self-confidence, when you're dressed right, to meet any important occasion. That's not news.

What may surprise you is that no matter where you buy your clothes—or how much you pay for them—chances are 19 to 1 that your favorite suit is union-made. That's right. The suit that looks best, fits best, suits you best... wears the Amalgamated label inside the inside coat pocket. Skilled union workmanship —in every seam, every stitch—sews quality into apparel of every price range!

Why not promote all your clothes into the "favorite" class—by making sure that every new suit or coat you buy bears the Amalgamated label? The going is a lot easier when you're dressed right!

Readers Are Unsympathetic to Woman Who Believes Her 21-Year-Old Student Son Should Spend Portion Of His Legacy Paying Off Mortgage on Family Home

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Late in October you wrestled with the question of whether a boy, 21, in receipt of "a sizeable legacy" from a family friend, owes some portion of it to his parents, who "sacrificed" to send him to college, and who still have a three thousand dollar mortgage on their home and younger children to educate.

His mother says it is quite some time since the lad fell heir to the money; and so far, not a word has he said about sharing any part of it with his family. She says the family practice has been "share and share alike," and she feels the boy should at least pay off the mortgage, as a way of saying "Thanks for everything." She asks who's being selfish—the boy or his parents. She said, "I would appreciate your views, also a poll from your readers."

In my opinion, there is an undercurrent of greed, jealousy and envy in the mother's letter. Just as you say, the boy's half of the story hasn't been told. And when you hear only a half-truth in a case like this, it is little better than a lie. One thing sure, the lad must be an outstandingly good character in his family and community. Well-to-do persons usually don't leave their money to bums and spendthrifts. Another point seems obvious—if the deceased had intended Vernon's family to share in the gift, he would have left the parents a sum outright.

Maybe Vernon is waiting to find out how much he will have after tax deductions, before committing himself on donations. After the inheritance tax is paid, if the family mortgage doesn't take more than a third of his legacy, perhaps he should kick in to his parents. Not that he owes them a slice, but merely as insurance against damage their half-truths could (and probably would) do his reputation in future. It might save him a lot of explaining "Yes, but" to associates in future. So, if he can afford it, he might pay them off, get their mouths shut, and go his way in peace. F. V.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: In regard to the chap who has inherited a sizeable amount of money, it must indeed be sizeable, inasmuch as his mother talks as if three thousand dollars would be only a fraction of it.

I feel sorry for the lad. In order to get his education he probably had to skimp, scrimp, wear outgrown clothes and bypass youthful pleasures. Now for the first time he has money to spare; he could let go, buy a fine suit, etc. But no; he holds his windfall in reserve—to buy a home when he marries, he says. No matter how much he makes, he will always be so dollar-conscious that he will squeeze a nickel until the eagle screams.

You (and the reader) were asked to evaluate his behavior without knowing much of the story. I should like to know why the benefactor gave all the money to him and none to his next-of-kin? However, here is my estimate of what he should do about his parents: 1. If the legacy is $25,000 or more, he should give the parents at least $3000. 2. If the legacy is between $10,000 and $15,000, he should give them either nothing, or not more than $1000—just as he chooses. 3. If the legacy is less than $10,000, nothing to his parents. After all, parenthood is voluntary and carries certain duties. W. B.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I suggest that "N. C."—your correspondent who feels that her son owes her part of his legacy—ought to read the happy biography "Belles On Their Toes," by Frank Gilbreth, jr., and Ernestine Carey, the true story of a widow left with 11 children. The mother in that book will show her the meaning of self-respect, confidence and the capacity to support a large family without whimpering. E. G.

DEAR READERS: In other letters on this subject, various critics raise the question, "Why do parents think their children owe them something for being born? Children don't ask to be born," they say—as if not asking absolved the children from any obligations of appreciation to their parents. I challenge that attitude. I hold it to be self-evident that life is a priceless gift of limitless potentials; and human beings sense its divine essence instinctively; for look how they cling to life, against all sorts of fearful odds.

All thoughtful peoples, even the most primitive, offer reverence to the Creator of the universe; and surely it is logical, then, to feel some comparable sentiment towards good parents, for having begot one into the universe. M. H.

Daily Dozen Routine Does a Double Duty

Eighth Day of Blanche's Beauty Program

By Ann Lawrence

WITH THE RULES of good posture in mind and the will to achieve it, a few simple exercises to correct the posture faults of long-standing were all Blanche needed.

A double-duty "daily dozen"—for correct posture and for general muscle toning—would simplify her routine and supplement the only real exercise she ever gets—a walk to the grocery store, two blocks away.

Here are two double-duties that give flexibility in the hip region and strength to the abdominal muscles.

NUMBER 1: Stand with your feet about 18 inches apart—perfect posture, with arms raised out to the sides, but relaxed. Keeping this position, turn half-way to the right, bending both your knees slightly—then to the left. The movement should be done in slow motion, good posture maintained throughout the exercise. Repeat five times, then rest, and repeat five more times.

NUMBER 2: Stand with your feet about 12 inches apart. Clasp your hands behind your back, with your arms extended full length. Now bend forward from the waist, keeping your head up, your shoulders flat, until your body is at right angles to your hips. Force your shoulders back and keep your arms and hands extended throughout the exercise. Return to the upright position and repeat 10 times.

Because it is practically impossible to maintain good posture—or a good disposition—with weak, aching feet, we added one exercise to strengthen Blanche's metatarsal arch and to keep her ankles slim and strong.

SITTING, SHE LOOPED a bath towel under the metatarsal arch, or the ball of the left foot. Extending the left leg straight out, the heel leading, knee straight, she pulled the towel taut. As she did so, she gripped her toes hard over the edge of the towel, pulling harder with her right hand so that the foot was rotated inward. This, she repeated five times with her left foot, then five times with the right, 10 times with each foot altogether.

TOMORROW: Eye color transforms face.

Tapered Slacks for Television Evenings

Since women have started dressing specially for television evenings at home, feminine pants of all sorts have surged back into popularity. Smartest of all the many trouser fashions, I think, are the tapered slacks that I saw start as a beach fashion on the beautiful island of Capri when I was there a year ago last summer.

Now these slacks have moved indoors, and become glamor pants in black velvet or velveteen, or in jersey. They are all tapered down in the legs to give that wonderful long-stemmed American beauty look that our women love.

Starting with black velvet tapered slacks, you can build any number of stunning leisure costumes via handsome blouses or the smart new pearly or rhinestone-studded sweaters.

Here's Mrs. Pollock's Famous Recipe for Delicious Sweet Rolls

Dissolve in 1 cup scalded milk
¼ cup butter or margarine
½ cup Franklin Granulated Sugar
1 teaspoon salt
Cool and add 1 cake compressed or 1 package granulated yeast dissolved in ¼ cup lukewarm water
2 eggs, well beaten
6 cups sifted all-purpose flour

Knead dough on lightly floured board until smooth. Shape into ball. Place in greased bowl, cover, let rise until double in bulk. Punch down, knead again. Roll ½" thick on lightly floured board. Spread liberally with butter, brown sugar and cinnamon. Roll jelly-roll fashion.

Cut in ¾" slices; place (cut side down) in greased baking pan. Cover, let rise until double in bulk. Bake in hot oven, 400°F., about 20 minutes. While cake is still hot, frost top with Franklin Confectioners' Sugar icing. Makes about 2 dozen rolls. This is the famous recipe always used by Mrs. Donald Pollock of Canton, Ohio, for the delicious sweet rolls she serves. Most important part of the recipe, says Mrs. Pollock, is to use Franklin Pure Cane Sugar, which always gives you:

Franklin's "Famous Five" Advantages

1. 100% Pure Sugar Cane Sugar
2. Extra-Fine Granulated
3. Fast-Dissolving
4. Free-Mixing
5. Enriches Food Flavors

Rumors Are Flying

Is Margaret Engaged? If So, The White House Isn't Saying

By Elizabeth Maguire

MISS MARGARET TRUMAN came down from New York yesterday by train, while rumors flew ahead of her. The President's daughter made the short journey to attend a dinner party last evening at Blair House, given by her parents in honor of Mrs. Perle Mesta, United States Minister to Luxembourg.

However, at a press conference held in the morning by Mrs. James Meredith Helm, White House social secretary, the dinner party was by-passed in favor of a larger issue. Was Margaret engaged? Was she announcing her engagement? Was she announcing it this weekend at Blair House? And was the man Marvin Braverman, young D. C. attorney who has often escorted Margaret to parties.

Such rumors, reported recently by gossip columnists, drew no comment and no denial from Mrs. Helm. She said Margaret might be spending the weekend at Blair House—in fact, she supposed Margaret was—but the First Family had told her nothing of a forthcoming announcement.

At a cocktail party given by Mr. Braverman last Sunday in honor of Mrs. Mesta, Mrs. Truman was a guest, but Margaret was in New York and did not attend. Mrs. Truman had a nice chat at the party with the host's mother, Mrs. M. E. Braverman.

THE ENGAGEMENT gossip was all news to Mr. Braverman yesterday who stated he knew nothing about the rumors. Asked whether Margaret was spending the weekend in Washington, he protested the White House knew more about her plans than he did.

Another Marvin—Mr. Coles—who went to Yale and who is also a lawyer, says the rumors about Margaret and Marvin B. are "just hokum." The two Marvins have been friendly rivals as escorts of Margaret for several years.

After the Blair House dinner list was given out to the press yesterday Mr. Braverman cautiously confirmed that he was on it. A popular dinner partner around town, Mr. Braverman was graduated from Dartmouth, class of 1929, and Harvard Law School.

MISS TRUMAN

MR. BRAVERMAN

DINNER GUESTS of the President and Mrs. Truman last evening in addition to Mrs. Mesta, Margaret and Marvin, were the Chief Justice and Mrs. Fred Vinson, the Secretary of State and Mrs. Dean Acheson, the Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. Le Gallais, the Secretary of Defense and Mrs. George C. Marshall, the Undersecretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Edward H. Foley, jr.; Dr. William Randolph Lovelace of Albuquerkue, N. Mex., Cornelius C. Moore of Newport, R. I., and Mrs. Earle Stewart of New York.

A gala state occasion is the luncheon to be given by the President and Mrs. Truman honoring Norway's Crown Prince Olav and Crown Princess Martha, Wednesday, November 22, at Blair House. The luncheon will be at 1 p. m.

THEIR ROYAL Highnesses will arrive by plane at National Airport on Sunday, accompanied by Col. N. R. Ostgaard, aide to the Prince, and Mme. Ostgaard, lady-in-waiting to the princess. The prince and princess are coming on a private visit to be the guests of the Ambassador of Norway and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne. Dinners in their honor will be given at the embassy on November 20 and November 22.

Mrs. Truman's schedule for the next two weeks includes many engagements. Tomorrow evening she will go to the Boston Symphony concert at Constitution Hall, and Friday she will be the guest of honor at the Community Chest luncheon to be held in the Hall of Nations room at the Washington Hotel. In the afternoon, at 4 o'clock, she will receive at Blair House the women geologists and wives of delegates attending the annual meeting of the Geological Society of America.

THE FOLLOWING day Mrs. Truman will attend a tea by the American Newspaper Women's Club in honor of Miss Grace McGerr, a former president of the club, who has recently been appointed a member of the Employees Compensation Appeals Board, a position once occupied by the late Senator Hattie W. Caraway.

On Sunday, November 19, the President and Mrs. Truman will be guests of honor at a tea to be given by members of the Woman's National Democratic Club at the clubhouse. The first diplomatic tea of the season will be given at Blair House Tuesday, November 21st, at 5 p. m., when Mrs. Truman will receive a group of Ambassadors and their wives who have come to Washington recently.

The members of the College Park branch of the American Association of University Women will be received by Mrs. Truman on November 24 at 4 p. m. And on November 29, Mrs. Truman will attend the bazaar to be given at the French Embassy for the benefit of the American Red Cross and the camp and hospital facilities of the UN forces serving in Korea.

AAUW Group Sponsors Show

More fellowships for advanced education is the goal of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Branch of the American Association of University Women in the current fund-raising project. Sponsorship of the opening night of the Montgomery Players production of "My Sister Eileen" is being undertaken to realize this aim.

The play will be given on Friday, November 17, at Leland Junior High School. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the branch or from Mrs. Thomas C. Bagg, chairman of the event.

The goal this year is three-fold. It is hoped that an International Fellowship Grant can be established by the branch in addition to the regular annual contribution for the National AAUW Fellowship Fund.

Life of Glamor Gets Her Up Early

By Marie McNair

BETTY KENWARD, who writes for London's "Tatler," leads the kind of glamorous life that society editors are expected to have.

Here on a holiday, Mrs. Kenward was honor guest at a tea yesterday of the American Newspaper Women's Club. She's trim and slim; her black jacket frock yesterday was topped with a red halo hat studded with rhinestones.

As the Tatler's society editor, Betty Kenward reports the doings of Mayfair, her weekly column always including choice bits of news about the royal family which doesn't come out of the Court's information bureau.

She's flying back on Monday to be on hand for the state visit of Queen Juliana and Prince Bernhardt. And then there's an important social event which will take her to the Continent.

It's not all play, however, for this chronicler of London Social intelligence. Betty Kenward is up every day at 6:45 a.m., although she has no office time clock to punch. She gathers news on her home telephone, then is off to a luncheon, her first party of the day. From then on it's teas, dinners and dances, all of which she reports first hand.

ANOTHER LADY who "does things," who was also a guest of the club, was Radie Brittain of Hollywood, widow of the noted Italian sculptor, Edgardo Simone. Winner of music awards and a composer of symphonies as well as of songs, Mrs. Simone is a soft-spoken Texan with eyes as blue as the sea.

Both Mrs. Kenward and Mrs. Simone are friends of Mme. Vladimir Rybar, who was a guest at yesterday's tea. Lady Tedder, handsome blonde wife of Air Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, chairman of the British Joint Services Mission, was among those at the tea table. Others pouring tea and coffee were British-born Mrs. Sory Smith, whose husband, Major General Smith, is Director of Information for the USAF; Mrs. Dorothy Lee Ward and Mrs. Jilgham Williams.

Mrs. Charles P. Cabell, wife of Major General Cabell, USA, was a guest and also there were Mr. and Mrs. Lacy Thompson (he's with the British Information Service); Miss Peggy Holman, who hands out news at the British Embassy; Mrs. Cyrus B. Kitchen; Mrs. Clark Woodward, who did a stint at the tea table, and Miss Yim, a guest of the club's president, Miss Sigrid Arne. A former president of the Coed Central University of Seoul, Miss Yim was in New York when the Korean war broke out, has yet to get any news from her family in South Korea.

MRS. DOROTHY LEE WARD was hostess at luncheon yesterday at the Sulgrave Club, also in honor of Mrs. Kenward.

Mrs. John J. Hearne, wife of the Irish Ambassador, and Mme. Popovic, wife of the Yugoslav Ambassador, were ranking guests. Others were Mrs. John Steelman, Mme. Vladimir Rybar, Mrs. George Thorpe, Mrs. Robert Freer, Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. Radie Brittain, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, Mrs. Emil Hurja, Mrs. James Souby and Mrs. Charles Wahl.

Others were Mrs. Leo Brison Norris, Mrs. Hamilton Lamar, Mrs. Edward Treglown, Mrs. James V. Boyer, Mrs. Robert Freer and Mrs. John Boyd Stanley, niece of the hostess.

ALONG EMBASSY ROW

THE GREEK AMBASSADOR Altanase Politis entertained a small group at cocktails yesterday when he conferred on Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, Chief of Staff of the United States Air Force, a Greek decoration, the Grand Cross of the Royal Order of Phoenix.

Gen. Lauris Norstad, Vice Chief of Staff for Operations, USAF, received a decoration in absentia. He was awarded the Cross of Grand Commanders of the Royal Order of George I. Twenty-three other officers of the Air Force were also awarded decorations yesterday.

THE BRAZILIAN AMBASSADOR, Mauricio Nabico, was host to a small group of friends at dinner last evening at the embassy.

AH, SWEET MUSIC

A SERIES OF GALA PARTIES will be scheduled during the winter after each Georgetown concert. Mrs. James Denby, social chairman for the Georgetown Concert Group, will start the ball rolling with a party for hard-working committee members Thursday night after the opening concert when the Tichman-Budnevich clarinet-piano duo will perform in Western High School at 8:15 p. m.

Guests at Mrs. Denby's home on 33d st. will include the artists, who are Mr. and Mrs. Tichman in real life, and Mr. Tichman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Tichman; Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard Van Arkel, Mr. and Mrs. George Oakes, Mrs. John W. Daniel 3d, David Flodin, Mr. and Mrs. Cameron LaClaire, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bunting, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Keck, Mrs. M. Ruddock, Martin Hiden and Miss Betsy Winter.

BEFORE THE FOOTLIGHTS

LAST MONDAY NIGHT saw many well-known persons at the opening of Arena Stage's "Taming of the Shrew" at the Hippodrome. Among the first nighters were Girard Davidson, Undersecretary of the Department of Interior and Mrs. Davidson, and Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Alonzo of the Philippine Embassy.

From The Plains, Va., Charles G. Smith of Palmerstone was in a party which included Mrs. Patricia Tucker Jackson of Washington and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Taylor of Stirling, The Plains.

PARTY PARADE

MISS ROSE SAUL entertained at luncheon yesterday at the 1925 F Street Club in honor of Mrs. Frederick Drake of New York who is here to visit her parents, Dr. and Mrs. William C. Gwynn. Mrs. Drake is the former Miss Louise Harrison Gwynn.

THE FIRST OF THE SEASON'S luncheons for the four Spanish-study groups of Prof. Ramon Ramos was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. Winfield Crewe, jr.

Senora de Contreras, wife of the Minister-Counselor of the Dominican Republic, was honor guest.

The main dish of the typically Latin-American luncheon consisted of picadillo de pollo, with ensalada verdi and a dessert of casco de guayaba con queso criollo. The dishes were prepared under the direction of Professor Ramos.

The dining room was decorated with nandina and magnolia branches brought up from Roanoke Rapids, N. C., home of the hostess.

DR. ROBERT PROVINE, president of Ward-Belmont College in Belmont, Tenn., was honored last night at a dinner meeting given by the Washington alumnae club of the college. The dinner was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Waldrop, with approximately 75 alumnae and their families attending. In the receiving line with Dr. Provine were Mrs. Dwight Webb, jr., president of the club; Mrs. Estes Kefauver, wife of the Senator from Tennessee, and Mrs. Waldrop.

MRS. PRENTISS D. Sale jr., of Prendell, Arlington, Va., will be hostess at a canasta party today at Hotel 2400. Her guests will include Mrs. Kenneth S. Karr Mrs. George Stetekluh, Mrs. Richard Rogers, Mrs. Frank Werling, Mrs. Sidney Travis, Mrs. Frank Bedell and Mrs. James Miles.

CONGRATULATIONS TO: DR. AND MRS. AARON B. NADEL of Silver Spring, Md., on the birth of a son, Roger Scott, on October 31. The Nadels have three other sons—Ethan, John and Gordon.

IN THE VISITORS' BOOK

MR. AND MRS. KENNETH DE COURCY of Alderbourne Manor, Buckinghamshire, England, will arrive in Washington today for a brief stay. Mr. de Courcy, a member of the family of the Earl of Kingsdale and publisher of the international magazine Intelligence Digest, will address the National Press Club and deliver two McCabe Lectures at the American University.

DATE BOOK DATA:

On the Town

By Georganne Williamson

THAT TALENTED Chilean family, Los Chicanos, is back in town again—this time at the Old New Orleans. The three brothers, two sisters and mother have been appearing in night spots from here to New York State since they left Washington a few months ago. They have played at the Wardman Park, the Kavakos and the Statler here, but the Old New Orleans introduced them, and that's where they've returned.

Los Chicanos are among the best of South American musicians and dancers; their show is true to native form. The heavy accent on rhythm, with one brother on the drums, another on the bongo drums and sister Lupe with the maracas, brings out the varying accents of the Latin dances.

Lupe is charming. Although she does not have a ballerina's training, her personality adds the touch that makes each dance effective. When Lupe sings, it is in a weaving duet with the band.

Each of the family of six has an important part in Los Chicanos' shows. The mother is never seen, but is very important. She makes her children's life on the road very different from that most entertainers know. And she creates the costumes, which shame those of many performers.

Lupe and her brothers change costumes perhaps three times an hour, and Senora Papena has covered each one with embroidery and applique in bold design. They helped a lot to make Los Chicanos a favorite on color television.

Liquid Sandpaper Will Do The Trick in Preparing Woodwork for New Paint

DEAR ANNE:

I am about to paint my remodeled kitchen and have a variety of surfaces to paint with enamel. There are white enameled cabinets, unfinished plywood, flat-painted walls and some galvanized metal pipes. How should each surface be prepared for the final coat—the enamel oil paint?

There is a product on the market called liquid sandpaper. I wonder how satisfactory this would be to take the gloss off the cabinets, so that I could apply the enamel directly, without first sanding and applying a flat coat?

Mrs. J. G. B., Alexandria, Va.

Sanding the surface would be sufficient preparation for painting the cabinets. The liquid sandpaper is intended for exactly such a purpose—to dull the gloss, clean, and prepare the surface for a fresh coat of paint. At the same time, it doesn't remove the undercoat so you still have a nice base for the new paint.

The unfinished plywood should be painted with a flat undercoat before you put on the final enamel coat.

The flat-painted walls should be washed with a solution of washing soda and warm water, then rinsed with clear water. Cut out and fill with patching plaster all cracks and holes. Shellac patches, or paint them with thinned flat oil paint. When dry, apply fresh paint to entire surface.

Before painting the galvanized metal pipes, wipe them off with vinegar. Let dry and apply an undercoat before putting on final enamel finish.

DEAR ANNE:

In the fall of 1946, three leading women's magazines had an ad run by a refrigerator company with a recipe for ice box rolls. Since I lost that particular recipe, we haven't had any good rolls! Can you locate it with such skimpy directions?

P. L. M., Greenbelt, Md.

You might get it by writing one of the magazines or the refrigerator company, if you recall which one it was. Maybe though, some kind reader clipped it and will send it in.

DEAR ANNE:

A few days ago, some black patent leather refinish for shoes was spilled over the white bathroom seat and lid. This appears to be made with paint baked in the wood, and does not respond to any cleaner we have tried—alcohol, scouring powder, turpentine, clothes cleaner. At most, if the shoe polish in spots turns lighter, the paint seems to come off and it becomes pinkish. Do you have any suggestions for cleaning? If not, what kind of painting or refinishing job is necessary?

Mrs. A. J. M., Bethesda, Md.

I think you might as well give up on trying to remove the spots. Painting over them is your best bet. This isn't too satisfactory, as the paint will gradually wear off. It can be renewed, however. Before painting, scrub the seat thoroughly, and rinse. Let dry, then paint. Let paint dry very thoroughly before putting seat back into use.

DEAR ANNE:

I have just recently discontinued my diaper service and am laundering them myself. The diaper service company was kind enough to allow me to purchase one of their nice tall diaper containers and mesh bags for my own use and at the same time, also gave me two small deodorant cakes for use inside the can to keep down odors. I have tried in vain to find someplace to purchase these cakes, but have had no success. Can you tell me where I might find them and what to ask for?

F. S. M., Arlington, Va.

These blocks are the same as those sold for moth control and contain paradichlorobenzene. You can obtain them almost anywhere that moth-proofing supplies are sold. Grocery stores carry them, and so do drug stores.

Father Will Head Camp Fire Girls' Council in Fairfax

In line with a policy of operating under leadership of fathers as well as mothers of young members, the Fairfax County District Council of Camp Fire Girls has appointed Capt. Roy A. Gano, director of enlisted personnel of the United States Navy, as its new president to succeed Mrs. Joseph C. Fought, retiring.

Captain Gano, father of 10-year-old Eugenia of a Falls Church Camp Fire group, took over the gavel immediately after his election at the council's second annual meeting and banquet at the Dardanelles in Falls Church.

Other officers unanimously elected to serve with Captain Gano were Mrs. Mark Regan, vice president; Collas Harris, finance officer, and Mrs. Thomas Tiernin, secretary. Elected to serve on the board of directors and as chairmen of committees were Mrs. Roy Gano, Joseph H. Freehill, Mrs. John Graham, Mrs. Donald Macleay, Kenneth M. Perry, Mrs. Lawrence M. Proctor, and Mrs. Karl Robinson.

George A. Stewart, executive director of the Fairfax County Community Chest, served as banquet toastmaster and greetings were given by Gloria McGillis, an organizer of the county's first Horizon Club of teen-age Camp Fire Girls. Addresses were made by Raymond Gregg, head naturalist of the National Park Service, and Mrs. Madge Longley, director of the Community Chest's Lay Health Association. The Rev. Edward E. Tate, headmaster of St. Stephens Episcopal School in Alexandria, pronounced the invocation and benediction.

Engagement Is Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Huffman announce the engagement of their daughter, Betty Lee, to James D. Georgeson, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Georgeson. The wedding will take place next year.

Hecht Sales Rise 3.6% in Third Period

By S. Oliver Goodman

The Hecht Co. yesterday reported net sales of $21,002,308 for the quarter ended October 31, a gain of 3.6 percent over the same 1949 period.

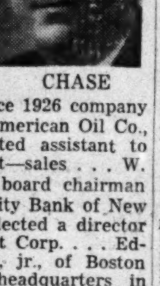
This brought sales for the first nine months of the firm's fiscal year to $58,232,744 compared with $58,121,487 for the corresponding 1949 period, President Samuel M. Hecht said. The increase in dollar volume amounted to 0.2 percent.

For the 12 months ended October 31, sales of The Hecht Co. stores in six cities aggregated $84,141,129, a gain of 0.8 percent over the $83,514,110 in the previous year.

The chain operates stores in Washington, Silver Spring, Baltimore, Annapolis, Easton and New York City.

SEVENTH IN SALES: Washington, although ninth in population, ranked seventh among the Nation's cities in retail dollar sales. A Dun & Bradstreet analysis estimated this city's sales at $1,118,777,000 in 1949. Other cities in order of population had retail sales as follows: New York, $7,520,000,000; Chicago, $4,249,000,000; Philadelphia, $2,066,820,000; Los Angeles, $2,176,651,000; Detroit, $2,033,425,000; Baltimore, $1,041,084,000; Cleveland, $1,151,636,000; St. Louis, $958,734,000; (Washington ranks here in population); Boston, $1,057,393,000.

WHO'S NEWS: W. Howard Chase will speak on "The Sales Job of the National Production Authority" at a luncheon meeting Monday of the Sales Executives Club of Washington in the Mayflower. Chase is director of public relations for General Foods Corp. and special consultant to Secretary of Commerce Sawyer . . . C. H. Thompson, since 1926 company counsel for the American Oil Co., has been appointed assistant to the vice president—sales . . . W. Gage Brady, jr., board chairman of the National City Bank of New York, has been elected a director of United Aircraft Corp. . . . Edward W. Gamble, jr., of Boston will make his headquarters in Washington following his appointment as assistant to Francis J. Curtis, vice president and director industrial preparedness for Monsanto Chemical Co.



CHASE

NET GAINS: Eastern Air Lines, Inc., reported earnings of $1,746,007, or 73 cents a share, in the first nine months of this year. The company said this compared with a net profit of $1,361,136, or 57 cents a share, in the comparable period of 1949.

AWARDS: Four Washington organizations yesterday were listed among 11 winners of "silver anvils," top award for achievement in public relations during 1949-50. They are M. Belmont Ver Standig Advertising in labor and employe relations; National Fertilizer Association in agriculture; National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association in agriculture, and Capital Airlines in transportation. An achievement plaque went to the National Highway Users Conference of Washington. The year's special award went to Howard University of Washington "for outstanding achievement in the field of international relations." The awards were announced yesterday at a luncheon meeting of the American Public Relations Association in the Willard Hotel.

HITS CREDIT RULES: A spokesman for the Nation's credit men says new drastic credit regulations "reflect some of the fallacies of Government thinking in recent years." Henry H. Heimann, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men, said that these fallacies in thinking result from unintelligent and injudicious governmental credit practices.

ODD LOTS: Folger, Nolan, Inc., of Washington is a member of the syndicate which is offering $75,145,000 of Commonwealth of Massachusetts bonds at prices to yield from 0.85 percent for those maturing July 1, 1951, to 1.55 percent for those maturing October 1, 1980 . . . Business bankruptcies in the week ended November 9 fell to 135, lowest level of 1950, Dun & Bradstreet reported . . . Stockholders of Avco Manufacturing Corp. approved plan to increase authorized common shares to 15 million from 10 million in connection with acquisition of Bendix Home Appliance, Inc. . . . Schenley Industries, Inc., has arranged for an additional 25 million dollars in long-term funds for a period of 25 years at an interest rate of 3 percent.

EARNINGS: The North American Co. reported net income of $12,442,000 or $1.45 a share for the 12 months ended September 30, compared with $12,382,000 or $1.44 a share in the previous year. Other income statements:

Stocks Stage Mild Climb; Trade Slow

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP).—An afternoon rally gave the stock market a gentle lift today. It was the fifth advance in a row.

During the morning light selling breees pushed steel and auto issues down and unsettled the rest of the market. Selling pressure was never severe, however, and losses were confined to 50 cents a share or less for the most part.

WHAT STOCKS DID	Tues.	Mon.
Advances	474	582
Declines	394	297
Unchanged	268	248
Total issues	1136	1127

Later, with steels and rails leading the way, a slow recovery got under way and many early losses were cut down or eliminated.

The rally was far from decisive for a hefty assortment of stocks closed with modest net losses.

The pace of business picked up a little speed when the market was on the way up, but the day's sales totaled only 1,680,000 shares. This was only a trifle better than 1,630,000 Monday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 10 cents to $83.80, the best level in around three weeks. The rail group showed the greatest strength while utilities on average showed only minor improvement. The industrial component of the average receded a small amount.

President Truman's recommendation to Congress for approval of an excess profits tax to produce an annual 4-billion-dollar revenue was announced after the market closed. He asked that the EPT be enacted at the forthcoming session of Congress.

A businessmen's tax program for defense was also announced too late to affect the market. A proposal by the Committee for Economic Development (CED) called for a seven billion dollar tax increase in 1951 without an excess profit tax.

New York Cotton

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP).—Cotton futures turned reactionary today under moderate pressure of hedge selling and liquidation. Final prices were 30 to 85 cents a bale lower, except nearby December which closed up 15 cents a bale. Trade buying was mostly scaled down in nature, with mills not inclined to cover futures aggressively in the face of hedging operations by merchants.

Should Steel Industry Finance Butter to Go With U. S. Guns?

By J. A. Livingston

THE real issue behind the argument over whether the country needs more steel capacity is: How much butter should the United States have with its guns?

Charles E. Wilson of General Motors can declare—as he has—that the leaders of the steel industry lack vision, that they are not keeping up with the growth of the country. But all he means is that if steel capacity isn't increased, then war demands are going to take steel away from General Motors and other durable-goods manufacturers. Result: Cutbacks of civilian production.

Livingston

A similar line of reasoning lies back of the forecasts of steel needs made by Assistant Secretary of the Interior C. Girard Davidson. He wants 120,000,000 tons of capacity by 1952, against present capacity of about 100,000,000 tons, and projected capacity of 110,000,000 tons by 1952. Davidson doesn't want steel capacity to put a ceiling on our overall production.

For Benjamin Fairless of U. S. Steel, Eugene Grace of Bethlehem, or Charles M. White of Republic, the problem is not as simple as butter vs. guns, or more capacity versus less capacity. They're damned if they do and damned if they don't.

IF THEY MAKE the blithe assumption that steel demand is going to go up and up uninterruptedly, then ultimately they may have too much plant on their hands and be criticized for overexpansion—as they were in the thirties for their optimism in the twenties. Yet if they don't expand now, they're damned as bottlenecks to progress.

Steel executives are in the predicament: Steel isn't exactly a public utility, like electric power or gas or rail transportation. Steel prices are not subject to review and approval by a Public Service Commission or the Interstate Commerce Commission. Yet the steel industry isn't free to price as it pleases.

As soon as the steel industry raises prices, a congressional committee demands an explanation of the whys and wherefors. Yet how can the industry explain what is a proper price? The industry doesn't charge what the traffic will bear. The "gray" market proves that. Prices could be much higher. One of the criticisms leveled at the industry is that in failing to raise its prices high enough, it is subsidizing industries which buy its products. The auto industry, for example, is one of the beneficiaries of the price restraint imposed by the ever-present threat of a congressional inquiry.

Nor are steel prices high enough to produce profits which bait steel executives on to build new steel capacity. In 1949, for instance, 54 steel companies earned 11.5 percent on their net assets, as against 13.8 percent for all manufacturing, and 30.8 percent for the auto industry.

CLEARLY, auto companies, which realize 30 percent return on their capital, surplus and reserves, can see plenty of reasons for steel expansion! A steel man, making only 11 percent—and that in an unusually fine year—would not be so sure that large-scale new investment is justified, especially at high postwar construction costs. He wonders: How long will this demand persist? In the 20 years from 1925 through 1944 the industry operated at only 68 percent of capacity.

In the final analysis, the steel industry has all the headaches of a regulated monopoly, without being a monopoly. The companies within the industry compete with one another. Steel, itself, competes with aluminum, copper, lumber, and other materials. Yet prices are "controlled" by inquiry.

And steel men are never sure when the days of famine will replace those of feast. They know that their return is low compared with that of autos, household appliances, lumber, and petroleum. But they also know that if they don't expand capacity, they face the threat of Government construction of competing plants. The pressure today is all toward providing more butter to go along with increased guns. How would you like to be a steel man?

Wife's Talking Bird Competes With Wells' World Crisis Ideas

EXPLORER—Carveth and Mrs. Wells, with their two talking mynahs—Raffles II (left) and Nickette

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

The atom bomb was leading the Carveth Wells interview by a mile until the mynah bird was brought in and started singing "Hail. Hail, the Gang's All Here."

An explorer of note and recently returned from the Far East, Mr. Wells was expounding on how to stop communism in that teeming area.

"I might be called a warmongerer," said he, "but I would do this:

"I would not fight Red China—why take on one tentacle of the octopus? I would tell Russia that unless she called China off in Korea, and in Tibet, we would declare war on Russia herself. This, I think, would turn the trick. If it didn't, I would proceed to drop atom bombs on Russia.

Touch-and-Go Interview

"What," asked Mr. Wells, "have we been making atom bombs for—fun?"

Up to this point the interview in the Wardman Park suite had ranged touch-and-go over such items as Chiang Kai-shek, the Indians' desire to be counted in on the Marshall Plan, and Mr. Wells' idea for making an international park of Kashmir.

A certain restlessness was noted among the men of the press and a whisper heard, "What you gonna use for a lead?"

It was not that anyone questioned the importance of the matters aired by Mr. Wells. But as one reporter whispered to a brother: "Kashmir? Most Americans think that's something you wear."

Furious Scribbling

Then Mr. Wells was exploding his atom bombs, the idle pencils were scribbling furiously and all was well.

Matters would have rested thus had not Mrs. Wells left the sitting room and returned a second later carrying, perched on her fingers, two mynah birds.

The mynah bird, or at least the mynah bird lucky enough to have Mrs. Wells for a professor, must be one of the more remarkable creatures alive.

"How are you?" Mrs. Wells asked one of the birds, named Raffles II. We almost jumped out of our skin when the bird replied, clear as H. V. Kaltenborn:

"I'm a good birdie. Hoity, toity, toity."

Bird Definitely Talked

One startled reporter leaped across the room and fastened his eyes on Mrs. Wells' lips while she repeated her question.

No gimmicks. It was the bold talking.

"How do you like Hollywood?" Mrs. Wells asked.

Raffles responded with a perfect "wolf-call" from his pink beak.

The mynah didn't just sing songs. He sang specific songs and as requested, such as "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here" and the "Star-Spangled Banner."

In other words the bird understood the English language. Mrs. Wells explained she teaches the birds, full name "Indian Hill Mynah" by treating them "just like a puppy, babying them, feeding them grapes when they respond as you wish." Raffles I, she observed, performed with the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra—a whistling cadenza.

Raffles II is a male, 2½ years old. With him was his new mate, 6-months-old Nickette, acquired especially for the Seward by the Wells on their recent trip to Asia.

They gave a nice interview, the Wells', Raffles II and Nickette. But by the time that "I'm a good birdie, hoity, toity toity," got started, the atom bomb didn't have a chance.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 14 (AP). Eastman Kodak Co. today voted a wage dividend of an estimated 18 million dollars for 45,000 employes in the United States.

The wage dividend is the largest total amount in the 39-year history of the plan at Kodak. It will be paid March 9, 1951.

A cash dividend of 60 cents a share on the common payable January 2, to stock of record December 5, and a stock dividend of one share for each 10 now held, payable January 20, to stock of record December 22, were also ordered.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Nov. 14 (AP).—Soybeans established new seasonal highs in today's Board of Trade session, and wheat developed independent strength on reports of export business.

Corn and oats found the going slower than wheat and soybeans, but oats established new seasonal highs, before profit cashing ate into the advance.

At the finish wheat was 2 to 3 higher, corn was unchanged to ½ cent higher, oats were ⅜ lower to ¾ higher, rye was ¼ lower to ⅛ higher, soybeans were 2¼ to 4¼ higher and lard was unchanged to 5 cents a hundredweight lower.

1160-Pound Hereford Wins At Timonium

TIMONIUM, Md., Nov. 14 (AP).—An Oklahoma breeder, making his debut as a cattle showman, won grand championship honors today at the Eastern National Livestock Show.

Fred Demier of Miami, Okla., took the top steer award with a 1160-pound Hereford.

Demier credited his herdsman, Richard Lacey, with the victory. Lacey had the job of feeding and showing the animal.

A New York younster with an extreme rarity—a red Aberdeen Angus—won the reserve championship for steers. Peter Miller, a 4-H clubber from Millbrook, N. Y., is owner of the animal.

Even some old cattle hands at the show admitted the 12-year-old's winning entry was unlike anything they had seen.

Maugham's 'Trio' Is Lean and Neat

By Richard L. Coe

IN "TRIO," Somerset Maugham and a group of imaginative Englishmen are once more proving that the screen is a perfectly elegant place for short stories.

The film, patterned with exceptional success on the successful "Quartet," had its opening last night at the Playhouse before a distinguished audience benefiting the American Theater Wing's drive for entertainment in veterans' hospitals.

"In "Trio" there are, if you'll pardon my insulting your intelligence, three stories, two of wry irony, one of dry sentiment. "The Verger" tells what happened to a simple man who lost his church job because he could neither read nor write. "Mr. Knowall" gives a surprise twist to one of those over-friendly characters. "Sanatorium" pictures romantic and friendly relationships in a Scottish home for TB patients.

What makes these stories engrossing is that they are presented for what they are worth—short stories not stretched into feature-length telling time. To the dogged picture-goer, it is a never-failing source of sadness that when short stories are brought to the screen, they are padded either by those who did not write them or stretched by those who, if that's the way they wanted to tell them, might as well have written novellas in the first place. James Thurber, Ernest Hemingway, Bret Harte, Ring Lardner, Damon Runyon and, aye, even Faith Baldwin have been represented with feature-length films that would have been far better told under the hour-and-a-half to two-hour running time demanded by customary programming.

So it is that these three stories have an integrity which makes "Trio" one of the year's most enjoyable pictures. They are as lean and neat as the old story-teller wrote them, and he's also had a hand in writing the screen plays with R. C. Sherriff and Noel Langley.

The acting in all three has that keen balance between reality and invention of the better British pictures. Outstanding certainly are James Hayter and Kathleen Harrison, as the verger and his bride of the first picture; Nigel Patrick, bringing sharp focus to the part of the obnoxious yet likable "Mr. Knowall" and using for it a voice that must have been lifted by syllables from a Syrian merchant; Jean Simmons, Michael Rennie, Roland Culver and Betty Ann Davies as principals in "Sanatorium," the section which offers the greatest variety of acting opportunities; as the warring Scotsmen, John Laurie and Finlay Currie are superb.

The tone of all three is faithful to the model of dry minute observation which made "Quartet" such a favorite. The British of Pinewood have again showed us that short stories can be fittingly used on the screen without the obvious cordage devices previously encumbering such attempts.

Maugham is seen briefly introducing each yarn and it's mighty good to have the old story-teller and his tales with us agani.

IRONY NOTE: Robert E. Sherwood is heading a new "Council ot the Living Theater," which has decided next year to celebrate 200 years of living theater in America . . , For the end of the year a National Theater Week in Washington is planned, but it's a good thing it's a year ahead; as it happens, the suggested dates this year, with the cancellation of "Lost in the Stars, would find our sole theater dark . . . However, Manager Bernie Ferber, still has hopes of filling the two weeks starting December 18.

THE BILL McGUIRE who this morning reviews Arena Stage's "The Taming of the Shrew," is by now Florida-bound for his winter acting leads . . . A C. U. drama graduate, my idea of about the best actor to come out of Father Hartke's school and a fellow who's had several seasons of summer and winter Equity acting, McGuire is well equipped to serve as your eyes for this play . . . His winter job will find him acting in a similar arena theater and he's studied the play closely under orders to play Petruchio himself . . . He knows whereof he winningly speaks and you can take his word for it that the Arena has a good show.

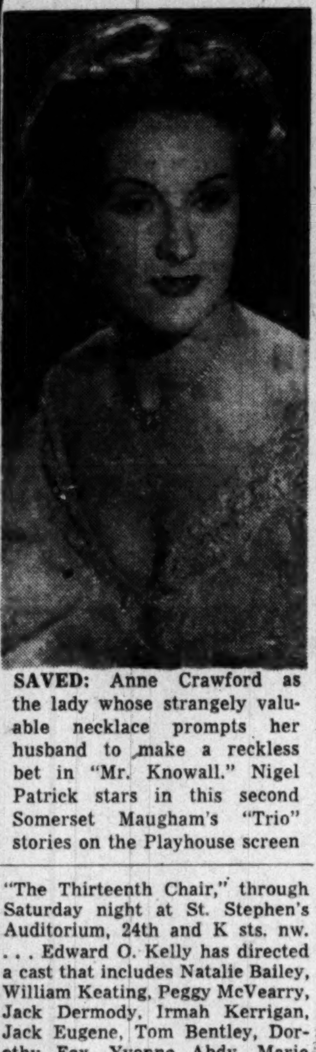
THE ROCKVILLE Little Theater will open its third season tomorrow night, playing "Jane Eyre" through Saturday evening at the Episcopal Parish Hall on South Washington st. . . . Dorothy Mostofi has directed a cast which includes Pamela Bairsto, Rodney Chalk, Gillian Bairsto, Margaret Slater, Nancy Gude, Zaidee Tennery, Ray Maryman and Eric Purdon . . . Curtain time: 8:30.

THE WASHINGTON CIRCLE Players also open their season tonight, playing Bayard Veiller's "The Thirteenth Chair," through Saturday night at St. Stephen's Auditorium, 24th and K sts. nw. . . . Edward O. Kelly has directed a cast that includes Natalie Bailey, William Keating, Peggy McVearry, Jack Dermody, Irmah Kerrigan, Jack Eugene, Tom Bentley, Dorothy Fox, Yvonne Abdy, Marie Gerhard, Bernie Litchfield, Carl D'Ambrosi, Joseph Mazor, Catherine Jaskot, Calvin Jenkins, Pete Brogan and Charles Livermore.

THE HOWARD UNIVERSITY Players are having fun with Gogol's "The Government Inspector" this week at the small campus theater . . . James W. Butcher, back from his Fulbright year in Europe, has directed a cast that includes Charles White, Agnes McRae, Karlen McAlpine, Ernest Jackson, Angela Marchena, Stewart Street, Harry Baxter, Edward Washington, George Johnson, Wiliam Brown, Edward Hall, Herb Davis, Edmere Winfield, David Eaton, Martha Carr, William Bondhill, Herman Robinson, Burns Forsythe and Beth Nelson . . . The comedy continues through Saturday night; curtains at 8:30.

MATINEE TODAY: "Lend An Ear," at the Gayety and "The Taming of the Shrew" at Arena Stage.

OPENING TODAY: "Wymong Main," Stephen McNally as the delivery man, at Keith's.



SAVED: Anne Crawford as the lady whose strangely valuable necklace prompts her husband to make a reckless bet in "Mr. Knowall." Nigel Patrick stars in this second Somerset Maugham's "Trio" stories on the Playhouse screen

Rousing Production

'Taming of the Shrew' Adds Brilliance to Arena Stage

ARENA STAGE this week is adding luster to its opening season with its initial Shakespearean production, "The Taming of the Shrew."

It may occur to many that this is early to fly into the teeth of the recent Broadway musical version, "Kiss Me Kate," which played so successfully here last summer at the Watergate.

The Arena Stagers have ignored this threat and have come up with a rousing, boisterous production which goes back to the original in manner of production as well as in script.

The entire theater is considered stage and is decorated accordingly. The comedy itself moves as easily through the audience as across the playing area. We are even asked to believe that boys are playing the girls' parts, which apparently adds to the audience's fun. Fun, that is, because we know it isn't true.

Since it is still appearing in different disguises, we can assume that the story of Petruchio's wooing and taming of the ill-tempered Katherine is familiar to 'most everyone. However, Shakespeare is still the best narrator of this plot and Director Edward Mangum has supported him with a swiftly paced and exuberant production.

He has wisely focused the attention on the conflict between the incompatible but inevitable lovers without sacrificing the low-comedy so popular with Elizabethan audiences. Although the intimacy of central staging and audience participation inhibits the belly-laugh in this instance, the horseplay fares better than might be expected from today's sophisticated theater-goer.

The greatest single asset of this production lies in the performance of the "Shrew" by Anne Chodoff. Miss Chodoff is making her first local appearance since her brittle and polished portrayal of Beatrice in Catholic University's "Much Ado About Nothing" several seasons back.

From her first entrance, which couldn't be more tigress-like if she came in on all fours, one is aware of a vital and exciting stage personality. Miss Chodoff resists the obvious temptation to make Katherine merely a brawling, snarling, termagant and creates a full-blooded and intensely alive woman.

Her Kate is as sexy and provocative as she is disagreeable.

Pernell Roberts, in the difficult role of Petrucchio, is not as successful as the masterful, iron-willed tamer. He is a swashbuckling roue but somewhat lacking in forcefulness and the power to match Miss Chodoff's spirited Kate.

It's minus Cole Porter but it's plus Shakespeare, and that's pretty good theatregoing.

An Impeccable Chorus

Gilbert and Sullivan Masters Play to Thin Baltimore House

FORD'S THEATER, Baltimore, is playing host to England's famed Gilbert and Sullivan masters, the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company, for a run which will continue through Saturday night the 25th.

Once again the company proves itself with the sparkling Martyn Green and a chorus of impeccable virtues, a situation comparable in a sense to that of Margot Fonteyn and the spendid corps of the Sadler's Wells Ballet.

The opening night audience was surprisingly thin for the group's first visit to Baltimore, either a mark of supreme ignorance on the part of Baltimoreans, of patience in the then-unwritten rave reviews or a repetition of the small early week audiences our Gayety is attracting.

"The Mikado" got off under the superlative leadership of Isadore Godfrey, without whose still red thatch a true D'Oyly Carte performance couldn't be. Though the chorus and principals were at ease, they didn't sparkle until the entrance of Green's classic Ko-Ko. This great trouper's sharp humor put his fellows on their mettle and by the second act all was very well.

For Green—and Darrell Fancourt, who still has the title role in this one—are masters, and anyone who has not seen them cannot truthfully be said to have seen real Gilbert and Sullivan. Green switches mood most effectively by singing "Tit Willow" as a lovely little ballad and, yes, he can still tweak his toes inimitably.

Though tradition in staging and song has always come first with these Savoyards, I noticed several changes from their past performances. The term "nigger," which Gilbert employed in two patter songs, has given way to other meanings and Poobah refers to an "atomic globule" in his pride speech, though that's a change I'm not sure of since at the moment I'm not able to get at my book. The quintet of Act II has new staging, splitting the principals three and two.

Of the principals new to me, Neville Griffiths, a Welshman with his land's traditional gift of song, seemed most satisfactory. Though he's shortish, he can sing the way Arthur Sullivan must have dreamed of and he's programmed for most of the principal tenor roles the next two weeks. Ella Halman was a fine Katisha, though I expect it will be another century before one hears anyone to equal the company's contralto of its first American trip about 14 years ago. I think her name was Dorothy Green.

Mrs. Stabler's ticket mart in Brentano's on F st. is making both ticket and transportation arrangements if you are not making your own arrangements with Ford's.

As I say, it's a pity the company couldn't have been booked into the Gayety, where last year when bookings were being made, other charms were on view; the 9th st. orchestra pit would be too small, but at all events that chorus and the Messrs. Green and Fancourt remain their wonderful selves.

Trapped Rider Badly Hurt as Truck Upsets

A 57-year-old Clarksburg, W. Va., man was seriously hurt yesterday when the trailer truck in which he rode overturned on U. S. Route 50 near Pender, Va. and trapped him in the cab.

William E. Allen had to be hacksawed from the truck after it ran over a deep road shoulder, went out of control, and struck a tree about 2 p. m.

At Arlington Hospital examination showed he suffered a possible fractured left leg, possible broken right arm, and multiple face cuts. His son, Lester F. Allen, 30, of Clarksburg, listed by police as the driver, also was admitted with a possible broken left leg.

Shortly before 6 p.m., Thomas E. Woolfrey, about 65, of Goldale, Va., suffered a broken shoulder when struck by an auto on U. S. Route 1, four miles south of Woodbridge, Va.

State Police listed the driver of the north-bound car as Earl Wells, 28, of Woodbridge. No charge was placed against him. Woolfrey was admitted to Alexandria Hospital.

In Arlington, Howard J. McClellan, 33, of 543 Bellevue dr., Falls Church, received a chest injury after his auto collided with another car at Pershing dr. and N. Irving st. Driver of the other vehicle, Arthur Roberts, 21, of 609 Jackson st., Falls Church, was uninjured.

Lofstrand Renamed Head Of Delegation

Anders R. Lofstrand, jr., 33, Rockville manufacturer, was reelected chairman of the Montgomery County delegation to the Maryland House of Delegates at a meeting of the delegation Monday night, it was announced yesterday.

The delegates discussed plans for putting into effect the Republican platform which provided for the transfer to the county of administrative functions of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission

Lofstrand said a meeting will be held sometime next week with Republican members of the Legislature from Prince Georges County to further legislation which would effect these changes.

The chairman said that plans for the legislation will be made public within a short time and that criticisms or suggestions will be welcomed. Those seeking to communicate their views on such legislation should address them to "A. R. Lofstrand, jr., chairman, Rockville, Md."

Montgomery School Land Plans Weighed

Modification of the proposed regulations of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission providing for reservation of land for public schools in subdivisions was suggested yesterday by the Montgomery County Board of Education.

The school board, officials explained, concurs in the necessity for setting aside areas so that the cost of the land will not be increased by construction or advancing real estate values but believes the regulations should be amended to provide, among other proposals:

That a report be made to the school board whenever it appears that a school site reservation is in the public interest, stating size of the site and the time for which the reservation is to run, not to exceed the statutory three years;

That a public hearing be held by the planning commission, which would designate the area public school site;

That use of the area for any other purpose be prohibited without sanction by the commission.

It was announced that graduation exercises will be held June 18 at Poolesville and Richard Montgomery High Schools; June 19 at Bethesda-Chevy Chase, Damascus, Sherwood, Gaithersburg, Montgomery Blair and Carver High Schools.

Church Work Spread Urged

A call for enlarged church activity in social welfare planning was issued yesterday by an official of the Federal Council of Churches yesterday.

Speaking before the opening session of Howard University's thirty-fourth annual religious convocation, Dr. Beverley M. Boyd said the church's role often has been merely to approve "already formulated plans."

"We should show community leaders that the church is not to be dragged in by the back door after all social planning is done," said the executive director of the council's department of social Christian planning.

He told more than 100 delegates that "the church has a right to sit in judgment of plans to se if they come within the scope of Christian ethics."

Dr. Boyd made a strong plea for continuation of both governmental and private welfare agencies and pointed to the possible danger "if all responsibility were left to the State."

"An unwholesome, unwieldly and inefficient bureaucracy would evolve," he said.

In the field of human welfare abroad, Dr. Boyd praised the work of the Christian churches which, he said, have had "a Point Four program for years."

Other sessions during the day featured a talk by the Rev. Howard Thurman, minister of Fellowship Church of All People, San Francisco, on "The Power of the Spirit and the Powers of This World," and discussion groups.

Postlude

Shouts Greet Fine Recital By Warren

By Paul Hume

Leonard Warren, star baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, sang his first Washington song recital last night. It is a safe bet that it was not his last.

The popular American singer turned on all the heat of his brilliant voice, and before long he had the Constitution Hall audience shouting for encores. His printed program covered a handsomely chosen list of music by classic Italian composers, the finest names in French song literature, and an unusually good selection of American songs for a native opera star to program.

Willard Sektberg gave Warren outstanding accompaniments, particularly in the difficult field of playing opera music on the piano. If, in Verdi's Credo, Otello, we missed the trumpets and the rich orchestration, no one could have done more than Sektberg.

Warren's voice is a familiar matter to any who have heard opera in this country in the past decade.

As a concert singer he is much newer. His finest moments were those in the opera arias: the Credo, Toreador Song, Prologue to Pagliacci, and Valentine's aria from Faust. In songs of rapid movement and dramatic intent, he found it easier to convey the essence of the song than in the quiet repose of such music as Faure and D'Indy.

His opening group of Italian songs was handled with expert style, and his best singing, aside from the opera songs, was in Bizet's Agnus Dei.

In French songs Warren is solid, resonant, and persuasive, but the spirit of Gallic subtlety is lacking. We must commend him for his restraint in his choice of American music, but his interpolations into Griffes' Old Song Resung are out of place and completely inacceptable. Griffes was not that kind of composer, and it corrupts the song.

In addition to the opera encores from Carmen and Pagliacci, Warren sang a familiar version of Old Mother Hubbard as it might have been written by Handel.

Proffit to Be Cash

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 14 (AP).—Proffitt will become cash in a wedding scheduled here November 25. The bride-to-be is Miss Luella Proffit, 30, of St. Louis. The groom is to be William H. Cash, 33, of nearby Columbia, Ill.

County Council Newcomers Indoctrinated

Montgomery County's recently elected new county council got a preview of the future yesterday.

The council-elect sat in with the old council for the regular session in Rockville in an effort to become acquainted with their new duties.

Harold F. Hammond (R.) is the only member of the old council race last election. He was successful and it is expected that he will be elected president, to succeed Frederic P. Lee.

Mrs. Stella B. Werner (D.), newly elected, also knows her way around. She has been covering the council since it started two years ago for her radio broadcast and for a Bethesda weekly newspaper. Mrs. Werner and Grover Walker are the only two Democrats on the new council. The other five members are Republicans.

They are: Lathrop E. Smith, George F. Nesbitt, Mrs. Kathryn J. Lawlor and J. Louis Monarch.

Contract for $1,154,000 for construction of the new Montgomery County Office Building in Rockville was awarded to Byrne Organization, Inc., of Washington, lowest of four bidders.

The county has signed a contract for $687,000 and has given the contractor a letter of intent for $467,000, President Lee explained. A contract previously awarded, provided $184,648 for excavation and structural steel construction. The new building is to be located at Jefferson and S. Carey sts., Rockville.

Lee said that the building is expected to get under way shortly and that the completion date depends upon rapidity with which steel and other materials may be obtained.

Resolution Passed

Council Urges Sewage Plant In Alexandria

Alexandria's City Council went on record last night in favor of building and operating a sewage disposal plant, despite objections by one member that the resolution was a "useless gesture."

Councilman Marshall J. Beverley introduced the resolution, which was adopted by a 6-1 vote. The negative vote was cast by Council R. Samuel Luckett, who said the resolution carried no weight because it merely agreed that council would "take steps to finnace such a plant" after the first of the year.

Alexandria has been criticized by the State Water Control Board for failure to progress toward a sewage disposal system, while Fairfax and Arlington Counties have borrowed money for the purpose.

In another action last night, the council voted to buy the old Alexandria-Washington Masonic Lodge rooms in the present city hall for $10,000.

The quarters have been used by the Masons under an agreement extending back to 1802, when the original town hall building was constructed. It was completely restored after burning in 1871. Lodge members have recently moved to new headquarters.

The offices, situated on the second and third floors facing Cameron st., will be used for a new courtroom, law library and witness room.

$30,000 Drive Opens to Aid 25,000 District Arthritics

The District chapter of the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation yesterday opened its 1950-51 funds-raising drive to collect $30,000.

The local drive is part of a Nation-wide campaign to raise two million dollars to educate arthritics on what treatments are presently available and to sponsor medical research and medical training.

In helping open the local drive yesterday, a Philadelphia specialist, Dr. Richard T. Smith, estimated the probable number of arthritics in Washington. Based on prevailing incidences of the disease and Washington's population, he estimated:

1. There are 2400 completely bedridden arthritics in the District. Most are so crippled they can't wash or feed themselves.
2. Another 4800 are almost bedridden. That is, they can move from their bed to a chair, and back again to bed.
3. Another 4000 workers are so afflicted they can work but six months of every year.
4. Almost 600 others lose from several weeks to several months of work each year because of their disease.
5. And 8000 more workers lose from a few days to two weeks of their working year to arthritis.

Dr. Smith, a member of the governing board of the International League Against Rheumatism, blamed much of the distress on lack of medical education.

New Logan Circle Channel Is Due To Open Today

The channelization project at Logan Circle, where 13th st. nw. was cut through the circle to speed up traffic, is scheduled to be opened to traffic today at 3 p. m.

Only thing that might hold up the opening, said District Traffic Director J. N. Robertson, is a delay in the operation of 40 new pedestrian walk signals.

The $30,000 project involved cutting two curved roadways around the statue of Gen. John A. Logan. It is expected to speed up traffic on heavily traveled 13th st. by making it almost a straight street, Robertson said.

Care-for-Korea Plan Indorsed by Truman

President Truman yesterday indorsed the Care-for-Korea (CARE) campaign as a worthwhile program "to help humanity in distress."

"I strongly urge all Americans to contribute to the Care-for-Korea campaign to provide gift parcels of food, clothing, blankets, and similar needed items," the President said in a statement.

CARE is the popular abbreviation for the Cooperative for American Remittances to Europe and Asia.

Police Commissioner In Chicago Resigns

CHICAGO, Nov. 14 (U.P.).—Police Commissioner John C. Prendergast resigned today in what was regarded as the first move in a widespread shakeup of top officials in the Nation's largest city, and Mayor Martin Kennelly said Prendergast would leave office tomorrow.

"He goes out of the department with his record unblemished, with the respect of most of the people of this community," said Kennelly at a news conference.

But while Kennelly lauded Prendergast's record, particularly in reorganization of the police department on a more modern basis, there were indications that these would be further changes.

As Prendergast's successor, Kennelly named former Deputy Commissioner Timothy O'Connor, who like Prendergast has a reputation in the police department for non-political administration.

At least five or six police captains were believed headed for possible retirement or demotion.

Ruditsky Subpenaed By Senate Committee

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 14 (AP).—Barney Ruditsky, former New York police detective and one of the owners of a restaurant where gambler Mickey Cohen was ambushed, was named today in a subpena before the Kefauver Senate Crime Investigating Committee.

Rudolph Halley, chief counsel for the committee, which opens a hearing here Thursday, wouldn't discuss what Ruditsky might be asked. He has kept secret the names of most of the 22 persons he says will be called to testify, but acknowledged that Cohen is one.

The committee, headed by Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), and including Senators Tobey (R., N. H.) and Wiley (R., Wis.), will hold hearings tomorrow in Las Vegas, Nev.

O'Hara Gets Subpena After Chase in Auto

CHICAGO, Nov. 14 (AP).—Ralph O'Hara, president of the defunct Transamerica News Service, racing news distributor, was served last night with a subpoena to appear before the Senate Crime Investigation Committee.

Chicago policemen and crime commission investigators served the subpoena only after an automobile chase over suburban roads near Willow Springs.

Investigators said O'Hara probably would be asked about connections of Transamerica with the Capone syndicate. A crime commission investigator said Trans-America once was the syndicate opposition to Continental Press, headed by James M. Ragen. Ragen was fatally shot in a gangland ambush several years ago.

'Gangster Tie-Up'
Calif. Crime Unit Accuses Revenue Men

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Nov. 14 (AP). — California's State Commission on Organized Crime today charged there has been a "tie-up" between Federal tax collectors and criminals.

The commission, headed by retired Admiral William H. Standley of San Diego, made its final report to Gov. Earl Warren.

Spokesmen for the Internal Revenue Bureau in Washington, D. C., withheld comment on the charge of wholesale tax evasions by the underworld and alleged business dealings between tax agents and racketeers.

In San Francisco, however, Collector James G. Smyth said the job of his men is to collect taxes, not to enforce laws. He denied there have been "relationships" between tax men and hoodlums.

The report recommended creation of another crime commission—with more power than the one which ended its job last June 30 after three years' work.

Governor Warren Mum

Governor Warren, at a press conference, said of that proposal:

"It's too early to make any comment on my legislative program. It hasn't jelled yet."

The final report told of racketeers who make big money and get into tax evasion trouble—and get out of it without paying penalties.

It said a convicted San Francisco abortionist was found to have $300,000 in undeclared money—and nothing was done to get her to pay up her taxes.

The commission said Fred N. Howser, the Republican attorney general who failed this year to win reelection, failed to cooperate, even to running down reports that efforts were being made to set up a Statewide system of racket protection "under the cloak of the attorney general's office."

Howser objected to the commission from the beginning. He claimed it was a move by Governor Warren to usurp his law-enforcement powers.

Asked for comment today, Howser told newsmen: "The conflict between myself and the Crime Commission is nothing new. They have spent a good part of their efforts trying to point out to the public things they knew were not true. Otherwise they would have done something about them."

No Agents Prosecuted

The commission said it has given information on big profits by criminals to the intelligence unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau and the bureau knows of involvements of its agents with "gamblers, gangsters, hoodlums and abortionists."

Yet, it said, such relationships have not been discouraged and no agents have been prosecuted or dismissed.

The report said: "There has never been a racketeer, hoodlum or gangster of first-rank importance convicted of income tax fraud in California."

San Francisco area Collector Smyth reported that in 15 years only one member of his 500-man staff has "gone sour and been fired." He said that is a very good record for any organization handling money.

The commission said it does not know how much tax money goes unpaid by gangland. But it spoke of the "fabulous personal extravagances, year after year," of underworld figures. It said people like Mickey Cohen, Contra Costa, gambler William Pechart and San Mateo racketeer Sam Termini could not live in the style they do if they paid all their taxes.

Foreign Lawyers Sought to Argue Appeal of 11 Reds

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP)—The eleven convicted Communist leaders said yesterday they will try to get prominent lawyers from other countries to aid in arguing their appeal in the United States Supreme Court.

They said they had tried in vain to get two dozen leading American lawyers to join in the appeal—based on the contention that the Smith Act, under which they were convicted, is unconstitutional.

The convicted Communists said in a statement that "many" of the American lawyers contacted "agreed that the Smith Act is unconstitutional, but none would face the dangers of arguing that position today."

The eleven were convicted of conspiracy to advocate violent overthrow of the Government.

Veteran Supreme Court attaches told reporters in Washington they could recall no instance of a foreign lawyer arguing a case before the tribunal. But they agreed that it would be permissible.

In Contempt Case
Russell Freed After Posting $10,000 Bond

. . . leaving Federal Court here

Harry Russell, 59, Chicago racket figure, pleaded innocent yesterday in District Court to an indictment charging him with 60 counts of contempt of Congress.

The grey, squat man who refused to answer the queries of the Senate Crime Investigating Committee, proved equally silent during the court proceedings.

His "not guilty" plea was almost inaudible. And, he wouldn't even as much as tell reporters his age.

Russell was indicted after the committee sought his testimony about activities of the lush S. & G. Syndicate of Miamia, Fla.

His attorney, William H. Collins, was given 20 days by Judge Edward A. Tamm to file legal motions. Russell was released under $10,000 bond pending trial January 15.

Prosecutor William Hitz told the court that Russell was one of five partners who had a "business" estimated at between 26 and 50 million dollars annually.

To this, Collins replied:

"Mr. Hitz has talked astronomical figures before."

The bonding firm of William P. Ryan posted the bail. According to Howard Hughes, the firm's representative, Russell paid the premium.

Frank Erickson Term Is Upheld on Appeal

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP).—A two-year bookmaking sentence and $30,000 fine imposed on millionaire gambler Frank Erickson was unanimously upheld today by the Appellate Division of the State Supreme Court.

The 54-year-old Erickson pleaded guilty last June 19 to 59 counts of bookmaking and one count of conspiracy. He was sentence seven days later and sent to Rikers Island Penitentiary.

Rejecting Erickson's claim that the sentence was excessive, the Appellate Division ruled "judgment unanimously affirmed."

Marine Art Students Prove Just as Adept With Oil Brushes as They Are With Oiled Guns

The first display of artwork done by United States Marines enrolled in the Marine Corps Institute commercial art correspondence course opened yesterday.

In the exhibition at Marine Barracks, 8th and I sts. se., are 225 layouts, designs and pen and ink drawings submitted as part of the course by 76 Marines on duty in this country and in many parts of the world including Korean battle zones.

Three Washington artists judging the show commended Corpl. Robert F. Fleischuer, course instructor, for the quality of work by the students.

Fleischuer said most of the work was done by men "in their spare time using only the materials that can be carried in a seabag."

Judges were: Joseph H. Ross, 3d, an instructor at the Corcoran School of Art; Henry J. Bausili, of Art Designers Studios of Washington, and Edward F. Walton, a free lance illustrator.

Pfc. Anthony J. Prizzi, of Cherry Point, N. C., was awarded three first places. For his comic strip, "Moon Marco, the Interplanetary Marine," entered in the pen, brush and ink division, the judges had special praise.

The show will remain open through today before it begins a tour of Marine installations over the country. The public is invited.

Commercial art is only one of dozens of correspondence courses presently being studied by 23,000 Marines and their families enrolled in the Marine Corps Institute study program.

Imposition of temporary "no-parking" restrictions on the northwest side of Ellsworth dr. between Georgia ave. and Fenton st., Silver Spring, from November 20 to January 9 was announced yesterday by Montgomery County Manager Irving G. McNayr. The temporary ban is made necessary by holiday traffic, he sadi.

Knowland Flies to Korea

McNayr Suspends Bethesda Policeman

Suspension of Policeman George Bisset, assigned to the Bethesda substation, for 30 days without pay was announced yesterday by Montgomery County Manager Irving G. McNayr.

McNayr said Bisset was suspended for making untruthful statements to his superior officer in connection with a minor traffic accident in which he had been involved. The suspension is effective Thursday unless Bisset appeals to the Personnel Board for a hearing.

States Urged to Adopt Uniform Truck Rules

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 14 (AP).—A defense official today called on State public utility commissioners to adopt a uniform code for regulation of truck traffic.

James K. Knudson, Washington, D. C., a member of the Interstate Commerce Commisison and head of the newly-created Defense Transportation Administration, condemned what he termed "burdensome license and tax requirements," before the National Association of Railroad and Utility Commissioners.

Bay State Legislator Hits Junket as Waste

BRAINTREE, Mass., Nov. 14 (AP). An impatient Massachusetts legislator, who abandoned a government junket in sunny Florida, today said he returned home last night at his own expense "rather than waste my time."

Representative Raymond P. Palmer (R.), a member of the legislative commission on transportation, which left Boston Saturday, said "the committee's plans seemed too indefinite to me. I don't know what they'll do the rest of the week."

The commission, backed by a $10,000 appropriation, went to Florida as part of its study of Massachusetts railroads.

CBS Color TV Widely Hailed After Display

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (AP).—The Columbia Broadcasting System's first large scale demonstration here of its color television indicated today that there is wide public interest in tinted video.

Comments by those who had tickets to the showings were almost unanimous in approval of CBS color as natural, and an improvement over black and white television.

Typical reaction to the fidelity of CBS color reproduction included: "Wonderful . . . excellent . . . much superior to black and white . . . it's swell."

But many, queried after the first demonstration, went on to ask questions of their own, such as:

"How much extra will it cost me for a color converter for my set, and will it disfigure my console cabinet or spoil the appearance of my living room?"

"What are the chances for getting bigger color pictures — as big as in black and white, and will they still be sharp?"

C.B.S. estimates it would cost $20 to $50 to adapt a set to receive black and white pictures from its color broadcasts, and an additional $75 for a converter to receive in color.

The demonstration color telecasts were viewed on 10 color receivers set up in a Fifth ave. showroom eight blocks from the transmitter of Station WCBS-TV atop the Chrysler Building.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Poluito of Paterson, N. J., said: "We want to get a color set right away—we want to be the first in our community to have one."

Said C. R. Elliott of Pittsburgh: "Very good—I have a black and white set at home and I hope to get a converter. Color makes television much more enjoyable."

And although a very few were critical on technical points, there was this comment from Mark Mitchell of Manhattan, artist:

RCA's Suit to Block ICC Order Being Tried

CHICAGO, Nov. 14 (AP)—An attorney for Radio Corporation of America asked a three judge Federal court panel today to allow use of the RCA color television system—even if it amounts to offering two different color systems to the public.

The proposal was made by attorney John Cahill of New York at a hearing of RCA's suit to block the scheduled start of color television broadcasts by November 20.

The Federal Communications Commission has approved the Columbia Broadcasting System's color rocess. RCA, which has its own system, is fighting the FCC ruling.

Cahill contended the public would have to spend $1,500,000,000 to get CBS color into their homes.

The FCC, he added, is "attempting to force this system down the throats of the public without giving them the free choice to which they are entiled. Unless this courts acts come next Monday there will be foisted on the American public an inferior television color system which will turn out to be an expensive fiasco."

Simon Rifkind, New York, attorney for Emerson Radio Corp., said the FCC order had hurt sales of TV black and white sets.

CBS was represented by Samuel P. Rosenman, former adviser to Presidents Roosevelt and Truman, and one-time New York Supreme Court judge. He maintained the only question is whether the FCC order is justified by the evidence.

RCA and other interested parties are seeking an injunction to upset FCC's October 11 selection of the CBS process for commercial licensing. They asked for a temporary injunction that would halt the start of CBS color broadcasts. CBS and the FCC, in turn, are seeking a summary judgment which would uphold the FCC ruling.

China War Has Begun, Brines Says

ATLANTA, Nov. 14 (AP).—Americans are straining and hoping to avoid war with Communist China—but the war already has started.

This was the rreport today from Russell Brines, veteran Associated Press Tokyo bureau chief, here to address the seventeenth national convention of the AP Managing Editors Association.

"The American Public hardly realizes—and it must realize—that the fighting in Korea is now a large-scale war against Communist China," said Brines in an interview.

"United Nations forces already have virtually wiped wiped out the North Korean armies, but still must fight their way to the Manchurian and Siberian borders to achieve victory.

The convention continues through Saturday. Averell Harriman, special assistant to President Truman, will speak Thursday and Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of combined Chiefs of Staff, speaks Friday.

Reports will be heard Wednesday from Norman Isaacs, St. Louis Star-Times, and Herbert F. Corn, Washington Star, general chairman and general vice chairman of continuing study committees of the Associated Press report.

Reports by committee chairmen on specific topics: news writing, James S. Pope, Louisville Courier - Journal; news features, Frank Eyerly, Des Moines Register and Tribune; general news, David Patten, Providence Journal and Bulletin; business news, Lloyd Felmly, Newark News; domestic news, V. Citizen Group Again Votes For Home Rule

Meeting at the Masonic and Eastern Star Home, 6000 New Hampshire ave. ne., the group acted after discussing the bill with Gerhard P. van Arkel, counsel to the Senate District Committee.

The group petitioned the District Public Utilities Commission for a hearing to ask for the establishment of bus service in the newly developed area along Ridge rd. ne. from the B. and O. overpass to Eastern ave.

Thomas Circle

The Thomas Circle Citizens Association last night reiterated its opposition to home rule for the District and demanded continued segregation in District schools.

In other actions, the group, meeting at 1536 16th st. nw., asked enforcement of the law prohibiting passengers from standing in front of the white line on streetcars and busses, and donated $10 to the Community Chest.

Midway Civic Association

Midway Civic Association last night elected officers. They are: President, Malcolm Daniels; first vice president, William Bestor; second vice president, Mrs. Laura Frazier; recording secretary, Miss Gladys Duncan; corresponding secretary, Miss Artie Barnes; financial secretary, Mrs. Leola V. Lomax, anad treasurer, Mrs. Laura Cole

The regular monthly meeting was held at Morgan School, 18th and V sts. nw.

Walter Winchell ... In New York

Broadway Spotlight

Celebs About Town: Her Imperial Theater Highness Ethel Merman, Jessica ("Hilda Crane") Tandy and Pamela ("Lady's Not for Burning") Brown, whose starring got love-letter notices . . . Jane Russell, disguised in a tall-throated frock plus turban, at Le Ruban Bleu, where she wasn't recognized . . . Cathy O'Donnell, another Hollywoodream, window-shopping along 57th . . . Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., studying the immense sized mazda-signery for his latest film, "State Secret" . . . N. Y. Yankees pitching ace Whitey Ford showing his fiancee the White Light Night . . . John Ringling North, the Circus tycoon, who affects the British umbrella wherever he goes . . . Eleanor Roosevelt and her new fuzzywuzzy hairdo . . . War Correspondent Marguerite Higgins, whose radio articulation comes over gracefully. She also makes sense . . . Arthur Godfrey, telephoning intimates from his plane 9000 feet over the skyline.

Sallies in Our Alley: In Lindy's last night some Hollywood writers in town for the "Tripoli" and "Philippines" films (about U. S. Marines), were reporting how difficult it was for the many extras playing soldier in them . . . "Yes," one sighed, "those poor extras playing Marines really went through hell" . . . "That's too bad,' stifled Ed Gardner. "How about sending them to Korea for a rest?" . . . Bob Dunn was with an agent watching a comic in a night spot. "Can you imagine that bum," flipped the agent, "getting 90 percent of my salary?"

Midtown Vignette: His name is John Kroll . . . He applied for the job of maitre d' at Gogi's LaRue, which has its gala opening Friday night . . . He was hired on the spot . . . Didn't even have to mention a word about his past experience . . . Because the new proprietor knew all about him . . . John Kroll once owned LaRue!

Memos of a Midnighter: Honeychile Wilder is getting a Mexican divorce from her Argentine husband, Alfredo Cernadas. Her next will be Prince Alex Hohenlohe, whose recent wife is now Morton Downey's . . . The Harry ("Sweet Leilani") Owens expect their fourth image March 1 . . . Theater Arts Magazine has an epidemic of divorces. Phyllis Adams got hers from actor Alexander Kirkland, Robert Vetault and teevy actress Elizabeth Ross are dividing, and editor Sally Deutsch is being unknotted from Paley Powell, the Pres. Martinelli last week, dated him four nights in a row after the decree arrived . . . Ronald Graham and Ellen Hanley (she was the lead thrush in "Lend an Ear") blend Christmas week . . . The bookies resumed action Monday. Ain't politics wonderful?

Broadway Doodling: Harold Lloyd's next film, "Mad Wednesday," due shortly, was completed five years ago. Some of the cast have since passed on . . . Betty Grable has the Technicolor movie record—19 rainbow-tinted cinemas . . . Cole Porter's "Out of This World" is trying to erase its abundance of lavender flavor. The new Mayor and Police Comm. Murphy won't stand for it . . . Ingrid's "Joan of Arc" has grossed two million dollars. But it needs another two million to break even . . . The theater season hits its premiere peak during Thanksgiving. Six openers . . . Time's movie critic must have turtle blood. He finally reviewed ::Bitter Rice," which opened two months ago . . . The trouble with radio's newspaper dramas: So much of it has been to press before.

Sideshow: Showfolks have a saying: "Do your best. You never know who's sitting out front!" It is usually said when the house is half full—or the notices are discouraging—or when the show is playing "The sticks" . . . Last May Eli Wallach, who plays one of the gobs in "Mr. Roberts," was invited to the Actors Studio to appear in a role of a short play which Elia Kazan was directing . . . "It may not sound important to you," he was told, "but it will give you added experience" . . . Wallach knew that appearing in anything Kazan directed was better than money . . . And he was so right . . . "You Never Know Who's Sitting Out Front" . . . That's why Wallach landed the role in a new Broadway show . . . Sitting out front one night was the author, Tennessee Williams.

For Diversion Seekers: Esuire's page 78. Very peek-a-bootiful . . . Doris Day's recorded spiritual, "David's Psalm" . . . The new ditty, "I Solemnly Swear" . . . The swiftest query-and-answer session, "What's My Line?" Makes a half-hour whiz by justlikethat . . . The New York's Profile on Toots Shor. Many of the quips have been colyum'd . . . Una Merkel's scene-stealing in "Emergency Wedding." The neatest bit of larceny since Brink's.

The Florida Special: The New York and Hollywood weary-of-it-all-glamour-set is covering the Roney-Plaza sands . . . The Gov. Deweys, plus braintrusters Paul Lockwood and J. Hagerty, arrived with Remarkable Pales . . . The Ann Sheridans (S. Hannagan) starred at Stone Crab Joe's, the most popular seafoodery in Miami Beach . . . Mary Martin's son, now 18, gets his first job in the theater via Larry Schwab's Musical Circus, Miami. Schwab discovered Mary when she thrushed at the Troc in H'wood. Not having a show at the time, he loaned her to Vinton Freedley for "Leave It to Me," in which Mary became a star via "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" . . . John Crosby, Inez Robb and Rob Ruark of the N. Y. Newspapers were among the byliners at the Editors' Convention in the Sans Souci. La Robb's biggest howl: "Every woman should have a husband, especially her own" . . . Charlie Farrell at the Park Avenue has his best act yet . . . Sunny Isles, the Island Club, Greenacres and Boheme, top gambling places, look like neglected cemeteries . . . The Grand Jury probing crime announced that a famed oil man "lost $500,000" gambling last season. Didn't name him. Harry Sinclair, as we itemed at the time.

The Late Watch: The R. Rossellinis (Ingrid Bergman) are imaging again . . . Insiders hear Mayor Impellitteri has reached a private truce with one of his Tammay foes, City Council Chief Sharkey . . . Susan Yorke's best-seller here, "The Widow," has been banned in Ireland . . . Phil Foster was canceled after one day at the Music Hall because "he is too Broadway" . . . "Truth and Consequences" may be the first teevy program to lose—because of savage critical notices . . . The new Metropole owner's explanation for its click: "We cater to the masses. There are more 5 and 10s than there are Tiffany's" . . . One of the waiters at a Glen Cove (L. I.) resort is General Kowalski of Poland . . . The G-men are interested in Gordon Kahn, scenario writer who defended The Hollywood Ten vociferously. He is now in Mexico, where they expect him to stay . . . The Runyon Cancer Fund has allocated $3,386,074 (via 97 grants) in less than 4 years . . . To "Bugs" Baer on the passing of his beloved Louise: There Are No Words . . . The M. Berles (Joyce Mathews), who denied they would wed for the 3d time, were shopping for straitjackets yesterday.

Personal Triumph

Benny Carried It All On His Own Back

By John Crosby

JACK BENNY'S television debut, about which, I'm awfully late in commenting due to circumstances completely within my control, was a personal triumph for Benny but not much of a triumph for television. Benny carried the 45 minute program on his own capable shoulders without the assistance of Mary Livingston, Dennis Day or Phil Harris—his formidable radio team.

CROSBY

He did have the help of Rochester, rather minor assistance from his old friend Mr. Kitzel ("Meester Benny.") Just how he managed to get through 45 minutes with such scant clothing is beyond my comprehension. But he did. The show was sort of a cross between what Benny has been doing on the radio these many years and what he does annually at the Paramount.

In short, it was an exploitation of the Benny radio character, a personal appearance, and sort of an exhibition of Benny's very real ability to hold the center of the stage. It opened with a sight gag—Benny's violin case flailing about the inside of a bus as he attempts to get off—and got under way with Benny himself in front of a curtain discussing his niggardliness. As a concession to television, the bulk of the show was set in a living room, where Mr. B. displayed his stinginess successfully to Rochester, Mr. Kitzel and to his guest, Dinah Shore.

THAT DOESN'T SOUND like much of a framework for 45 minutes of television but it hung together remarkably well. Benny's character has now been so well established that you anticipate the cigarette vending machine, and the pay phone in the living room, the laundromat he operates out back. Benny has become in millions of homes a sort of eccentric uncle whose curiosities are eagerly awaited by the rest of the family when he comes to dinner.

Benny's writers, a very shrewd bunch, know all about this anticipatory glee; they hold the gag back as long as possible, then Mr. B. says: "WELL!" And the joint explodes. I'm not altogether happy about these attempts to reconcile a radio format with television but I must admit that, if I were in Benny's shoes, I'd do the same.

Incidentally, Mr. B. brought the Sportsmen along and their singing commercial is still clever enough to be legitimate entertainment. I wish I could say the same for all the other singing commercials.

AFTER EDDIE CANTOR'S opening show, I recall complaining that he dwelt a little too extensively on the glories of his own past, that this form of autobiography, while instructive, could not be continued indefinitely under the heading of entertainment. I'm happy to report that Mr. Cantor (Colgate Comedy Hour) on subsequent shows has thrown away his memoirs for the time being and proved what a redoubtable entertainer he can be when he wants to be.

He appears to have made a permanent thing out of a characterization called Maxie, the Taxi, one of the most exasperated and entertaining cabbies in my memory. Maxie's philosophy is pure Spearmint, an underestimated form of Americanism, and Mr. C. is very good at it. Cantor can still light into a song with enormous gusto and when he isn't on stage center, a large roster of talent is carrying on on his behalf. My sole objection—an occasional one—is that Mr. Cantor's taste is not always of the highest.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

"Unaccustomed as I Am to Public Speaking"

Every time I open my big mouth, I put my foot in it.

A few days ago, for no reason at all, I sounded off with some unsolicited advice to public speakers. Unburdened by any real knowledge of the subject, I proceeded to set myself up as an expert and tell the orators how to orate.

Now, as usual, I am hoist with my own petard. Two local groups of public speakers have asked me to address them, and demonstrate just how these things should be done.

Actually, I don't mind having the tables turned on me, because in the process I've come across an interesting item.

The organizations which have called my bluff are The Monument Toastmasters Club and the Potomac Toastmasters Club. Struck by the similarity in names, I investigated and found that "a story goes with it."

The original Toastmasters Club was formed on the West Coast 18 years ago. It was, and still is, a nonprofit, noncommercial group of amateurs interested in improving themselves in the art of speech—both in conversation and in public address.

Today, more than 800 Toastmaster Clubs are in operation throughout the world, all of them limited to 30 active members, so that each will get plenty of experience in talking on his feet.

Robert G. Schottler of 714 Marshall st., Falls Church, Va., secretary of the Potomac Toastmasters, tells me that most of the group's members are employes of the Agriculture Department. On the evening of the 21st, at the 400 Club, I'm invited (c. f. "dared") to join the gang and make a speech.

Larry Mahar of 1305 Sycamore st., Falls Church, Va., chairman of the Social Committee of the Monument Toastmasters, has similarly "invited" me and the missus to be at the Roger Smith Hotel at 8 tonight. Monument Toastmasters are employes of the Weather Bureau and the Civil Aeronautics Administration, and will hear greetings from Weather Bureau Chief Francis W. Reichelderfer and CAAdministrator Don Nyrop.

Inasmuch as the invitation included my wife, my first inclination was to dodge the issue by letting her do the talking for me. But then they told me that all Toastmaster speeches are limited to 5 minutes—and that rather effectively ruled out my last chance for escape.

Incidentally, any District Liners who are interested in forming new clubs are invited to write to Toastmasters International, Santa Ana, Calif. They'll be glad to send full information to back up their motto: "Toastmasters is more than a club—it's an education."

GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION BUT SLIGHTLY EXAGGERATED

"Hey," I said, mostly to myself, "the electric clock at this end of the city room is 20 minutes behind the electric clock at the other end."

"Of course it is," explained Reporter Marshall Andrews from the adjoining desk. "This room is so long the other end is in a different time zone."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Mother cat, good mouser, and 2-month-old kittens." (Falls Church 2163.)

"Black kittens." (Jefferson 3-7212.)

"Charming black kittens, 11 weeks old." (Temple 6419.)

"Assorted 6-week-old kittens; I'm leaving town." (Glebe 6202 or Owens 3253.)

PERSONAL NOTES

Mrs. George L. King, 2928 44th pl. nw.: I'm glad you held the kitten for the daughter of the Quantico Marine. Many of our mail edition subscribers have reported to me that they've tried again and again to obtain pets offered here, but are always too late because Washington readers call first.

Kurt Nathan, 104 Hodges lane, Takoma Park, Md.: The reason we no longer use items based on typographical errors in this column is that, while some are quite humorous, there are so many to choose from that the joke wears pretty thin after a while.

UNGENTLE SEX

A Chicago man accused of giving his wife 50 black eyes in a year told the court it just wasn't so—he blacked his wife's eyes only about once a month.

It just goes to show how we can misjudge a fellow if we don't wait to hear his side of the story.

KID STUFF

Gladys Lawhorn of 6309 Georgia st., Chevy Chase, Md., reports that when a teacher at Whittier School told one of her pupils to get ready for vaccination, he replied:

"I don't have to go, teacher, I've already been fascinated."

THIS IS WASHINGTON

We held a "wake" for the old Washington Post building the other night, and some of the old-timers got to wondering what would become of the place now that we've moved out.

"You know, there's some chance that a Government agency will take it over," one man said.

SUSIE Q.

Public Work Resumed at Marshall Hgts.

The District will start work this week on a $900,000 three-year program to bring public improvements to Marshall Heights, the Southeast neighborhood where a freeze order stopped such work for more than a year.

First city work to be done since the slum clearance plan was dropped and the freeze lifted last May will be the repaving of five blocks on 50th and 51st sts. se. near E. Capitol st. Deputy Highway Director Samuel R. Harrison said other paving and repaving jobs are scheduled to proceed as soon as water and sewer mains, have been installed or connections made to existing mains.

Director William H. Cary, jr., of the Health Department's Bureau of Public Health Engineering, said notices were sent out to 30 homeowners last week telling them to make connections.

But for more than 300 of the 500 houses in Marshall Heights no water or sewer mains are available, Cary said. These must be installed before connections can be made and the streets surfaced.

Water Division Superintendent David V. Auld said about $20,000 worth of water main contracts and the same amount of sewer contracts have been let with work scheduled to start soon.

In addition to planning a public improvement program, District officials have also made detailed inspections of every house at Marshall Heights, District Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young said. Purpose of this was to give homeowners an idea whether it would be cheaper to repair their homes in compliance with health and building regulations or get a new house.

U. S. Held Losing Friends Abroad

By Drew Pearson

Yesterday I abandoned my alleged crouching position under the cabinet table long enough to report on the distressing way some of our west European friends are drifting away from us. Today I want to report some brighter phases of the European picture; also suggest some ideas for making them even brighter.

PEARSON

While we have headaches in western Europe, the Kremlin is having worse in eastern Europe . . . In Poland, troop trains between Russia and East Germany are dynamited almost weekly. The Poles hate the Russians more than the Germans—which is saying a lot. And the underground in Poland is more active than ever before . . . Czechoslovakia is seething and turbulent . . . Bulgarian troops, deserting in driblets across the Turkish border, report intense dislike of the Russians . . . Most important of all, every satellite country is watching Yugoslavia. If Tito can get by the present winter, despite crop failures and near-starvation, more satellite countries will follow his lead.

More Bad Tax News—Meanwhile, here at home, the good old browbeaten taxpayer is in for more bad news. United States military chiefs are going to ask for about another $30 billion in the next few months—making a total defense budget passed this year of about $60 billion. This doesn't include the normal expense of running the Government, or interest on the national debt, or care of veterans—which total another $20 billion . . , Compare this with the last real prewar year, 1938—when we spent $1 billion on defense, and our total budget was only $7 billion. (We thought those were hectic years!) . . . Since V-J day, we have spent a total of $70 billion on armament, not including the Korean war, and if we go on spending at this rate, we will be bankrupt even before Russia starts the all-out war we are so busy preparing for . . . In fact, to pay this huge armament bill we must inevitably and definitely lower our standard-of-living to a point similar to or even lower than Europe's!

The remedy as I see it is to quit waging a defensive war and carry the attack to the enemy—not through expensive force of arms, but by getting to the Russian people . . . This is the thing Stalin worries about most, and that is the reason for the Iron Curtain . . . In contrast, we have worried ourselves sick over a few McCarthy Communists which may be lurking under our beds at home that we have lost our initiative, our enterprise and our imagination abroad. The Kremlin itself couldn't have arranged things better . . . No military commander wants to be attacked at home. He carries the attack to the enemy . . . But we are so gentlemanly that we sit with arms folded and don't do to the Russians what they are doing to us. Instead of worrying about the handful of Americans they convert, we should be out carrying the fight to their territory, converting thousands of Russians and satellites over to us.

Easier said than done will be the reaction of most people. Quite true. But war is not easy either. And there is only one alternative to war with Russia—converting a bloc of the Russian people . , . If we don't do that, war with Russia is absolutely sure and certain . . . Furthermore, there are some soft spots in Russia which most people don't know about. Approximately 15 million Russians — perhaps more—are in concentration camps because they are out of sympathy with the Kremlin . . . Large areas of unrest exist inside the Soviet—especially White Russia and the Ukraine . . . Few Americans realize that when the Nazis invaded Russia in 1941, 3,600,000 Russian prisoners were taken, chiefly because the people were so fed up with their Moscow regime that they literally rushed into German arms . . . This has now been proved to the hilt in captured war documents . . . Surrender to the German army to escape communism in 1941 was far greater than desertion from the Czar in 1915-17. When fighting under the Czar, Russian troops stopped the Germans at Riga in Latvia. They never let the Kaiser's army even get on real Russian soil . . . But Hitler's army advanced across two-thirds of Russia right down to the Caucasus — all because Russian troops and peasants almost welcomed the invader.

The only way Russia was ever defeated in a major war was through politics . . . Napoleon invaded Russia and was swamped. Hitler's invasion of Russia in 1941 finally got bogged down at Stalingrad because he didn't understand politics. He starved the 3,600,000 prisoners so shamefully that the Russians quit surrendering . . . But in 1917 when the Kaiser wanted to defeat Russia, he supplied a sealed train or exiled Lenin and Trotsky and sent them back to Russia . . . The Bolshevik revolution which followed brought on the Brest-Litovsk Treaty of 1917, by which Russia pulled out of the war. Internal revolt did it . . . Now we have some topnotch Russians exiled in this country, but aside from letting them act as seamstresses, cabaret dancers and professors, we are overlooking our best bet to penetrate the Iron Curtain . . . in West Germany is an allied camp of about 2000 escaped Russian officers. We supply them with food, uniforms, and so forth,—but we don't even bother to give them books to study the United States of America,
